

If YOU are looking for a

BARGAIN

Call in and we will give you one in a
Ladies' or Misses'

Foxed-Kid Shoe

—in Button or Lace—

Only $1.00 per Pair,

All sizes. Just the thing for this warm weather.

HOW ABOUT THOSE

37-Inch Challies

so cheap, at

McFARLAND & FRENCH'S.

NORTH ★ DALLES, ★ Wash.

Situated at the Head of Navigation.

Destined to be

Best Manufacturing Center

In the Inland Empire.

Best Selling Property of the Season in the Northwest.

For further information call at the office of Interstate Investment Co.,

72 Washington St., PORTLAND, Or.
Or O. D. TAYLOR, THE DALLES, Or.

Columbia Ice Co.

104 SECOND STREET.

ICE! ICE! ICE!

Having over 1600 tons of ice on hand, we are now prepared to receive orders, wholesale or retail, to be delivered through the summer. Parties contracting with us will be carried through the entire season WITHOUT ADVANCE in price, and may depend that we have nothing but

PURE, HEALTHFUL ICE,

Cut from mountain water; no slough or alkali ponds.

Leave orders at the Columbia Candy Factory, 104 Second street.

W. S. CRAM, Manager.

D. P. THOMPSON, J. S. SCHENCK, H. M. BRALL, President Vice-President Cashier.

First National Bank.

DALLES. - - - OGOREN

General Banking Business transacted. Deposits received, subject to Sight Draft or Check.

Transactions made and proceeds promptly remitted on day of collection.

Light and Telegraphic Exchange sold on New York, San Francisco and Portland.

DIRECTORS. P. THOMPSON, JNO. S. SCHENCK, T. W. SPARKS, H. M. BRALL, GEO. A. LIEBE.

FRENCH & CO., BANKERS.

TRANSACT A GENERAL BANKING BUSINESS

Letters of Credit issued available in the Eastern States.

Sight Exchange and Telegraphic transfers sold on New York, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, Portland Oregon, and various points in Oregon and Washington.

Collections made at all points on favorable terms.

W. E. GARRETSON, Leading Jeweler.

SOLE AGENT FOR THE

All Watch Work Warranted.

Jewelry Made to Order.
138 Second St., The Dalles, Or.

1891. ICE! 1891.

The Dalles Ice Co.,

Cor. Third and Union Streets. Having a sufficient quantity of ice to supply the city we are now prepared to receive orders to be delivered during the coming summer. Parties contracting with us can depend on being supplied through the entire season and may depend that we have nothing but

PURE, HEALTHFUL ICE
Cut from mountain water; no slough or alkali ponds.

We are receiving orders daily and solicit a continuance of the same.

H. J. MAIER, Manager.
Office, corner Third and Union streets.

$20 REWARD.

WHICH WILL BE PAID FOR ANY INFORMATION leading to the conviction of parties cutting up poles or logs of the Electric Light Co. H. GLENN, Manager

CLUBBED TO DEATH.

That's What Will Happen to the Republican Party if Brice's Advice is Heeded.

Iowa Republicans in Session.---No Public Debt Statement Can Be Got At---Other News.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Chairman Brice, chairman of the National Democratic Committee, has written a letter of warning and advice to his fellow members of the National Committee. The letter embodies advice in regard to the association of democratic clubs, and the necessity of the National Committee co-operating with them.

"The plan of campaign, of the republicans," he says, "is a colossal system of clubs to be maintained and supported by unlimited means drawn from the pockets of beneficiaries of the monopoly policy." "This system," he urges "can only be met by an equally extensive system of voluntary democratic clubs, that is, the associations of people in their several neighborhoods, for the defense of their rights and interests against those bonded to assalt them."

Brice thinks the approaching struggle is to be one mainly between clubs, and this is greatly to be desired that a uniform and perfected system of democratic societies throughout the country be organized and put in intimate association with each other before the beginning of next year.

IOWA REPUBLICANS.

A Large and Harmonious State Convention Being Held.

CIDAH RAPIDS, Ia., July 1.—One of the most enthusiastic Republican conventions ever assembled in Iowa convened in this city to-day. The convention was as distinguished for its harmony and good feeling as have been conventions in recent years their discord and dissensions. Among the audience were many persons of state and national reputation.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster, the representative non-partisan Woman's Christian Temperance Union heads a delegation of enthusiastic lady republicans who occupied private boxes.

Promptly at 11 o'clock Chairman Mack of the state central committee called the convention to order. John Stone was chosen as temporary chairman.

In assuming the chair Stone made a stirring speech which was interrupted many times by applause.

Having thanked the convention for the distinction of being called upon to preside over it he said: "A most important crisis is upon us. The political power of the state is at stake."

"The good results achieved by the republican party during its rule of thirty years is endangered. The democratic party of Iowa is in battle and in ambush."

For governor, Hiram C. Wheeler of Odebolt, Sac county, was nominated on the first ballot.

Must Become Citizens or Leave.

LONDON, July 1.—The Odessa correspondent of the News says: Governors Kieff, Podolia and Volhynia have issued a decree announcing that all foreigners in those provinces must either become naturalized citizens or leave the country. The decree is aimed at the populous German colonies adjacent to the Austrian frontier.

Decreased Southern Pacific Earnings.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—The Southern Pacific company's earnings for May were total $3,941,225, a decrease of $214,875 as compared with the gross earnings of May, 1891.

A Good Appointment.

SALEM, Ogn., July 1.—Governor Penoyer to-day appointed T. J. Davidson, (democrat) of Salem, county judge of Marion county, vice Wm. Waldo, resigned.

More Chilian Fighting.

IQUIQUE, July 1.—There are rumors of heavy fighting between the forces of Huasco and Coquimbo both on land and sea.

Weather Forecast.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—Forecast for Portland, Oregon and Washington, colder except nearly stationary temperature at Spokane and Fort Canby.

Chicago Wheat Market.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 1.—Close, wheat strong cash 94 $\frac{1}{2}$ @95 $\frac{1}{2}$; July, 92 $\frac{1}{2}$; December, 89 $\frac{1}{2}$.

San Francisco Market.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—Wheat, buyer '91, after August first 1.55 $\frac{1}{2}$.

IN MEMORIAM.

Noble Words Fittingly Spoken at Mr. Atwater's Funeral Exercises.

The following were remarks made by Hon. W. Lair Hill at the funeral of Mr. Atwater on Sunday last:

FRIENDS:—A little more than five years ago two lawyers, whose acquaintance reached back more than twice that number of years farther, sat conversing, and the conversation ran, as on many previous occasions it had run between them, upon the great problem which the heart of man has struggled with from time before there were, so far as we can tell, systems of religion; the problem which even yet the human intellect seems to have made little progress in solving. Whence we are, why we are, and what we shall be. In this speculative strain, and with the sort of solemn sympathy which his question always brings between those who talk of it, the conversation ran, until one of them said: "When I shall have met the inevitable, I should desire that there be no great pageant about my burial. I should desire that no oration be spoken; but I should desire that a lawyer should say some kind things to a few friends who might gather at that place; because, of all the professions and of all the guilds amongst men, there are none where men know each other so well as lawyers know each other; and because the lawyer's life is a continuous course of investigating and studying the intentions, the motives, the impulses that govern human conduct. And I believe," he added, "that they have generally arrived at the conclusion that most men are as good as their organizations and surroundings will allow them to be. I want such a man to speak of me."

Today all that is visible to human eyes of him who thus spoke lies in this narrow casket, in the sleep that shall never be broken, and the other comes with loving hands to drop a flower on his tomb—to lay a little stone on the monument of his memory.

Joseph E. Atwater, whose body lies here, was born in the province of Nova Scotia in 1837. When he was but a little child his parents removed to the United States, and settled in the state of Wisconsin. There Joseph was reared; there he received the education which the schools of that western country gave; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at the town of Jefferson, Wisconsin. This enterprise he carried on until the war of the rebellion broke out. Then, following that impulsiveness which was always a part of his character, he took up arms; and there he began his career as a man. When he had attained to his majority, pursuing an aptness for letters which he had developed in his school days, he became the editor of a newspaper at