WEATHER PROBABILITIES.

THE DALLES, July 1, 1891. RAIN Weather forecast till 12 m., Wednesday; light rain. Nearly stationary temperature.

The Chronicle is the Only Paper in The Dalles that Receives the Associated Press Dispatches.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

W. A. Kirby has the the thanks of the Chronicals office for a basket of fine peaches and apricots.

Mr. Alonzo Wardell, of Huron, South Dakota was in the city last evening. He is president of the Alliance Aid association of that state, and goes to Portland in the interest of the alliance.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Pierce of Polo, Illinois, arrived in this city last Friday. Mrs. Pierce is a sister of A. J. and Geo. Anderson. It is the intention of the visitors to spend the summer here.

Mr. Hugh Glenn returned from Portland on the noon train to-day. He informs us that a boat has been secured to connect with the Regulator which will be ready for business as soon as the portage is open for traffic.

A communication from the Fourth of July committee in reply to the communication of "Merchant" in yesterday's issue will appear tomorrow, it having been brought in too late for today's paper.

The wool men of Crook county who have sold their wool in The Dalles market at an average price of sixteen cents a pound, according to the Ochoco Review are consoling themselves with the fact that while this price is nominally less than that of last year, they have realized more to the sheep because the clip is larger and the wool heavier than that of last season.

By an oversight, mention was not made of the appearance of the Jackson fire company in the parade on July 4th. The steam engine was decorated in a very handsome manner by Engineer George Brown, who showed much taste and skill in the adornment. Mrs. Jucker we understand furnished the flowers which were so tastefully displayed on the handsome engine. Four fine black horses were attached thereto, and were driven by Mr. J. Huot. The whole outfit was made attractive and the engineer in charge is entitled to credit for the appearance of what went a long way toward the decorative part of the celebration.

On Friday evening after dress parade company E drew up in line before Lieutenant Norton's tent with the intention of giving an oration to their ex 2nd lieutenant who was the first man to hold that position in the company. Captain Gaffney's well prepared oration was scattered to the four winds, as Colonel Houghton advanced and presented a beautiful flag to the company before the captain had a chance for a word. Mr. H. Athelston Morley made the presentation address in behalf of lieutenant Norton. In response to repeated calls Major Burke made a short address to the men expressive of his interest and pleasure at their many deportment during the week. The boys, not to be outdone even by the unexpected, made up for the loss of their speech in rousing cheers for lieutenant Norton and major Burke. The flag, which is a very handsome one of dark blue silk embroidered in gold, was a joint presentation from Lieut. Norton and W. O. Bentley. Certainly the boys deserved the honor conferred on them, for there were no better behaved men in the camp than the three cowboy companies from Fossil, Condon, and Joseph.

The Oregon State Fair.

The prospects for a good State Fair were never so flattering as they are this year. The Premium List has been revised, and in many important points the prizes have been increased. The entries in the Speed Department are the largest and best in the history of the Fair. The State Fair is under the management of the State Board of Agriculture, and over $15,000 in cash is offered in premiums for exhibits of stock, poultry, agricultural products, fruit, etc., works of art and fancy work, and for trials of speed. The Board is making every preparation for a great meeting. Many valuable improvements have been made, and the grounds have been cleared up and greatly beautified. Electric and horse-car lines now run from Salem to the grounds. All persons wishing a Premium List for the Fair of 1891, can obtain it by addressing J. T. Gregg, the Secretary, at Portland, Oregon, or Geo. W. Watt, Assistant Secretary, at Salem. The Fair begins on the 14th of September, and will last one week. Send for a Premium List and prepare something for exhibition this year. Independence is only to be found in isolation.

UNDER NEW OFFICIALS.

A New Mayor and Council Take Charge of City Affairs.

Last night the newly elected mayor and councilmen held their first meeting at the city hall. Hon. Robert Mays was in the chair and Messrs. C. M. Thornbury, Hans Hansen, E. B. Dutar, C. E. Haight, and Paul Kreft were the councilmen present.

The bonds of Frank Menette, recorder, Ralph Gibbons, marshal, and O. Kinerley as city treasurer were presented to the mayor for his approval and were by him duly approved. The message of mayor was read and a motion was received and placed on file.

On motion the council proceeded to elect a councilman from the first ward, vice J. T. Peters resigned, resulting in the selection of H. J. Maier to fill the position. After some debate the council proceeded to the election of a street commissioner, and J. F. Stanials was elected as such commissioner.

The election of other city officers was postponed until the next meeting of the council and on motion the council adjourned till Tuesday night.

FRANK MENETTE, Recorder.

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

First Official Utterance of Hon. Robert Mays.

Gentlemen of the Council of Dalles City: In pursuance of the direction of the city charter, I desire briefly to indicate my intentions and aims, as I assume the duties of mayor, relative to the administration of our city government.

The people of this municipality have delegated to you as their council and to me as their mayor the entire care and control of the affairs of the city. Permit me to say that we can not be too careful in the performance of the sacred duty we have undertaken.

It should be the constant aim and earnest purpose of those in charge of the city government to maintain the rights of all in the enjoyment of life and liberty and property; and those who are unable to help themselves, the poor and unfortunate, should be the objects of our solicitude, even more than they who are more favorably situated.

As your pr siding officer I hope to be able to assist you in maintaining the best interests of this city. As the executive officer of this city I shall have no friends to reward nor enemies to punish, but shall at all times endeavor to deal justly with all; should my action at any time appear to you inconsistent with this declared purpose I ask your forbearance until we can reason together and fully understand each other; we have a common interest to serve and I trust we will be able to work in the strictest harmony.

The best possible government for the least possible cost should be our aim; there are many things pertaining to the city government that I am not now familiar with but in respect to which I shall take occasion hereafter and in the near future to call your attention.

The greatest care must be exercised by us in the management of the city's finances, and this part of our work must receive our most careful thought. I am advised that the city's income is at present less than its expenses; these conditions inevitably lead to an empty treasury and a depreciated credit and ultimately to the greatest embarrassment; necessary expenditures must be made and are always right and proper but lavish expenditures and an inconsiderate use of the people's money are to be deprecated and must be avoided.

Ever be careful of the trust to you committed and your duty then, and not until then, will be performed.

ROBERT MAYS, Mayor.

The O. N. G. Encampment at Eugene.

Mr. D. H. Roberts of this city, has just returned from Eugene where he has been attending the encampment of the 2d regiment which has just adjourned. Mr. Roberts is a member of C company of Eugene, and reports having had a pleasant and profitable time.

The regiment was commanded by Col. Lovell, who has proven himself a popular and well loved commander. As the regiment was on dress parade an officer of the line stepped up to Col. Lovell and in a few well chosen words presented him with a gold watch costing $150, the gift of the officers and men. It was a testimonial of love, for no man was allowed to give but a small amount so that all could feel they had right in the present and every man in the regiment was a contributor. There were ten companies in the command and all were pleased with the encampment.

The regiment went into camp on June 27th and broke camp on the 6th instant. The gallant second participated in a sham battle on July 4th which was alike pleasing to all who participated therein and the spectators.

New Delivery Wagon.

Our enterprising young grocers, Chrisman & Corson, have come out with a handsome new delivery wagon. It was purchased through Filloon Brothers, of this city, and is a beauty. The body is like the Chronicle "well read" while the running gear is yellow. The name of the firm in gilt letters is placed on both sides and altogether it is a very natty and handsome rig. We congratulate Chrisman & Corson on their excellent taste.

Wood for the Schools.

At the meeting of the directors of School District No. 12 held last evening the following bids for furnishing wood were received:

Jos. T. Peters & Co., for fir, per cord, $3.25; oak, $5.50. W. S. Myers, for fir, $2.65 per cord. Frank LaMott, for fir, $3.40 per cord.

The contract for oak was awarded to Jos. T. Peters & Co. and for fir to W. S. Myers.

W. C. T. U. COLUMN.

For God and Home and Native Land. EDITED BY THE DALLES W. C. T. UNION.

ON THE HEIGHTS THE AIR IS PUREST.

I look not at the road behind; The path that ever down doth wind Through slip and shame and their dark kind. But lift my heavy, tear stained eyes— Before me mountain tops arise— They seem the gates of paradise. From those white peaks pure breezes blow. To cool my fevered brow below— They come from the eternal snow. Through storms and griefs and doleful sighs, I must press on to sweet delights— The air is purest on the heights.

"Number 25!" "Bring on number 25!" "The court is waiting for number 25!" There was a little hanging back on the part of the usual prompt official, but in a moment more a tall, fine-looking woman strode defiantly up, and placing herself before the judge, awaited the usual questioning.

There was something so piteously desperate in the prisoner's appearance, and her great haunted eyes had a look of such anguish in their fierce depths, that the judge, accustomed to all kinds of sad sights and sounds, yet hesitated a moment before asking, with unwonted gentleness:

"What is your name, my woman, and where were you born?" "My name is Aileen Byrne, yer honor, an' I were born in Aberdeen, off the Scottish coastland."

"And you are charged with striking a man?" "I am, yer honor, an' I ken weel I striched the mon."

"And you meant to?" "I did, indeed, yer honor. I only wish I might a kilt him!" "That would hardly have been for your good, Aileen."

"He's kilt me, yer honor." The woman spoke with a low, impassioned wail, which caused respectful silence even in the lower court, where touching tones were often unheeded.

"McGinnis testifies that he never laid a hand on you," returned the judge. "He stabbed me to the heart, yer honor, an' the mon kens it well!" "Stabbed you? Suppose you tell us about it."

"I will, an' me voice will sarve me. Ye might no ken wha' it is, yer honor, to hev one bonnie laddie, an' none else ye could yer ain. I left the gude father o' me lad a-sleepin' in the kirkyard when I brought me wee sonie to this land. They say this be a countrie flowin' in 'w' milk an' honey, but oh, yer honor, it flows 'w' milk an' honey for some, an' for others, I mind me, it flows 'w' a very sea o' poison."

"For mony a year after I reach these shores I tollec in sun an' shade, but wha' greeted mysel' for a' the toil so long as me winsome Robbie were thrivin' in an' gettin' a muckle o' learnin' fra' his books! He grewed so fine an' that seat he went ta' to a gentleman's store to help 'w' the errants an' to mind the counter betimes. Then the mon McGinnis set his evil eye on the lad. I was forced to pass his den on my way to an' fra' the bread store, an' he minded 't was mesel' hated the uncanny look o' the place. An' one morn as I passet by, he said I needn't be so gran' about me b'y, he was no above ta'e a sup o' the liquor wi' the rest o' an' e'en. I begged me childt for the love o' God to let the stool alone. Me Robbie doin' no ill, an' promised to bide by me will an' wishes; but the mon McGinnis watchet o' night when't was cauld an' stormin', an' he gave the lad mony a cup o' his dretful drink, to warm him, he would say. I got upon me knees to me ain childt, an' prayed him to pass the place no more, but to gang hame by some ither road. Then I went mysel' to the mon 'w' out a soul in his body, an' p'raps ye ken, yer honor, a mither would beg an' pray for the bone o' her bone, an' the flesh o' her flesh. But he laughet in my face, an' I runned from his sight afore I did him ill."

"Las' night, yer honor, the noise at me door frightenet me; I runned wi' all me might to see wha' were the trouble, an' me Robbie swayed into the room an' fell at me feet—he was dhrunk, yer honor! Then McGinnis pokes his face in at me door, an' asket, 'Wha' think ye now, Mistress Byrne?' Did I mean to strike the mon, yer honor? An' could I, I'd a struck the breath fra' his body! Ye'd better keep me 'w' lock an' key the night till me gude man dies out; but oh, judge! there's naught to kill the gnawin' at me heart, an' wisht mesel' an' me lad were in the kirkyard aside the gude father!"

The woman at the bar extended a clenched hand as she added with vehemence:

"They telled me, an' I could prove the mon sold liquor to the bairn under age, the law could stoop him. It's mesel' 'w'd like to see the law stoop out o' the miserable rum-sellers o' the land! I tell ye, judge, there's naught but God's gruesome vengeance can stoop his ilk, an' when that falls it'll crush ye all! It's a weel enough to 'rest the mither as she strikes the mon as ruins her ain childt, but wait ye till the Lord Almighty strikes—aye—wait ye for that, an' ye dare!"

As the threatening voice stilled, the woman was pronounced discharged, and after his re-appearance in court, McGinnis was lodged in the county jail on a charge of having willfully sold or given intoxicating drink to a minor. His comrades declared the evidence on which he was convicted to have been illegal and uncertain.

Governor Taylor, of Tennessee, recently told of a colored clergyman who preached a sermon on the text, "And the multitudes came to him and he healed them of divers diseases." Said he: "My dying congregation, this is a terrible text. Disease is in the world. The small pox slays its hundreds, the cholera its thousands, and the yellow fever its tens of thousands, but, in the language of the text, if ye take the divers ye are gone. These earthly doctors can cure the small pox, cholera, and yellow fever, if they get there in time, but nobody but the good Lord can cure the divers."

Mrs. Humphrey, who conducts a temperance column in the Times, of Faulkton, Dakota, recently put the question in this vivid way:
