A DALLES PASTOR'S WORK

What Rev. O. D. Taylor was Accomplishing in the East.

The CHRONICLE is in receipt of clippings from various newspapers published in Buffalo, New York, from which we make some selections:

AN AGRERABLE SURPRISE AT THE DEAR-BORN STREET BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Dearborn street Baptist church honored itself in a very pleasant reception Friday night, June 12, given in honor of Rev. O. D. Taylor and wife, of The Dalles, Oregon. Bro. Taylor knows when as well as how, to help, and so at just the time of greatest need—the time when it was felt that something must be done to remove the financial burden from the church, and while as yet we were too faint-hearted to launch out, Bro. Taylor came to our rescue.

Taylor came to our rescue.

He made us believe that we could do it and do it now. Two thousand four hundred dollars was a large amount for a company of wage earners to raise. As David, by his example caused the princes and people to offer willingly toward the building of the temple, so Bro. Taylor, by his encouraging words and example so inspired others that on the morning of May 24th the whole amount was provided for and seven hundred dollars besides. hundred dollars besides.

A happier company than that assembled on that beautiful May morning is seldom if ever seen, and when the secretary Deacon Winship announced that thirty-one hundred dollars had been pledged we could hardly believe our own senses. The pastor, however, took the precaution to exact a pledge from the congregation not to be offended in case more than the needed amount should be pledged.

pledged.

It was this that prompted the ladies to arrange for the reception, and so show in some slight degree our appreciation of the timely services of Bro. Taylor. At about eight o'clock the people began to gather in the church parlors. A little later the congregation sang "All hail the power of Jesus name," followed by prayer by the pastor.

Mrs. Geo. E. Green sang, in her own pleasant style a solo entitled "Whether my heart be glad or no," to the delight

The pastor, Rev. G. R. Burnside made known to Brother and Sister Taylor the object of the gathering, hich up to this time was a profound secret to them.

JEFFERSON SIMPLICITY APOCH- stration Brother and Sister Taylor made some very appropriate and affecting remarks. An additional surprise was the presentation to them of life size portraits A very absured impression is abroad of the pastor and his wife. Then came as to the simplicity of the fives and the cordial "hand shake" in which all

Up to June 18th Mondy's warehouse had purchased a coach and four for the ceremony which did not arrive on time, and thus a simple necessity, through the lapse of years, has been turned into a virtue, and an incident is now credited to "Jefferson Simplicity."

The Dalles had received 1,618,750 pounds of wool, and it is likely there had been an equal amount stored in the Wasco warehouse. By the middle of June little over one-half of the wool is delivered at The Dalles, so at a rough estimate, it is safe to say in the neighborhood of 5,000,000 pounds of wool will be shipped from The Dalles this season.—

A Drummer Spiridhes.

It was in the old days, when traveling by stage coach was more common than of Paris. Monseigneur Affre, voyaging to a nearby parish, took place in a diligence with a number of gentlemen of different social stations. Among the group was a young drummer for a busiess house who, like his successors of a later era, was ever on the lookout for a good story in his own mind and practical joke. The clerical standing of the archbishop did not exempt him even from attempts at banter or witticism, but with the consideration he thought due to the company present he passed the youngster's efforts over with merely an indulgent smile. Waxing bolder by Land for Sale and Houses to Rent this apparent immunity, the young traveler at last went beyond all bounds of proper respect.

"Can you tell me, your grace," he tomary courtly manner and without the least appearance of offense or resentment, replied that he could not.

"Because," replied this clown in his own little circus, "the one bears a cross on his breast and the other on his back." The sally, such as it was, was met by the most frigid silence by all the pasngers save the archbishop, who smilingly inquired:

'Now, in my turn, I'd like you to tell us the difference between a commercial traveler and an ass?"

As though it were a mystery as deep as the Sphinx the young wit pondered for some time and then gave it up. "I don't see it," he confessed.
"Neither do I," replied the archbishop.

The Conversational Circle.

The circle must not be too large. say nothing of public banquets of strang-They are a contradiction in terms. Big dinner parties of ill assorted guests also are failures from a conversationist point of view. A fireside, or a table, round if possible, and, say, four or half a dozen guests, are sufficient. More will break up into separate knots, and fewer mean a tete-a-tete. "I had," says Thorean, "at Walden three chairs in my house, one for solitude, two for friendship, three for society." The hermit Thoreau in his but at Walden was wiser than the man who looks for society in a

An unhappy husband, living in Portland place, whose wife inflicted huge parties upon him, was standing in a very forlorn condition leaning against the chimney piece. A gentleman came up to him and said: "Sir, as neither of us is acquainted with any of the people here, I think we had best go home." Social crowds must not expect the great men amongst them to talk well. She must have been a most unreasonable person who was disappointed with Napoleon because, when a lot of ladies were presented to him, he only remarked to each of them how hot it was. - Gen tleman's Magazine.

Polson by Absorption. The slew absorption of many poisons changes in some more or less modified form the complexion, but arsenic and ammonia show their effect about as quickly as any. The popular belief that arsenic clears the complexion has led many silly women to kill themselves with it in small, continued doses. It produces a waxy, ivorylike appearance of the skin during a certain stage of the poisoning, but its terrible after effects have become too well known to make it of common use as a cosmetic.

The effects of ammonia upon the complexion are directly opposite from that of arsenic. The first symptoms of ammonia poisoning which appears among those who work in ammonia factories is a discoloration of the skin of the nose and forehead. This gradually extends over the face, until the complexion has a stained, blotched and unsigntly appear-With people who take ammonia into their systems in smaller doses, as with their water and food, these striking symptoms do not appear so soon. The only effect of the poison that is visible for a time is a general unwholesome ness and sallowness of the complexion.— St. Paul Globe.

The Notices Are All Right. Visitors to the clerk's office of the superior court who have occasion to use the writing table that stretches across the room have been startled recently by large placards tacked about two feet apart informing whom it may con-cern that "these inkstands must not be taken away." Since "these inkstands" are about the size of the average hat, and are kept filled with ink, the warning seems quite as gratuitous as it would be to placard notices to people not to walk off with a red hot stove.

A lawyer who took offense at these notices got one of the office veterans in a corner the other day and asked him if he did not think such a notice was carrying a joke perilously far. The veteran shook his head, and in saddened tones thus answered:

"In the mistakes of the past we should

Do not suppose that a young woman is necessarily in an unamiable frame of mind when you meet her bearing a muddy overshoe in hand. The relief that she experienced when she gave up trying to keep the thing on more than balanced her vexation at spoiling a glove and boot; but oh! the things that women think and don't say when at every step a misfit overshoe drops down at the heel would make a volume for the govern-
