The Chronicle is the Only Paper in The Dalles that Receives the Associated Press Dispatches.

These are the days that try men's souls, and women's too, and make one even wish that he were—off fishing. All the poetry and romance of life is knocked out of one adown whose burning cheek and heated spinal column there flows scorching rivulets of briny sweat. What matters it that the harvest sun is painting the grain fields a golden hue, or clothing forest and dell with varying tints of autumn beauty, or fixing the russet on the ripening peach, or staining the purple on the luscious grape, or stamping the gorgeous coloring on a thousand flowers, we only know that that same sun is squeezing the life out of us, as the deft mixologist squeezes a lemon for a summer drink.

To live a poem under thick green boughs With patches here and there of blue above— Mistled with crooning of the brooding dove, And plus trees sighing of the wind that blows From cool high mountain range and arctic snows.

The news papers that have been censuring Governor Penoyer for ousting Dr. Lane from the position of superintendent of the insane asylum, appear to have been doing so in complete ignorance of the facts. It is asserted by the Dispatch that only two ballots were taken by the state board, which has the appointment, and that on the first ballot the governor voted for Dr. Williamson, "a thorough and reliable democrat," and only on the second ballot did the governor vote for Dr. Rowland. As the other two members of the board were in favor of that gentleman and could have elected him without the governor's vote, it is only natural to suppose that the governor voted for Dr. Rowland to make the vote unanimous. In any case we really see nothing to make a fuss about.

Very encouraging statistics are published for the month of May last, showing the increase of trade with Brazil, under the working of the reciprocity treaty, in the five principal articles exported to that country. These articles consist of resin, tar etc.; pickled pork and bacon; sewing machines and wood and its manufactures; mining and mechanical tools, implements and machinery, which are all included in the reciprocal agreement. Of these articles there were shipped to Brazil, from the United States, during the month of May 1890 an amount valued at $164,716; while for the month of May 1891 the value rose to $634,098, making an increase of $469,382, or nearly 400 per cent. This showing undoubtedly justifies the fondest expectations of the friends of reciprocity.

The directors of our district fair have done everything in their power and will continue to do everything in their power to make the next fair a success. They have most anxiously and carefully studied to place such premiums as they were able to offer so as to meet the wishes and conditions of exhibitors. If in any important respect they have failed in this regard we are confident they will make amends, if it is possible or convenient to do so. It remains with the farmers of this section to make the fair a success or a failure. The fine crops of this season, in every department of agriculture, leave no excuse for a poor exhibit. Let us all work together and make it a duty to have something to show and the coming fair can be made by far the best one we have ever held, and a time of pleasure and profit to the farmers of the whole district.

Our esteemed evening contemporary tells of a gentleman of Grant county, formerly of The Dalles, who owns a round million of sheep and some more—"a thousand sheep on a thousand hills, etc." We are glad to hear of a Dalles boy who "gets there," as this one assuredly has, with both pedal extremities. If we can only induce him to ship his wool by the Regulator, the success of The Dalles, Portland & Astoria Navigation company is assured.

The one thing that the two great political parties are, all along the line, trying to dodge, is the silver question. Both are afraid to come out squarely in favor of or against free silver and the silver men are just as determined that they shall.

Efforts to organize the farmers' alliance in the southern states are not meeting with success. The press is vigorously fighting the movement and the Kansas politicians who have gone into the southern states on a stumping tour are meeting with a cold reception. It is even hinted that they may be waited on by night riders and requested to return to their native heath.

Fifteen years ago there were no oranges shipped from California. Last year more than 3000 car loads were sent east. In 1875 the Southern Pacific road shipped 500 pounds of raisins; last year 26,000,000. In seventeen years there has arisen an industry which in 1890 returned to California people $8,000,000.

Notice is hereby given to all persons knowing themselves indebted to the estate of H. Solomon to call at the store and settle the same, as all book accounts must be settled. J. R. DAWSON, Assignee.

All city warrants registered prior to October 3rd, 1889, will be paid if presented at my office. RICHARD C. CLOSTER, City Treasurer.

I want to buy a span of good ponies weighing from 900 to 1000 pounds each. They must be sound, gentle and well broken to harness. Enquire at Tom Ward's stable, RICHARD C. CLOSTER, The Dalles, Or., July 22, 1891.

Doc. W. F. Osburn, district organizer of the American Federation of Trades, left for Portland this morning.

Something About a Great Preacher.
 Mr. Spurgeon has a strong partiality for the fragrant weed. On Sunday evenings after the service at the Tabernacle he may be seen reclining in the cushions of his carriage and puffing away at his pipe as he is driven home. He says that after a hard day's work in his study he has a soothing and refreshing effect upon his nerves. Westwood, his home at Bush Hill, Norwood, is perhaps the finest place owned by a dissenting parson in this country. He has a magnificent collection of plants, shrubs, etc., from all parts of the world. The grounds are laid out on a most lavish scale, and all the appointments of the place are in keeping.

Mr. Spurgeon has sometimes been remonstrated with by persons more orthodox than himself—if such can be conceived—for driving on Sunday. His report is that he is under grace, while his horses are under the law, so that their Sabbath comes on the Saturday and his own on the Sunday, which is a most convenient arrangement. But it is a fact that he takes care the animals shall have at least one day's rest in seven, which is both prudent and humane.

The reporter's transcript of his Sunday morning's sermon has to be in his hands by 7 o'clock on Monday morning, when he carefully revises the MS. Whether he makes any provision or stipulation for the shorthand writer's rest day does not transpire.

Mr. Spurgeon spends much time and pains on the preparation of his sermons. He has two secretaries regularly reading for him, and when he has fixed upon a subject he sets these gentlemen to hunt up in his ample library and elsewhere matter likely to be useful to him. Then he does the work of sifting and construction.—London Star.

Outlays That Bring Incomes.
 An advertising agent gave me some interesting items today about the amounts paid by some of the leading houses here for advertising. The company who is supposed to lead the list is a baking powder company which spends $500,000 yearly in making their wares known. Following them the Pearlina people come, spending $300,000 annually. The Sapolio company is credited with spending $150,000. Among the dry goods people, who are about the largest advertisers in the daily papers, E. J. Denning & Co. stand first. They lay out $100,000 a year in newspaper advertising. Lord & Taylor are reckoned next, with an expenditure of $60,000. The big Sixth avenue bazars run anywhere from $40,000 to $60,000 a year, and the merchant who does not spend $25,000 a year nowadays simply "isn't in it," so far as heavy advertising goes.

Of course where such large sums are expended there is a great deal of thought put upon the subject and the advertising man is an important personage. So deeply interested, indeed, are advertisers in the art that a distinct literature is rapidly springing up, publishing the latest ideas by the best experts. Who knows but talented writers of advertisements will yet be admitted to the Authors' club?—New York Cor. Washington Star.

Our Future Trade with Asia.
 The commercial outlook of Oregon is westward. It is nearer by the breadth of a continent to the markets of the old east and of the Pacific islands than are the Atlantic ports. No just estimate can be placed upon the future volume and value of the trade with Asia. No one nation can control it, but the struggle to possess it will be mainly between England and our Pacific coast states. British statesmen, with proverbial sagacity, foresaw this struggle, and it was not the result of accident that in settling the Oregon boundary we lost the island of Vancouver and half of Puget sound.

In this struggle the new northwest will have an advantage over California in distance, and in the fact that the ocean stream which rises off the coast of Asia and flows eastward to the American continent gives to every ship bound for a northwestern port a gain of twenty miles in every twenty-four hours. The region will have an advantage over Great Britain in the local production of the staple articles required for the Asiatic trade. He who should now undertake to estimate the commerce of the Pacific coast with Asia and the Pacific islands twenty-five years hence would find few who would not consider his estimate exaggerated.—Senator Dolph in Forum.

The Story of a Book Clerk.
 Mark Twain told me a good story the other day. It illustrated his point that all the clerks in our book stores are not the best informed in literary matters. The humorist's wife and a friend recently went into a book store, in a city of good size, not many miles from New York. Accosting a clerk Mrs. Clemens said that her friend desired to secure a copy of Taine's "Ancient Regime."
 "Beg pardon," said the clerk, "what book did you say?"
 Mrs. Clemens repeated the author and title of the book.
 Going to the rear of the store, the clerk soon returned, only to inquire, "May I ask you to repeat the name of the author?"
 "Why, Taine," replied Mrs. Clemens, becoming a little annoyed.
 Assuming an air of superior knowledge, and looking at his customers with a piteous glance of sympathy, he ventured to Mrs. Clemens:
 "Pardon me, madam, but you have the name a trifle wrong. You mean Twain—not Taine."
 And it takes Mark Twain to tell the story.—Edward W. Bok's Letter.

He Got Excited.
 Belfast, Me., has a funny citizen. He discovered his house to be on fire, and got so excited that he forgot to give the alarm but began throwing his household goods out of the window, much to the wonderment of his neighbors, who watched his antics for some time without knowing the cause. Fifteen minutes later they saw the fire break out of the roof and they gave the alarm.—Detroit Free Press.
