DOCTOR MARCUS WHITMAN.

A very interesting communication is published in a late issue of the Union-Journal from Rev. Eells in regard to Dr. Marcus Whitman. His authority seems to effectually settle the question of Dr. Whitman's visit east. Quite a controversy has been going on as to what object Dr. Whitman had in making that winter ride of three thousand miles to Washington. It seems that some would rob his name of having done valuable service in saving this country to the United States.

Dr. Whitman's work is now a matter of history. It was unfortunate that any dispute should arise as to what he had done or what were his motives. But his memory seems all the more dear that it is clearly established that he did go to Washington to save Oregon and Washington to the United States. It also seems strange that no one until recently thought of searching the war department records for an account of Dr. Whitman's visit. That proof settles the point that he went to impress on congress the value of this coast and the bill drafted by him ought to be interesting reading.

Especially do Walla Walla people take great interest in the life and work of Dr. Whitman, and cherish anything that will keep green his memory. It was in this valley that his missionary labors were performed, and around the site of the grave a most beautiful land has blossomed into existence. His name is preserved in many ways in Walla Walla, and as long as the city shall live the children will know and love the memory of Dr. Whitman.

THE NEXT BEST THING TO UNLIMITED PAPER MONEY.

The president of the Argentine Republic, we are told, endorses free coinage of silver. That ought to settle it. He is a financier of large and varied experience and his opinion on all matters of "cheap money and plenty of it" ought to have weight. But some men will never learn anything. A short time ago this same president endorsed unlimited paper money. The people of Argentine got $260,000,000 of it, enough to give a per capita larger than Jerry Simpson ever dreamed of. You can buy all you want of this money today for 20 cents on the dollar. The president admits, in his annual message, that the financial panic which followed this inflation resulted in a loss of the people of a thousand million. He states that the National bank owes the treasury sixty millions in currency and two millions in gold which it never can pay but he thinks, that the "next best thing to unlimited paper is unlimited free coinage of silver." The words read like a sarcasm. It is out of the frying pan into the fire. If he had said "next worst thing" he might have been nearer the truth, for no country could be in a much worse condition, financially than the Argentine Republic and it was their fiat paper money that brought it about.

WHAT SHALL THE HARVEST BE?

"What will the harvest be?" asks an exchange and then proceeds to answer in the following fashion: "The usual good crop is assured. If the alliance plan of finance is adopted the sub-treasury will be loaded from cellar to garret with non-perishable wheat, oats, barley, potatoes, pumpkins and turnips, and unless the farmer proposes to insist on 'class legislation,' if this privilege is extended, the fruit raiser will bank his apples and draw good greenbacks on them to the amount of eighty cents on the dollar, which would probably be ten per cent more than he could peddle them out for cash. Then the saw mill man will bank his non-perishable saw logs and railroad ties and the herdsmen will pile up his wool and hides and draw his right hand vest pocket full of government promises to redeem, drawing, not to exceed wear and tear percentage and 'round we go.'" Yes, verily verily I say unto you, gentlemen down in front, there is lots of fun brewing in Oregon."

W. P. Mounts is building a small steam yacht (8-horse-power engine) on the John Day river for Mr. Clarno. We believe this will be the first steam boat ever built or launched on the John Day. Mr. Clarno intends using the yacht solely as a pleasure boat, in which to glide in the cool summer evenings over the fine stretch of six or eight miles of smooth, deep water in the vicinity of his ranch. Fossil Journal.

CROP-WEATHER BULLETIN NO. 20. Report for the Week Ending Saturday, July 25, 1891. EASTERN OREGON—WEATHER.

The week has been the warmest of the season, the 24th being especially warm. The weather has been cloudless and no rain is reported to have fallen.

CROPS.

The warm weather has brought spring wheat rapidly forward, fall wheat is being cut, headers are at work in the Columbia river valley; in Union county and south of the Blue mountains the spring was more backward and harvest will begin about the 10th of August. All reports indicate wheat to be better than was expected. By all odds the grain crop will be the largest ever produced. Reports from the wheat districts of the world other than the United States, indicate a general deficiency. This means a demand for American wheat and good prices. Already there are signs of increased prices and it bids fair to be as high or higher than previous prices.

Oregon is to be congratulated on its immense yield and prospective good prices, resulting in prosperous times for the agriculturist.

The humor of the Yamhill Ledger convinces us that something has tickled the editor in a degree far beyond what has been usual. He says that Senator Veatch would make an excellent man to pit against Mr. Herman for congress. It will be a long time before we are called upon to vote for congressman, but this notion of matching a hog against a lion is as good to laugh at now as it would be a thousand years hence. The Ledger man has probably been eating smartweed instead of his usual Yamhill greens.—Klamath County Star.

The hoot-owls of politics may cry again and again that their measures have given the country prosperity; but when good horse sense agitates the logical sieve the one golden grain of truth remains, and horse sense gives the lie to the hoot-owl. The crops give the prosperity every time.—Klamath County Star.

The following is the only advertisement found in the Atterian for laborers: "Wanted—One thousand men to discharge schooners and load up with Saratoga chips at the standard." The Standard is a saloon.—Salem Statesman.

Don't Rush.

That is, do not leave a comfortable country for an uncertain city home. Here is a paragraph saying that the average wages of 150,000 girls in the city of New York is sixty cents a day, including the cash girls at two dollars. Dedicating room rent, tens of thousands of these girls cannot have enough for comfortable clothing and nourishing food. This should seem as a fair and country girls who are planning to seek their fortunes in cities.

Even in a young city like Minneapolis the cases of disappointment and destitution are numerous and painful. There are scores of applicants for every place, and it is getting worse all the time.

Better keep away from cities unless you have remarkable ability. This applies even to those who are seeking for ordinary housework. An advertisement for a cook, a chambermaid or a girl for general work will be answered by twenty or thirty the same day. The intelligence offices are continually thronged with young women looking for work of this kind.

There is a demand for private women who can do good work in private homes. Some of these places are not desirable, perhaps not tolerable, no matter how high the wages. There are mistresses of homes of wealth who are ready to pay any price for thoroughly competent girls, but they do not know how to treat a girl.

They do not intend to be unjust. The trouble is, they do not know a good girl when they have one. Allowing for these and other exceptions, there remain hundreds of homes in Minneapolis where first class domestics would be welcomed to fair treatment and generous compensation.—Housekeeper's Weekly.

Too Much Feminine Politeness.

A street car conductor said "Young women in Washington indulge in a peculiar sort of politeness which is more calculated to injure the feelings of others than any rudeness that they could very well contrive. You will often see a girl of twenty odd get up in a street car to give her seat to a lady, quite a stranger, who is no more than a middle aged. This is intended for a courtesy, presumably, but it is a very silly one, because its obvious intention is to exhibit a deference to superior age. Now, no woman likes to find herself regarded in that point of view, and the worst of it is that it is impossible for the victim of such a performance to show any resentment. All she can do is to decline to accept the place vacated, which is not very much satisfaction. "I myself have frequently noticed women who had perceptibly passed their first youth offering their seats to others hardly older than themselves, so that it might seem as if this was a novel way of claiming to be young at some one else's expense. My observation is that few people, however old, are otherwise than mortified by being given seats in this manner on the cars. Old gentlemen are not less sensitive on the point than old ladies."—Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Table Made of Human Flesh.

A writer in Harper's Magazine of February, 1855, gave the following description of a remarkable table made by Professor Segato: "It comprises every portion of the human body transformed into stone, destined to endure as long as the world itself if not ground to pieces by violence. There are really two tables, one finished and polished, the other incomplete, made of mosaics formed by sections of human bones, brains, lungs, blood vessels, intestines and muscles, all as firm as marble, and showing the internal structure of each.

"Without an explanation a visitor would suppose this to be from some mosaic manufactory, for they are symmetrically arranged in squares, triangles and circles, with the great variety of colors nicely graduated. Different portions of the human body, showing the internal anatomy, are so perfectly petrified as to form a fine object of study for the medical student. Even morbid anatomy was subjected with entire success to this process. Animals of all kinds, chickens and reptiles, in short, nothing that has blood was capable of resisting Segato's petrifying touch."

Hard to Get.

Doctors are sometimes more considerate of their patients' needs than they are of their circumstances. It is easier to prescribe a journey to Europe or Bermuda than it is to fill the prescription.

A gentleman whose affairs had become very much embarrassed, and who was overworked and overworked, went to a celebrated specialist, broken down with nervous exhaustion.

"Now," said the doctor, "there is only one thing that you must have, that is absence of worry, absence of care and freedom from all preoccupations."

"Much obliged for your prescription," said the gentleman, "but you've left out one important thing in it."

"What is that?"

"You haven't put in the apothecary's street and number."—Exchange.

Graduates Who Use Ribbon.

A grave professor concerned with reading the essays of a large number of graduates from a co-educational college demoralized an old respectable tradition when in a private letter he writes: "Brass clasps are a great improvement on pink ribbon for tying up the loose pages of wise young women's wise essays, but the present generation of girls graduates would never think of choosing ribbon anyhow, it is commonly chosen, cotton twine or mauling." Herein is shockingly exemplified the influence of the mind masculine over the character feminine. The knot of ribbon is still very much the rule in schools where girls alone do congregate.—Exchange.

No Details Needed.

Mrs. Blank—The paper tells of a postmaster who was appointed by John Quincy Adams, and has held the position ever since. Was he an unusually good man, do you think?

Mr. Blank (an experienced citizen)—Oh, not at all, not at all. It was an unusually poor office.—New York Weekly.
