LOCAL BREVITIES.

Mr. C. S. McNally, a prominent architect of Salem, is in the city.

The mayor has issued orders to the marshal to enforce the cow law.

Mis. L. A. Brown reports the loss of a worsted crazy quilt, Any person having the same will please leave it at Mr. Beaslev's.

W. S. Graham, the restaurant man, will open again about the end of the week in the store next door east of Billy Jones' cigar store on First street.

Louis Rorden has rented a part of the Bettingen tin store and will be ready for business tomorrow. A stock of crockery and glaseware will arrive today.

The mayor of Walla Walla telegraphed to Mayor Mays yesterday, asking him what help was needed here. Mayor Mays replied that contributions would be thankfully received and that our necessities were very considerable.

Our old friend Oliver H. Cole is again in the city adjusting the losses of that reliable corporation, the Liverpool, London & Globe Insurance Co. His fre-quent visits here have made him familiar to many of our citizens, and especially so to the policy holders of that Editor of the Chronicle: company, as his settlements have always reflected not only credit to him but to the company and its resident representative.

MADE FROM ONE TREE.

A Train of Pullman Cars Built From Giant California Redwood.

The Tulare people are going to exhibit one of the results of the California climate in an altogether original way, months. Considering everything even the pessimist might find something in present indications to heighten his says the Chicago News. There is a tree in that country which is a fair specimen gloomy outlook. of what the redwood can be if it grows enough. It stands in a gorge deep

It is not cut yet, so the measurements so far taken may be at fault a bit one way or the other, but they are near enough the truth to make safe betting. The tree is 390 feet high, ninety-six feet through at the very base. A log of clean smooth wood that will measure ninety feet in length and average twenty feet in diameter can easily be cut out of it. That is what the Tulare people propose to do, and having the log they will utilize it to the benefit of the world's fair and the glory of Tulare. The tree grows well upwards the headwaters of the Ka- 9-5td. weah river and the great log will have to be carried or moved in some way to the railroad at Visalia, a distance of nearly sixty miles.

It is a stupendous undertaking, but the people of the country do not stop at triffes. In all likelihood the trunk will the cut in sections lengthwise, and then the sections will be put on trucks and taken over the log road. Ox teams will do the hauling, probably a score of span to the section. In many places a road will have to be cut through and built up. Crooks and turns and precipitous slants will have to be avoided, and often when will have to be avoided, and often when the road is uphill it will require the combined strength of all the oxen to haul a section of the tree up the steep. When finally the giant of Tulare woods is where it can be moved on railroad cars it will have cost hundreds and hundreds of dollars and six months will have passed from the time the men with aves started to fell it axes started to fell it.

Then the important work will begin. The log will be made whole by the putting together of the sections. Expert woodsmen will cut it across in the middle, making two lengths, each forty-five feet long. Each of these lengths will then be hewn into the shape of ordinary then be hewn into the shape of ordinary railway passenger coaches. The rough bark of the tree will be the roof of the car, and on the sides the ends of the natural wood will be left unpolished. The inside will be hollowed out windows and doors put in, and the in-terior finished after the fashion of Pull-man cars. One will be a buffet and din ing-car, with appartments for bath, barber-shop and kitchen. The other will be a sleeper, with an observation room. Platforms will be put at the ends and ordinary trucks underneath, and to prevent the transformed tree from fall-ing to pieces under any circumstances, ing to pieces under any circumstances, heavy bands of iron will be put around the body of the car.

Unnecessary Sufferings.

There is little doubt but that many There is little doubt but that many persons suffer for years with ailments that could easily be cured by the use of some simple remedy. The following in-cident is an illustration of this fact: My wife was troubled with a pain in her side the greater part of the time for three years, until cured by Chamber-lain's Pain Balm. It has, I think, per-manantly cured her. We also have used manently cured her. We also have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy whenever needed and believe it to be the best in the world. P. M.
