The covered flat boat at Rockland has been christened the "Moody & Smith Opera House."

New ties are being placed in the main track of the railroad directly in front of the Umatilla House.

Superintendent Troy Shelly has moved his family into The Dalles where they expect to remain during the winter.

J. O. Warner of Nansene, who lately rented his ranch on the Canyon City road, will leave in the morning for Southern Arizona.

Fourteen candidates for teachers' certificates are being examined at the court house by superintendent Shelly, C. L. Gilbert and Miss Annie Lang.

There will be a meeting of the I. O. G. T. next Saturday evening at in the Y. M. C. A. hall. A full attendance of officers and members is desired.

Freight trains run through Main street now at a noticeably slower gait than they used to, a reformation that did not come a minute too soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Young of Bake Oven, Mrs. Agnes Hope of Cascade Locks and Mr. H. A. Pratt of Hood River came up on the Regulator last night.

Dick Palmer of Dufur has discovered some very promising gold bearing rock somewhere in the Cascade mountains, the exact location of which, for prudential reasons, he withholds for the present.

Ladies intending to contribute to the supply of refreshments for the moonlight excursion on the Regulator tomorrow night will please leave their contributions at the store of Mr. Leslie Butler.

George Grey, of the firm of Grant Frane & Grey of Grant, is in the city. From him we learn that from eighty-two to eighty-three cents a bushel was being paid for wheat at Grant Wednesday when he left.

Professor U. G. Hurley will deliver four free lectures in the brick school-house commencing tomorrow (Friday) evening, ending Tuesday evening.

The merchants of Goldendale having pledged themselves to support the Regulator, the covered flat boat intended for the Hood River landing has been moved over to North Dalles to accommodate the traffic.

Just as we go to press Major Ingalls calls to say that owing to the excursion's falling on Friday evening, he will defer his lecture till the next evening, Saturday. The major never likes to interfere with any good work that the ladies are connected with and he desires that they shall form the best part of his audience.

The ladies of the Good Intent society of the M. E. Church are leaving nothing undone that could add to the pleasure of the excursion tomorrow evening, and a most enjoyable time is expected. Let it not be said that this effort of these excellent ladies to raise funds needed to furnish the church building soon to be erected with seats and other necessary furniture did not meet with success.

Mr. H. S. Ward of this city brought into this office this morning four apples of the Red June variety of the second crop of one of four trees now growing in the orchard of E. Stephens of Rock Creek, Gilliam county.

A prominent lawyer of Goldendale was made the target of a little pistol practice on Tuesday night last that made it for a time very uncomfortable for the target. A drunken fellow who has, or thinks he has, a complaint against the lawyer getting primed with bug juice which raised his courage to the murder point, staggered up to the lawyer's window while that gentleman was comfortably lying under his own blankets and emptied the revolver into the room.

Today witnesses the close of what has probably been, all things considered the most prosperous term the Academy has ever known.

Even the best of us are caught napping sometimes. Witness the following: Teacher—"What position does Mr. Gladstone hold?" Pupil—"He is Prime minister of England." Teacher—"Is he at the present time?" Pupil—"No, he is dead now." We are very glad the pupil was mistaken and hope the "grand old man" may still have many years of usefulness in store for him.

One of the needs of the Academy is a larger reference library—While there are so many valuable books on the shelves, there is a noticeable lack of standard works in science, both natural and political. We trust the generosity of some friend of the Academy will supply this need at no distant day.

There is one thing connected with our school life which deserves especial commendation, namely, the universal good-nature displayed on the play ground. The play is always vigorous and engaged in promiscuously by large and small; but it is never rough nor is there ever a display of temper over some discomfiture. Defeat is always accepted gracefully and is a necessity for some one. That this speaks well for the self-control of the players hardly needs assertion to any one acquainted with the quarrels arising from boyish sports.

The following letter was received yesterday by Mr. George W. Fillion from a prominent capitalist of Portland and it so fully expresses the general sentiment of the people up this way that we have requested permission of Mr. Fillion to publish it, only suppressing the name of the author because the letter was not written for publication.

PORTLAND, Or., Nov. 6, 1891. Geo. W. Fillion, The Dalles, Or.: DEAR SIR—The question of opening the Columbia river for traffic from the head of navigation to the sea is now receiving the attention its importance deserves.

Your people are working in the right direction. The portage road, if a practicable route can be had, should be built on the Oregon side and should be built by state money and placed under the control of the state of Oregon.

Yesterday, November 11th at the residence of Rev. William Mitchell of this city, Mr. E. J. Rand, of Shelton, Wash., to Miss Luella J. Turner, of Hood River.

Held up. As Sylvester W. Mason was on his way last night driving his team to his home on the bluff back of the brewery and just as he had reached a sort of recess off the road near the top of the hill where considerable rock has been taken out at various times for building purposes, two masked men sprang out from the recess and one of them who held a club in his hands grabbed the horses by the bridle while the other presenting the pistol at Mr. Mason's face ordered him to come down from the wagon.

They All Feel the Same Way. It is gratifying to know that public sympathy for the people's line of boats is not confined to the people living tributary to The Dalles. Persons from distant portions of the Inland Empire have caught the infection and frequently evince it in a practical way.

The auction sale at Harris' dry goods store will be postponed for the present during the indisposition of Auctioneer Crossen. Goods will be sold, however, at auction prices till the sale is resumed.
