FRIDAY, NOV. 13, 1891. The Chronicle is the Only Paper in The Dalles that Receives the Associated Press Dispatches.

LOCAL BREVITIES. A large deposit of iron ore has been discovered in Union county.

The first snow of the season fell on the Klickitat hills on Wednesday night.

Dr. Siddall has eight carpenters working on his new buildings and the work is going through with a rush.

The great natural gas supply which made such a boom in Pennsylvania and Ohio a few years ago, has got so low that manufacturers in Pittsburg and vicinity are returning to the coal, and Pittsburg will again be "the smoky city."

Portland has a free bridge. The Madison street bridge was turned over to the city on last Wednesday evening.

During a speech recently, Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, the eminent Methodist divine said: "I tell my ushers to treat a duke with courtesy, but a reporter with reverence, for a reporter nowadays is a person of much consequence."

The old Nickelsen block, now the property of D. M. French, is nearing completion, and will be a handsome and substantial structure; but from the color of the paint now being put on the cornice one would infer that D. M. has started in to paint the town red.

The members of C. Company, 3rd regiment, O. N. G., will assemble at the old court house Monday evening, November 16, 1891, at 8 p. m. for the purpose of taking measurements for new uniforms.

Uncle Billy Kelaay, a prominent sheep man from across the DesChutes, is in the city. Wasco county came very near losing Uncle Billy when the last slice was cut off and added to Sherman, but we are glad to know he is still a citizen of this county and likely to remain so.

The Baker yesterday, ran up against the piling at the east end of the Cascade incline and broke some of them "square off." A fifty cent passenger was landed all right, but the damages inflicted by the Baker will amount to about $150.00, which the Union Pacific will have to, or ought to, make good to the state.

The city council of Portland has passed an ordinance which is to take effect on January 1st which fixes the license for the sale of spirituous liquors at $400 per annum: malt liquors, $200: restaurants which sell liquors with meals at $100 and drug stores which sell for mechanical purposes in quantities of not less than a gallon at $50. All saloons must close between midnight and 2 a. m. Mayor Mason takes the ground that the council cannot enforce the Sunday law.

I. C. Nickelsen has opened out, in his new and handsome store, a very complete stock of staple and holiday goods and he is receiving very flattering encouragement from a business point of view. He has a full line of the celebrated Kranish & Bach pianos in magnificent styles of rosewood, mahogany and walnut of which he has sold half a dozen to our best citizens during the past few months. Mr. Nickelsen is the sole agent for these instruments in The Dalles and anyone contemplating the purchase of a piano should call and see them.

Ole Dahl, the man arrested for his strange ways the other day was examined yesterday by Dr. W. E. Reinhart and pronounced insane. He will be taken to Salem. He seems to have lost his mental balance through the combined influence of a morbid study of religion and water-witching. He claims to have two sons in Portland and a sister in the Washington insane asylum. Among his effects were found a number of notes for small sums from well known citizens of Sherman county and a canceled note given to Scott & Hamilton of Grass valley. A receipt for box rent, signed by the postmaster of La Center and letters bearing his name and addressed to that place were also found. Dahl seems a quiet inoffensive man but, poor fellow, he is crazy as a loon.

B. Wolff, of the east end, has an ax, just a common ax, that has up to date cost him exactly $3.00. The original price was $1.10 for the ax and handle, separate. Wolff took it to a neighboring carpenter and had the handle put in. On the way home he met a friend. The friend admired the ax and wanted to see it. He saw it—but just about that time Wolff lost it. After a while another friend came around, innocent like, and told Wolff if he would "set 'em up" he would find his ax. Wolff consented, and was led to a saloon, where the ax was found soaked for 90 cents. Wolff paid the 90 cents, and then spent a dollar "setting 'em up." That's how the ax cost Wolff $3.00.

The New York World says: Anthropologists all over the world are said to be aroused by the proposition of Professor Putnam, of Harvard, to gather at the World's Fair in Chicago, living representatives of every living race of aborigines to be found on the American Continent, in their own houses and costumes. Should the proposal be carried out students of man from all over the world will flock to America for the occasion and seize eagerly this only opportunity ever afforded. The cave dwellers, whose mode of life Walt McDougall treats with much historical correctness in his recent fiction, will then be either demonstrated as actually existing or proved to have died out.

An old northwest pioneer of the early fifties got loaded with tarantula juice last night and as the result found himself in the august presence of Recorder Menefee this morning. He claims to be a British Columbian and when charged with the crime of drunkenness indignantly denied the insinuation, claiming that while he might have drank a little "they would not call it drunk up where he came from." The recorder disclaimed the right to measure United States morality by that of the "bloody Britishers" and inflicted the usual fine which this subject of an effete monarchy was unable to dig up.

The following Thanksgiving proclamation was issued from his office in the capitol Thursday by Governor Penoyer: Inasmuch as gratitude for favors received should find due expression, I do hereby appoint Thursday, the 28th of November, as a day of public thanksgiving to Almighty God, to be observed by the whole people of Oregon in the usual, appropriate manner in return for the blessings of peace and plenty which have been bestowed upon them during the past year.

Done at the capitol, November 9, 1891. Attest: SYLVESTER PENOYER, Governor. GEO. W. MCBRIDE, Secretary of State.

Only two or three wagon loads of wheat came in yesterday to the east end warehouses. There is still a good deal of wheat in the country, but farmers are not anxious to sell, as there is every prospect of higher prices, and they are taking advantage of the late rains to prepare the soil for another crop.

Mrs. Hugh Fraser has opened a restaurant in the Fraser building near the court house. The dining room is well lighted and handsomely furnished and decorated and the well known ability of Mrs. Fraser to cater to the wants of the inner man ought to insure her a liberal share of public patronage.

Hugh Glenn would like to get a chance to lick the thief who stole his umbrella out of his office, with his name worked on it. Will the thief kindly leave his address at this office.

The lecture on phrenology, advertised to take place in the school house, will be held in the old court house, light not being allowed in the school house.

There was a slight fall of snow today on the surrounding hills, but it melted on the lower lands as quickly as it fell.

Circuit Court. Judgment was rendered this morning in the case of Mollie B. James vs. W. M. James, granting the former a divorce.

The case of Sam F. Allen vs. I. N. Sergeant, involving the value of a certain lot of sheep pelts, occupied the court all day yesterday and today up to the hour of going to press.

MARRIED. In this city, at the house of August Buckler, Thursday a. m. Nov. 12, by Rev. W. C. Curtis, pastor of the Congregational church, John Anthony Koelbener of La Grande, and Miss Matilda Eichenberger of The Dalles. The Chronist extends congratulations and wishes the young couple may live long and prosper.

DIED. This morning, near Wyeth station, of congestion of the brain, the two year old child of James Gorton.
