The Chronicle is the Only Paper in The Dalles that Receives the Associated Press Dispatches.

The dispatches inform us that Senator Dolph will introduce a number of bills during the present session of congress, for the improvement of the Columbia river. This was to be expected as a matter of course, but it reminds us that the last appropriation for the works at the Cascades will soon be exhausted and that we owe to our posterity, if not to ourselves to give the senator and his colleagues all the moral support we can in their efforts to obtain another appropriation. If The Dalles has practically solved the question of an open river for herself we do not forget that the major part of the Inland Empire is still at the mercy of the railroads and unable to avail itself of the advantages we possess. It is little, perhaps, that we can do especially with a congress from which little is to be expected for public improvements, but what we can do ought to be done freely. The benefits that this section has derived from a portage at the Cascades ought to make us all the more anxious for the completion of a work that will one day benefit every producer from Idaho to the mouth of the Columbia. Would it not therefore be well for our board of trade to get together at an early date and take such steps as may be proper to supplement the work of the Oregon delegation. Every town in Eastern Oregon and Washington ought to organize for the same purpose and such a siege be kept up as will at least convince congress that we are in earnest.

So the Oregon delegation has recommended Joe Simon for the federal judgeship and the recommendation is seconded by the Governor Penoyer and Jim Lotan and many prominent republicans of this state. We don't care if it is. The appointment would be as much of an insult in its way to every clean republican in the state, as would the nomination of David B. Hill to the presidency, to every clean democrat in the nation. The only conceivable reason why Penoyer and Lotan should recommend Simon for the position is that if Simon is appointed, the dispatches say, he will remove to California and Oregon will get rid of him. No, no, the country does not want federal judges whose chief qualification is that they are smart and unscrupulous political bosses, but Oregon would be perfectly reconciled if Simon should go to California or Canada.

The Eugene Guard thinks that the placing of quinine on the free list and the great reduction in price that has resulted have done more than almost anything else for the cause of "tariff reform." This only proves that the tariff is largely a local question. To the Webfooters quinine is the staff of life and he wants it cheap. Over this way we don't care a bean if it was a thousand dollars an ounce. But the Guard should not give the Webfooters away in that fashion.

Another meeting to raise funds for the Oregon exhibit at the world's fair was held in Portland last Monday, but beyond the fact that it was "unanimous" and had "considerable enthusiasm" no great progress was made. The movement has scarcely passed the "resolved" stage yet but it does look, nevertheless, as if the city would get a move on itself in the near future.

In the choice of Crisp for the speakership over his most formidable opponent, Mills, the democratic party seems to have followed the suggestion of the Atlanta Constitution: "Resplendent as is the democracy of Mr. Mills it is better for the democracy of the party to be safe than sorry."

A late dispatch naively informs us that there is a "feeling" at Washington that Mr. Hermann is going to be returned to congress next June. It is remarkable how far this pulsation extends.

The Telegram, speaking of the would-be assassin of Russell Sage and the probability that both Seattle and Tacoma can claim the distinction of having had him as a former resident says that "Southworth," as he was known in Seattle, "was capable of doing several things that might naturally lead up to bomb-throwing," the chief of which were, as our contemporary points out, the he was editor of a newspaper and wore a stove-pipe hat. The CHRONICLE has never gone so far as to publicly say so but it has long thought that the conjunction of a country editor and a stove-pipe hat indicates a more or less violent form of lunacy, and it thinks so still.

The Latest About Salton Lake.
 A prospector who has just come from the Colorado desert after a six months' trip says that he has ridden around the greater portion of the Salton lake, and that, in his opinion, there is little likelihood of its drying up. In any event it could not all evaporate should the flow cease before the freshets of next season, when it would again pour into the basin. He thinks that next year the breach already made will be enlarged, and that a greatly increased volume of water will flow in, making the lake a permanent feature for many years to come. The past summer has been eventful in desert history, as there have been an almost unbroken succession of rainstorms, sandstorms and electrical storms. Immense quantities of rain have fallen, and the thunder and lightning have been something terrific.—San Francisco Chronicle.

New York Real Estate as an Investment.
 "If you can pick up an unconsidered trifle of real estate anywhere about Manhattan island," said Architect A. J. Horgan yesterday, "grab it as you would a gold mine. I bought a little slice, not more than thirteen feet wide, down on Dey street not long ago for some $90,000, and have already been offered double my money for it. It is singular how some lots lie for a generation or two untransferred on the record. But as soon as a change of title takes place, purchasers crowd upon each other's heels. Paste this in your hat: If you buy a piece of New York real estate for $50,000, within ten days there will be ten men who will reason that if that land is worth $50,000 to you it's worth $80,000 or $75,000 to them."—New York Herald.

It is all right to advise a man to turn a thing over in his mind before acting, if he has a mind bigger than the thing to be turned over.
