THE DALLES, Dec. 8, 1891.
RAIN Weather forecast till 12 M. Wednesday. Scattering rain, slightly cooler. .56 of an inch of rain fell yesterday.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 9, 1891.

The Chronicle is the Only Paper in The Dalles that Receives the Associated Press Dispatches.

LOCAL BRIEVITIES.

We understand that the Union Pacific has raised the passenger rates on the D. S. Baker.

The wrecking train was called from The Dalles last night to assist in placing a derailed passenger car upon the track near Mosier.

A private letter received this morning from Major Ingalls contains these words: "The world's fair subscription will be raised—Portland's part sure."

Owing to the fact that Dollie Edison has broken her arm Miss Dollie Dollison will be obliged to postpone her doll show until December 18th, a week from next Friday night.

Some one left the water faucet in the hall-way of the court house open last night and the result was three feet of water in the cellar this morning and the sewer of the building stopped up.

We regret to hear that seven members of the family of Hon. D. J. Cooper are down with the measles. They are all doing as well as could be expected and with good care no serious trouble is anticipated.

Traffic was suspended upon the road between The Dalles and Portland for hours last night on account of two land slides one in the vicinity of Bonneville that covered the track to the depth of five or six feet and one hundred feet in length, the other near Mosier was a smaller obstruction.

Word comes to this office that Edgar Burlingame of Wams got lost in the mountains west of Oak Grove, a few days ago while out hunting and remained out two days and two nights with nothing to eat and four feet of snow on the ground. He finally turned up at the residence of Hon. W. McD. Lewis, which is close to the edge of the timber.

Last night about 11 o'clock just as a Chinaman who is in the employ of W. S. Cram emerged from the Chinese store on Oak Sing on front street two white men, far gone in their cups, jumped on him and knocked him down, taking from him, as the Chinaman charges the sum of $35. The Chinaman says he felt the men some distance hoping to regain his money when they knocked him down a second time. He then made his way to Mr. Cram's store and bleeding and told the story just related. This morning he swore out a warrant for the arrest of his assailants.

The storm in Portland last Monday was the severest known in Oregon since the gale of 1880. The wind blew at the rate of forty-five miles an hour. The Stark street ferry was tied up the greater portion of the day as the company was afraid of breaking its cable. During the storm the Madison and Morrison street bridges closed their draws and traffic between Portland and Oregon city was stopped. At Sellwood the wind was so high that the ferry had to be laid up. Some fifty or sixty shade trees were blown down and the roof and fence of the base ball stand and grounds were damaged to the amount of $500. S. B. Pague, the well known signal service man had a narrow escape. He had just inspected the self recording rain-gauge, on the roof of the Kamm building and finding it all right, had moved to the platform of the instrument shelter when a gust of wind tore off the double roof of the raingange, completely demolishing it. It was a most miraculous escape for Mr. Pague. Had he been thirty seconds longer at the raingange he might have been killed as the roof of the shelter is exceedingly heavy. Several minor casualties are reported but no serious damage was done as was the case in 1880 when one man was killed and several severely injured.

MARRIED.

In this city, at the Umatilla House, by Rev. William Michell, J. R. Underhill to Maggie Sternweis, both of Boyd, in this county. The Groom wishes the young couple many happy days.

BORN.

At Kingsley, December 4, 1891, to the wife of Davis Hix, a daughter.

THE ART IN ACTING.

The Essential Point in Which the Actor Differs from the Dramatist.
A great French critic said once, in concluding an essay, that acting was the lowest of the arts. He admitted that it was an art, but only by courtesy. I agree with him, and I do not think it requires much reasoning to arrive at that conclusion. The mimetic art means simply the interpretation of the creative art. Do you catch the idea? A pupil in the beaux arts may sketch the Venus de Milo on paper with such vigor that his fellows are wonderstruck. But the virile reproduction on paper of the statue does not place the artist next the statue's maker, nor does the representation of Phedre put the actor on the pedestal of Racine.

The sculptor, the painter, the dramatist, the musician—they create. A thousand different persons, a thousand different things rush to be assimilated by their genius. The effect is an aggregate of beings taken from the whole of a nature. The individuality of the creative genius is deepened, but is not annihilated. His art is of the highest, because he is the embodiment, the representative of nature. Balzac said that to describe a landscape he turned himself for the moment into trees and grass, and fountains and stars, and sunlight, and thus reached the heart of that which he would reproduce. In other words, he created the landscape just as Rousseau would create the same landscape upon six inches of canvas.

But for the actor—let him storm Parnassus as he will; there are few leaves in the laurel crown. It is his function to represent the creations of genius—to interpret them to the public. He has not the thousand inspirations of the author; he has only the suggestions of the glowing words. The actor is subservient to the author, notwithstanding he may forget his bondage for a brief five minutes and breathe the free air of genius.

There was an age in France, they say, when actors were provided simply with the framework of the drama and left to improvise the rest. In fact, Goldoni, the Italian dramatist, speaks of supplying plots to the French king's players from which they improvise the speeches. But we have no evidence that the actors rose above the level of the Chinese stage of today, where a similar practice prevails. Mind you, this opinion is not acceptable to the public. I know it must be unpopular of necessity. The public looks upon Siddons, Mars or Rachel interpreting the grand creations of genius and regards the actor as the embodiment of Shakespeare or Racine or Corneille. The public shouts with applause when the actor trembles with feigned passion, but this same public forgets that the words, the action, the expression are all simply echoes of another genius. In the clamor of approval the creative art is forgotten, although that is the base of the entire structure. No actor brings this genius nearer to the heart of the public, to be sure, but at the same time let him remember that he is only the interpreter, after all, and the shouts are really for Shakespeare and Racine.

And, to end with a suggestion, is not the actor's art akin to the journalist's—that is, in the relation of the latter to literature? It seems to me that the playhouse and the newspaper go hand in hand. They are popular vehicles of thought, and are within the scope of the people. Perhaps this is not flatteringly and perhaps it is unjust—but then, it is only a suggestion.—Sarah Bernhardt in San Francisco Examiner.

Hamburg's Paper Hotel.

There seems to be practically no limitation to the uses to which paper can be and is applied. To the long list of articles intended for personal use, and in the smaller details of construction of rolling stock, such as wheels, axles, etc., there has been added a more extensive application to the need of everyday life by the building of a hotel constructed of this material. This novel residence, which has just been finished and is situated in Hamburg, has been made entirely of paper boards, which, it is said, are of the hardness of wood, but possess an advantage over the latter material in that they are fireproof, this desirable end being effected by impregnation with certain chemical solutions.—New York Telegram.

The Tough Apple Tree.

The hardihood and longevity of the apple tree is illustrated by some apples in the possession of Captain Isaac Knight. They are from a tree in North Berwick, planted by the Taylor family in 1751—now 140 years old. The old tree bears some six or seven bushels this year.—Portland Argus.

Others Have Been There.

If Uncle Sam has to pay back $20,000,000 on account of those hat trimmings, he will not be the first man who has been embarrassed by a big millinery bill.—Boston Herald.

Who Said So?
"Well it's so, because mother said so, and if mother said so, its so, whether it is so or not" but it is a fact that the people of The Dalles will be very highly favored on the night of the 28th of December when the Mendelsshon co., of Boston will appear in the grandest concert of classical music of this decade. The popular admission fee, will be charged and all should take advantage of the opportunity to hear these star performers. Further announcements will be made in due time. 12-9-11.

A Preventive for Croup.
We want every mother to know that croup can be prevented. True croup never appears without a warning. The first symptom is hoarseness; then the child appears to have taken a cold or a cold may have accompanied the hoarseness from the start. After that a peculiar rough cough is developed, which is followed by the croup. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse; a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will prevent the attack. Even after a rough cough has appeared, the disease may be prevented by using this remedy as directed. It has never been known to fail. 25 cent, 50 cent and $1 bottles for sale by Snipes & Kinerly, druggists. daw
