LOCAL BREVITIES.

Will Walker and wife of Wasco are in town.
The first number of the Dufur Times is to be issued today.
Mrs. Hugh Dexter of Kingsley is at the Umatilla house.
Telephone connection has been made between Goldendale, Grants, Biggs and Wasco.
G. W. Calderwood of Seattle who is to speak tonight at the court house, on the temperance question arrived by the noon train.
We regret to hear that Will Graham, the restaurant man has been suffering from quinsy for nearly a week and unable to attend to business.
If the city authorities would buy a stout broom and put it into the hands of some one who would use it vigorously on the street crossings during the sloppy weather they would earn the deep gratitude of hundreds of citizens of both genders.
Those who have promised to donate aprons for the Apron Sale, under the auspices of the ladies of the Congregational Church, will please leave them at Mrs. S. L. Brooks' by Wednesday, December 16th.
C. M. Vanduyne, of Tygh Valley delivered at the stock yards three wagon loads of nice fat hogs last night. They were sold to the Columbia Packing company. We did not learn the price per pound. The lot lacked a very few pounds of averaging three hundred pounds each.
The report that comes to this office of the young man Thompson having died of the diphtheria, can hardly be credited. The deceased is the oldest of a family of five or six children and was over twenty-six years of age. None of the rest of the family has been affected, and there has been no diphtheria in the neighborhood for years.
The whaleback steamer Wetmore that had successfully braved the Atlantic and whose course around the Horn was watched with so much interest was picked up on Tuesday morning last about twenty-five miles south of the mouth of the Columbia rudderless and at the mercy of the waves and after great difficulty towed safely into Astoria.
A telegram was received in this city today from Tacoma stating that Lawrence Brown, son of Pat Brown of Ten Mile in this county and brother of Mrs. Hugh Lacey of Hood River had died two days ago from a railroad accident. The boy is about 17 years old. No other particulars were given. Inquiries were made after the boy's relatives in order to the disposition of the body.
Chrisman brothers received a lot of cattle today from the other side of the river. They came across as usual by the ferry but one of them took it into his head to go back and in spite of all that could be done he took to the water, and was more than half way across before two men, who followed him in a boat, could head him off. In the swiftest part of the stream a rope was thrown over his horns and he was towed back to this side.

United We Stand: Divided We Fall.
Two incidents happened yesterday on the Baker's trip to the Cascades that ought to impress the Union Pacific with the magnitude of the task they have undertaken when they attempt to fight the interests of a united people. The Baker was ahead of the Regulator as both boats approached White Salmon. A corral-full of hogs stood upon the bank awaiting shipment. The purser of the Baker did everything in his power to induce the owner of the hogs, R. D. Cameron, to ship them by the Baker. Mr. Cameron could name his own price, if he wanted to, but Mr. Cameron was accurate and did not care what the price was. The Baker could not get them. Then the Baker steamed off to the Hood River landing where fifteen head of horses, the property of W. M. Rand and O. B. Hartley of Hood River, stood upon the bank, awaiting shipment to Portland. The Baker dashed her nose into the sand; the crew threw out the stock gang planks and the purser climbed off and asked the owners of the horses to "Bring them right ahead, gentlemen." But the owners said they guessed not. Then the purser said: "We'll take them to Portland gentlemen for 62 1/2 cents a head." Again the owners said they guessed not. Said the purser "Put them right on gentlemen and name your own price." "You cannot have them, sir, if you carried them for nothing," was the answer, and the wheezy, rotten old hulk turned her prow towards the Cascades.

Another Victim of Alcohol.
Erank Zeigler, a man about 30 years old, who has been, up till a few weeks ago, in the employ of C. J. VanDuyne of Tygh Valley, was found dead this morning on the open ground back of the Dalles Cigar Factory on Main Street. Zeigler left VanDuyne's employ on the 18th ult., intending to go east by way of the Northern Pacific. He went to Portland, where he got on a drunk and blew in $200, all the money he had. He came back to The Dalles last Tuesday, sick from the effects of his debauch, and penniless. He registered at the Umatilla house early in the afternoon of the same day and went to bed. He had previously borrowed $10 from R. B. Hood, promising not to drink any more and to go out to Tygh next morning. It is believed he kept his word as far as drinking is concerned, as most of the borrowed money was found in his pockets after death. He must have lain out all night and deliberately selected the place where he lay down. His body was still limber when found this morning.
Zeigler was an honest, hard working and faithful young man. He had been in the employ of Mr. VanDuyne for some six years. His greatest failing was his fondness for liquor. He had kept perfectly sober for nearly two years. He has an uncle and sister who live at Elms, Missouri. An inquest was held on the remains this afternoon, but no verdict had been reached at time of going to press.

DIED.
Near Dufur, Or., December 11, 1891, of diphtheria, Andw Thompson, oldest son of Jasper Thompson, aged 22 years.

Postmaster Wanmaker strikes a popular chord when he urges upon Congress that postoffice boxes be made free. His scheme is to give the use of a box to the head of every family living outside of the range of free delivery.

An exchange sadly says: The outlook for Oregon is sad indeed. Neither Harvey Scott nor Gov. Pennoyer wants to go to Washington.

A Preventive for Croup.
We want every mother to know that croup can be prevented. True croup never appears without a warning. The first symptom is hoarseness; then the child appears to have taken a cold or a cold may have accompanied the hoarseness from the start. After that a peculiar rough cough is developed, which is followed by the croup. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse; a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will prevent the attack. Even after a rough cough has appeared the disease may be prevented by using this remedy as directed. It has never been known to fail. 25 cent, 50 cent and $1 bottles for sale by Snipes & Kinerly, druggists. daw
