The racket lasted for nearly an hour and then quiet reigned till morning.

A Successful Firm.

One of the most successful and enterprising business firms of this city is that of Maier & Benton. Four years ago they opened a small grocery store on Second street and by close attention to business and fair dealing their custom rapidly outgrew their accommodations so that they were obliged to move into the large and commodious quarters in the Gates building, corner of Third and Union streets. Here they keep everything that can usually be found in a first class grocery store and are doing a large and prosperous business. Not content with this, however, a short time after the fire they purchased the tin and hardware stock of A. Bettingen and opened out at the old Bettingen stand on Second street. It was a fine stroke of business foresight, and the result has justified all their expectations. Here they practically stepped into a business already made which their eminent business capacity and accommodating manners have vastly increased, till today it ranks among the leading houses in the city. Everything usually found in a first-class tin and hardware store can be found here. The visitor will find the large floor of the store building literally packed with stoves and ranges of every size, description, quality and price to suit the needs of the trade. Among these we noticed magnificent. Empire wrought steel and other ranges from $20 a piece up; a fine line of Argand base burners and other heating stoves, from $3.50 each to a quality that would grace a palace; and every variety and size of Eastern and Oregon-made cooking stoves. On the one side is an extended range of shelving filled with shelf and building hardware, cutlery, plated ware in knives, forks, spoons and carving sets, on the other an equally extended range of tin and granite ware. The firm makes a specialty of plumbing. This part of the business is under the management of Mr. Benton, who is a skilled workman, and is furnished with every modern convenience for carrying on this branch of the trade. Patent water closets, tanks, plunger closets, Philadelphia hoppers—in fact, the best of everything in this line is kept in stock and furnished to customers at reasonable living rates. The tinning department—another important feature of the business, is under the management of an experienced tin-smith, who is furnished with every facility for the manufacture of new goods or repairing old ones. At the time the firm bought out Mr. Bettingen they intended to go out of the grocery trade entirely and confine themselves to their new business; but the grocery business kept growing so rapidly that the firm concluded to continue in it and have placed it under the management of H. A. Bills, for many years the very accommodating assistant of George Ruch. Maier & Benton are both rustlers and we predict that a very prosperous future awaits them.

The street commissioner was instructed to repair the crossing between the Columbia and Umatilla house corners, also from the residence of J. B. Crossen to the Korten property and from the Metz and Fundt corner to the office of the Regulator.

On motion the meeting adjourned till Saturday evening January 9th inst.

The Old Year Out and the New Year In.

Our worthy townsman, Mr. N. Harris, and Mrs. Harris entertained a party of friends at their elegant mansion on New Years Eve. Among those present were; Mr. and Mrs. D. M. French, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Laughlin, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hostetter, and Miss Brooks. The hours were passed pleasantly, and just before the old, old, wooden cuckoo clock of the olden time called out the last hour of the old year of 1891, the guests were ushered out to an elegantly spread table, laden with the choicest viands, and were seated at the board, in remembrance of the recurring seasons, the closing of a fruitful year, the salutations of the happy new year and a wish that the host and hostess' happiness might be multiplied as the years rolled on.

Thrilling.

It was but a morning since a new fangled fire escape was tried on one of Portland's highest buildings the man who looked like a small boy at such a distance lighted a cigar buckled the steel tape onto a belt around his waist and stepped out into space from the seventh story. There was a sizz and a snap the tape had broken down, down he came, and while the spectators turned their heads and the police hurried for the ambulance he struck the ground and taking off his hat he said: Ladies and gentlemen I ate Bread made with compressed yeast, I ate Tucker oats for breakfast and saved my life, and turning away he said John Booth the grocer keeps both of these.
