A Puzzler.

THE DALLES, Jan. 12, 1892. Editor Chronicle: I lately met with the following in the Portland Telegram and it puzzled me a good deal

All that is necessary to win a triumph for the national democracy is to place democratic principles clearly and cor-rectly before the people.

Now I used to be considerable of a democrat myself and I used to think that I knew what democratic principles are or rather were in the long ago, but I am at a loss to know what they are now. Cleveland's principles 1 know and Mill's I know, but what are Hill's and Crisp's and Springer's? I see little in the practical politics of the democratic party but scrambling for office reduced to a science. Hill and Crisp and Springer and all of that ilk would turn protectionists tomorrow if they thought they could win by it. Their late conduct proves this. The McKinley law has been denounced by the democratic party as no law ever was denounced. Republicans have been doubly damned for demonetizing silver. U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE. Now that the democrats have control of the house the country demands that they prove their honesty by passing a free coinage law and a good tariff law along the lines laid down by Cleveland and Mills. The country expects the democratic party to have the courage of their convictions if they have any convictions. Hedging and evasion won't do. Let them pass these laws and throw the responsibility of a veto or defeat on the republicans, and then they will have a clear cut policy with which to go before the people in the coming presidential campaign. A defeat under such circumstances would be no dishonor. It is better a thousand times to be right was located near Forty-first street." "Yes," said the caller; "I drove down there one day with a party of friends and filled up with some of your cherry brandy. "Iremember it perfectly," said the man behind the desk. "After you had taken a little of it you wanted to buy the farm." "And you wanted $2,000 for it," said the caller. "And you agreed to take it," added the man behind the deek. "I did," admitted the caller, "and you came to my office the next day." "Yes, and you swore you wouldn't take it as a gift." "And you declared you had witnesses

Indeed, I might assert as a positive and invariable fact that, save in cases of dire necessity, such as shipwrecks or utter and hopeless poverty, the man who wears a hat too small for him is a silly, frivolous, conceited creature, with no serious ideas on any subject, and only the most flippant and shallow views of life and its obligations. Even among tramps and vagabonds, the fellow with the "dinky" derby balanced npon his mop of unkempt hair, is the most hopeless wreck among his class; while there is always a gleam of intelligence, a spark of hope, in the tramp whose hat is too large for him.—Kate Field's Washington.

house, for parlor, study and bedroom; the other to the dining and workroom, writes Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher in describing the first home which she and Mr. Beecher had years ago in the west. The bedroom was so small that I was obliged to make the bed-on one side first, then go out on the veranda, raise a window, reach in and make the bed on the other side. Not such very troublesome work after all, when one gets accustomed to Hertz. it. The little kitchen, partitioned off from the veranda, was just large enough to allow a passage between the cooking table and the stove into the dining room without burning my dress, and my table was only divided from Mr. Beech-er's study table by the partition.

For nearly seven years this was our home—a home full of cares and no luxuries, but a very happy home-for many reasons the happiest we ever knew, for we were less separated there. In Brooklyn, in later years, Mr. Beecher's public duties naturally drew him more away from the family circle, but in those days in the west I had him almost entirely to myself.-Ladies' Home Journal.

Thrilling Adventure of a Miner. John Clarkson tells an interesting story of how he came near being de voured by a large army of rats in the Baker coal bank. It was his custom to cook his meal in the coal bank at dinner time. One day as he was sitting be-fore a fire boiling his meat he was startled to hear the noise made by running rats. The odor of the cooking meat permeated the bank, attracted the attention along to the fire at a lively rate.

John says he thought the "old bob" was after him. In a little while there mast have been fully 500 rats gathere about him and his heart was in his mouth. He threw them a piece of the meat, and while they fought for it he stole away.-New Lisbon Patriot.

The Corn Husk Weather Profit. Jonathan Niles, of Norwich, Conn., the famous corn husk weather profit, is on deck again with a prediction. He says that the winter will be uneven, as the corn husks are uneven in thickness.
