The CHRONICLE has made arrangements with A. Fargher & Co., live stock and commission merchants of Portland, to have furnished weekly for publication, a carefully revised and reliable list of prices of cattle, hogs and sheep, in the Portland market.

Long Creek Eagle. Postmaster Gen. John Wanamaker, has decided that love letters and poems of passion shall be excluded from the mails as all such stuff leads to marriage, and marriage is a lottery, and any such a consummation shall be treated the same as the Louisiana business.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church will give another of their delightful socials at Mrs. Geo. P. Morgan's on Friday evening March 18. Special feature will be an Art Loan exhibition. One room will be given to a choice selection of paintings by the New York artist, Ben Foster, who studied in Paris under a leading artist. He has received favorable notices from New York papers and as he is an artist of rare merit, it is worth your while to go and see the pictures.

A meeting of Columbia Division No. 236 Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineer was held in this city on the 13th instant when the following officers were elected: Chief of Engineers, A. E. Curtis; First Engineer, Robert Hunter; Second Engineer, J. W. Ready; First Assistant Engineer, W. J. Sherman; Second Assistant, C. H. Evans; Third Assistant, C. S. Jack Daley and Mike Began, two warm hearted natives of the Emerald Isle, from Sherman county, celebrated the 17th of Ireland in this city.

It is a subject of general remark that there are more birds in the country, particularly of one or two apparently new varieties, than have ever been seen at this time of year before. They are here in thousands and seem generally to subsist on the insects that are so plentiful on all our fruit and shade trees.

If Governor Pennoyer's well meant efforts to secure an appropriation from the general government for the dalles portage shall result, as it seems possible, in the abandonment of the works at the Cascades, it were better a thousand times that he should never have written a letter to the chairman of the river and harbor committee. If we cannot get appropriations for both purposes, every effort should be put forth to hold up the hands of Mr. Hermann in his fight for the Cascade appropriation. A meeting of The Dalles board of trade is called for tomorrow evening, to consider this matter, and doubtless an earnest protest will be sent to Washington against the thought of abandoning the works at the Cascades. Mr. Hermann's position is the right one. If one or other of the two works is to be abandoned, let it be the portage and the state can build that. But on the other hand if the work at the Cascades is to be carried on, as it has been for nearly a score of years, let us have the portage. We have no direct interest in a work that there is no hope of seeing finished for another generation. It is more than likely, the dispatches to the contrary, notwithstanding, that this is the same position that the governor himself takes.

Prohibition and Free Trade.

Editor Chronicle:
A few of the citizens of our city, including myself, were enticed last evening to attend an alleged temperance meeting at the court house, to hear Messrs. Wolfenbarger and Hucksins present their views on the prohibition question, by both song and speech. The first part of the program was well rendered and received, but the second part by Mr. Wolfenbarger, (Wolf-in-bear-gear), was the most rank free trade speech that I have ever heard.

He started out by comparing the Mills and McKinley bills, with a leaning very much in favor of the former, stating that the latter was a piece of the most iniquitous legislation that was ever perpetrated on the American people; he claimed that in 1888, when the Mill's bill was before congress, there was only an average difference of seven per cent. between it and the then existing tariff, but that the McKinley bill, which passed in 1890, increased the average tariff from forty-seven to sixty per cent. After listening to a few more such statements, I left the room in disgust.
I do not think that any "Fair Minded Man" will believe that these people are working in the interest of the prohibition party, but are employed by the democrat for purposes best known to themselves.

The meeting last night, reminded me of the street fakir, who employs a troupe of singers to attract a crowd, after which he proceeds to swindle the people by offering them a small piece of soap, supposed to contain a twenty dollar greenback, all for the small sum of one dollar.

A FRIEND OF TEMPERANCE.

Senator Squire Complimented.
WASHINGTON, March 16. - Senator Squire has been receiving telegrams from his state congratulating him upon the fact that he succeeded in having the bill reconsidered which cut off a portion of the Puget Sound district and added to that of Oregon.

Board of Trade Meeting.
A meeting of the Board of Trade will be held in the hall over THE CHRONICLE office, tomorrow evening, Friday March 18th, at 8 o'clock. Business of importance will come before the board, and it is much desired that every member attend. Per order Vice President.

The Silver Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 16. - Senator Stewart says there will be no effort made to have the free coinage bill considered in the senate until after the house has disposed of the question. He expresses no doubt, whatever, that the measure will pass the senate by probably a slightly reduced majority from the vote of last session.

HOW TO PLEASE THE GIRLS.

Some Plain Talk to Young Men Who Think Themselves Pretty Poor.
From the time you begin to pay attention to any set of girls you want to study to please them, and you want to keep on studying as long as you live. Don't try to get out of it by saying that you haven't much money, and that everything that girls like costs an awful lot. The poorest of you manage to find money enough to keep yourselves on good terms with the boys. You have some habit or indulgence which you spend money to gratify. Think the matter over and make up your mind which you like best—the boys, your own pet gratifications or the girls. If you can't put the girls first you had better drop them. It may be hard to do, but it's easier and less humiliating than to have them drop you. If you haven't much to do with do the best you can with what you have. No more will be expected of you than what you can do.

Don't drop into sentimentalism because you can't buy an opera box like some 'city swell, or drive a fast horse like some smart fellow in the country. It is not so much the cost of what you do as the way you do it that the girl will notice and talk about. If you'll be man enough to study a girl's tastes and gentleman enough to think about them real hard, you will find ways of showing what sort of stuff is in you, no matter how poor you are.

Usually girls get up all the parties, and the young men accept such affairs as naturally as if they were meals at home or the boarding house, or something else to which they are entitled, instead of special courtesies, which deserve special recognition. It isn't custom for a young fellow to get up parties on his own account, but he ought to have enough manliness and manners to devise some means of returning the compliment.

If he can't do it with his own purse and brains he can get some other fellow to help. Any two or three clever young fellows can find plenty of ways of entertaining or amusing their entertainers if they will pool their brains and pocket-books. If they're not clever, the best thing they can do is to make themselves so as soon as possible, for they can't ever expect to be "solid" with the girls without it.

Don't imagine yourselves generous because you spend time thinking what lovely things you would do for the girls if you only had lots of money. Any fool can do that and yet die as mean as a skink. It takes thinking and work and self denial for any one to be generous unless he has a great deal more money than he knows what to do with, and nobody ever knew a man as rich as that. Besides there are plenty of ways of doing nice things for the girls without spending much money, and you'll find out some of them if only you'll be generous with your time and wits.

If you can afford cigars, or even cigarettes, you can afford to do the proper thing for the girls. One common cigar a day costs as much as two good theater tickets a month. Fewer scarfpins mean more bouquets, and one bouquet will go further toward making you "solid" with a girl than a whole jeweler's case full of scarfpins.

A suit of clothes a little less costly than the one you meant to buy will save you the price of a ride or two for the girl, who will care more for one ride than for all the clothes you may try to show off in. A girl's own clothes are all she can pay attention to, unless the others are shabby or fit badly.

No matter what you do, though, for the dear creatures, you must put your generosity into your manners as well as into your doings. Don't act, as a good many young fellows do, as if you were paying a debt when you do anything nice for the girls, for whatever they do for you isn't for pay—it's a gift, and must be returned in the same spirit if you wish it to be welcome. Always do a courteous deed as if you were receiving a favor, for that's what it ought to appear to your mind, and that's what it really amounts to if you are the right sort of a fellow. There are some young men who pay their social debts with the air of a man paying a bill, and the girls are very quick to catch on to that sort of thing.—Chicago Globe.

Just Like a Man.

When a man slips on a banana peel or anything else his face lights up with astonishment rarely shown on any other occasion. He invariably stops, turns and mentally marks the location of the article, as if he might come that way again some day and it would be just as well to be posted. Then he looks at his foot quite as curiously, probably dropping a casual observation or two concerning a possible future state of existence. None of these things tend to modify the fact that he slipped and that he is no more likely to slip again on the same thing than he is to be struck by lightning.—New York Herald.

A Child That Acted Like a Wolf.

A child caught in a wolf's den would only eat raw flesh, on which he put his hands as a dog puts its fore feet. He drank by suction and habitually ran on all fours, from which his knees and knuckles were quite hard. Though reclaimed by his mother he was quite untamable, and at last lived in the village streets like a pariah dog, going every night into the jungle.—London Spectator.

How to Tell Gallants Apart.

According to an epilogue writer of the Seventeenth century, it was then easy to distinguish the country from the town gallant in a theater, the latter being known by putting his periwig in order with a comb, while his provincial brother was content to attain the same object with four fingers and a thumb.—Chambers' Journal.

Why Teeth Last.
So much harder is the enamel of teeth than anything else of organic origin in nature that they outlast all things else apparently, even the rocks, and are preserved for the enlightenment of science.—Washington Star.

La Grippe Successfully Treated.
"I have just recovered from a second attack of the grip this year," says Mr. Jas. O. Jones, publisher of the Leader, Mexico, Texas. "In the latter case I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and I think with considerable success, only being in bed a little over two days, against ten days for the first attack. The second attack I am satisfied would have been equally as bad as the first but for the use of this remedy, as I had to go to bed in about six hours after being 'struck' with it, while in the first case I was able to attend to business about two days before getting 'down.'" 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.
