

THE DALLES CHRONICLE

IS

THE LEADING PAPER

Of the Leading City of Eastern Oregon.

During the little over a year of its existence it has earnestly tried to fulfill the objects for which it was founded, namely, to assist in developing our industries, to advertise the resources of the city and adjacent country and to work for an open river to the sea. Its record is before the people and the phenomenal support it has received is accepted as the expression of their approval. Independent in everything, neutral in nothing, it will live only to fight for what it believes to be just and right.

Commencing with the first number of the second volume the weekly has been enlarged to eight pages while the price ($1.50 a year) remains the same. Thus both the weekly and daily editions contain more reading matter for less money than any paper published in the county.

The Horrors of Sport.

"Sport" is horrible. I say it advisedly. I speak with the matured experience of one who has seen and taken part in sport of many and varied kinds in many and varied parts of the world. I can handle gun and rifle as well and efficiently as most "sporting folk," and few women, and not many men, have indulged in a tittle of the shooting and hunting in which I have been engaged both at home and during travels and expeditions in far away lands. It is not, therefore, as a novice that I take up my pen to record why I, whom some have called a "female Nimrod," have come to regard with absolute loathing and detestation any sort or kind or form of sport which in any way is produced by the suffering of animals.—Lady Florence Dixie.

The Innumerable Chrysanthemums.

The Japanese cite 200 color varieties of the chrysanthemum, of which 63 are yellow, 87 white, 33 purple, 30 red, 81 pale pink, 12 russet and 14 of mixed colors. A fancy prevails in the country that in this flower the same tint is never exactly reproduced, and that in this it resembles the endless variety of the human countenance.—Garden

A Pear Shaped Diamond.

A very fine diamond is the Mattam, belonging to the rajah of Mattam, Borneo. It is of the "first water," and weighs 987 carats. It bears a striking resemblance to a pear in shape, even to the indentation in the larger end. It was found near Landak, Borneo, in 1760, and has been the cause of several sanguinary wars.—St. Louis Republic.

SICK

Head-Aches.

Sick-headaches are the outward indications of derangements of the stomach and bowels. As Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is the only bowel regulating preparation of Sarsaparilla, it is seen why it is the only appropriate Sarsaparilla in sick-headaches. It is not only appropriate; it is an absolute cure. After a course of it an occasional dose at intervals will forever prevent return.
Jno. M. Cox, of 735 Turk Street, San Francisco, writes: "I have been troubled with attacks of sick-headache for the last three years from one to three times a week. Some time ago I bought two bottles of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla and have only had one attack since and that was on the second day after I began using it."

How to Manage the Indian.

The Indian is a naturally secretive being, hiding his inner character jealously from the eye of any alien race. He is called cunning, crafty, morose, revengeful and cruel. So he has been—toward those who have made no bids for his confidence and friendship other than those offered by constant efforts to crowd him from his country, despoil and even exterminate him. He is really by nature—not always, but often—the very reverse of these things.
Place him now under other conditions. Put him in one of the new troops; teach him a pride in being a soldier of the government, and that the government relies on him for its safety and protection; make him feel that the white soldiers around him are his comrades, and he as good as they; explain to him the reason of things; give him healthy and congenial employment; treat him as an independent rational being and a man; cease trying to promote his confidence in you and his progress by talking to him about his soul—and you will soon have a result astonishingly different to the accepted idea of his race.
He who commands these people best must be scrupulously just, and keep every promise as far as he can. He must feel a genuine interest and friendship for them, for they are quick to detect shams. He must at first be patient and lenient, punishing usually only after repeated cautions and explanations, and after he is sure the nature of the offense is understood. He must have tact and perception of character, for Indian character is just as varied as the white, and treatment that would do for one man would break up the troop if applied to others.—Lieutenant S. C. Robertson in Harper's Weekly.

Poetry and Fireplaces.

What poetry and sentiment linger around the old fashioned fireplace! Here the families gathered, down to the middle of the century in many cases. Before one of them in Kentucky the boy Abraham Lincoln learned to read, the hut in which he lived being too poorly furnished even to allow him the saucer of lard with the burning lampwick floating therein. Here the sturdy manhood and the buxom womanhood lived, loved and died, learned, dreamed and went therefrom to make name and fame or to plod on through life in a humble capacity.
But those days are gone, and the old fashioned fireplace is a thing of the past, except in remote regions where the spirit of progress has not yet penetrated. Of course a great deal of poetry departed with the substitution of stoves for fireplaces, but this is largely a practical and a utilitarian age, wherein stoves and proxy comfort are considered as vastly preferable to fireplaces and the impossibility of keeping warm without being roasted. The majority of people today, if there were no other objections to fireplaces, would doubtless esteem the poetical one as being sufficient.—Philadelphia Press.

Jefferson's Louisiana Home.

The winter home of Joseph Jefferson is on Orange island, New Iberia, La. The house is one of the old manors, remodeled and refurbished by the actor. Its conservatories abound in tropical fruits and flowers. Artificial ponds teem with trout and black bass. Lake Simonette, near by, affords the finest fishing, while one has to step but a few yards from Jefferson's fireside to find wild fowl in abundance. Luxuriant groves, containing thousands of trees of the mandarin and Brazilian varieties, surround the house. Fully one hundred pecan and the same number of orange trees yield succulent crops yearly. In the pastures are the finest specimens of Holsteins, while in the stables are a number of the fleetest roadsters in the south. The apartment of which Mr. Jefferson is proudest is the Japanese room. It is of marvelous beauty, and visitors come from miles about to gaze on the gorgeous furnishings.—Charleston News and Courier.

The Shape of the Earth.

Here are some answers given by young scholars in an examination:
Question—What is the shape of the earth? Give reasons for your answer.
Answers—The shape of the earth is round, because you can see it, and secondly because the map tells you.
The shape of the earth is like an orange, and it has a pole through the middle.
The shape of the earth is like an orange, and if you put a pole through the middle of the earth you will see it is like an orange.
The shape of the earth is like an orange, and I prove that it is so shaped, because when a year passes it comes back again.—London Tablet.

Making Alloys is an Art.

Great art is requisite in making alloys. It is true that they are readily formed by melting metals together in a crucible or in properly constructed furnaces, but it is necessary to insure perfect fusion and to prevent loss. Zinc is a volatile, inflammable metal and easily catches fire. Indeed, it is not at all uncommon to find that two alloys of exactly the same component parts differ very materially in properties, in consequence of a difference in the mode of preparation or in the care bestowed upon it.—Chambers' Journal.

All Modern Warships Are Rams.

All turreted ships are called monitors after Ericsson's celebrated ship, Monitor. All modern warships are meant to ram, and to that end are built with a projecting prow under water extending to a considerable distance from the regular bow line. There are no vessels known as rams nowadays. Ericsson's Monitor was not built with a projecting prow or beak. As a matter of fact, all modern ships of war are rams in everything but name.—Brooklyn Eagle.
