The republican convention of Wasco county has met and done its work and adjourned and the result, so far as the state delegation is concerned, comes too dangerously near being a menace to the best interests of Wasco county and of the Inland Empire to be a matter for congratulation. The CHRONICLE had hoped that the republican voters of this county were possessed of sufficient independence to rebuke the men who have betrayed their interests in the past, by leaving them at home. The majority of the county delegates fought nobly and to them we owe the fact that a solid railroad delegation will not go to the state convention to nominate the state ticket. As it is the choice of M. A. Moody and G. W. Johnston for state delegates is nothing less than an insult to this county. Moody is an open enemy of the people, an open enemy of an open river and an open and avowed friend of the railroad. Johnston supported by his vote, as the records of the last legislature show, the infamous act by which Benedict Arnold McCoy of Sherman county, defeated the appropriation for a portage railroad at the Dalles. These are two of the men the convention has chosen to nominate candidates for the Oregon legislature at a time when the whole Inland Empire is demanding an open river. How they got their nomination is no secret. At the city primaries a large number of persons were influenced to vote the anti-Farley ticket through promises of support, for themselves or friends, for nomination to county offices. Some of them have got their reward and the rest got left, beautifully and delightfully left, as is generally the case when one promises to support two or three persons for the same office. And yet, notwithstanding the number of strikers that gathered like carrion crows in support of Moody his nomination to the state convention was only accomplished by his refusal to allow the city to be restricted in a perfectly fair and honorable way, the same as the country had been. Johnston goes to the state convention by the treachery of J. E. McCormick, an alliance man from Eight-Mile precinct, who voted for Johnston against the wishes of his fellow-precinct man, W. E. Campbell. The country expected better than this from McCormick and will hold him responsible for his treachery.

When the binding twine used in this country was manufactured abroad it cost our farmers seventeen cents a pound. Now that it is made at home, under the protection afforded by the McKinley law, the price has been reduced to seven and a half cents and thousands of American artisans are given employment in its manufacture. The present duty is seven-tenths of a cent a pound, which, even if the farmer had to pay it, would amount to less than a cent on every acre of wheat where twine is used. This petty tax has been attacked by the tariff reformers now in control of the house, when they will know, or ought to know, that if the home manufacture of this article were destroyed by free trade the price would soon be doubled to the American consumer.

Goldendale has a ghost that periodically visits the pale glimpses of the moon and horribly shakes the disposition of the citizens with thoughts beyond the reaches of their soles. It is not the regular conventional ghost for it dresses in black and groans as if in pain, but it has the faculty of nimbly making itself scarce when danger approaches, as Bob McCrow discovered about a week ago when he tried, three times in quick succession, to pepper its diaphragm with cold lead.

An experimenting physician has discovered that hypodermic injections of the brains of a sheep will bring renewed vigor and intellectual energy into human heads fagged out by overwork or originally lacking in the quality or quantity of grey matter. It's a safe bet that there is a sheep's head and a hypodermic syringe in the private drawer of the Mountaineer sanctum.

A correspondent of the Goldendale Sentinel, writing from Harwood, N. D., says that a blizzard struck that place one day during the present month, that blew the twist out of an auger that hung on the wall of an outhouse, so that the owner has used it ever since for a chisel.

A smoker in the harbor of Barcelona threw a match down, after lighting his pipe, and it set fire to a petroleum cargo on a barge, which blazed furiously and drifting in the harbor played sad havoc. A warship, four steamers, a corvette, and a launch were burned to the waters edge. The wildest panic prevailed among the ships in the harbor during the fire, and many who were at a distance from the lighter when it took fire saved themselves only by starting seaward immediately. The spectacle of the six burning ships was a scene of awful grandeur, and was viewed by thousands on the wharves.

The Arlington board of trade has secured the promise of steamboat traffic between Arlington and Pasco, as soon as a boat can be obtained for the purpose. The Arlington Record thinks that by this means the trade of the upper country will be transferred from the Sound cities to Spokane.

Neuralgia Cured in 15 Minutes.
 Mr. J. S. Sturtevant, editor of the Waupaca (Wis.) Post, says: "Last night Chamberlain's Pain Balm cured my wife of neuralgia of the face and tooth in fifteen minutes. We would not be without it." 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.
