A Golden Wedding.

While the rest of the busy world was occupied yesterday, some in the all absorbing business of politics, some with their farms and others with their merchandise, an event occurred in this city that deserves more than a passing notice. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beezley, two aged and honored Oregon pioneers, surrounded by more than a score of their children, grand-children, and great grand-children, celebrated their golden wedding. It was a happy gathering, but one withal, whose cup of joy, like every other put to human lips, contained ingredients of sadness, for eyes looked love into other eyes that in the course of nature must soon be closed in death, and the event that had gathered them together could never be repeated in this world again. Fifty years ago, yesterday, Joseph Beezley and Mary Jane Barr plighted their faith to each other, at the marriage altar, in the little town of Danville, Ohio, and the long years of happy wedded life that have passed since then, have proven that this, at least, was one of the marriages that

What a retrospect these 50 years must afford! Of the twelve children born to them, eight await them in the land where sorrow and death never enter, and one of these was tearfully laid to rest by the lonely hillside, while its parents were braving the hardships of the way from their eastern home to the land of the setting sun. Mr. Beezley was born at Springfield, Ohio, in 1819. He comes of distinguished parentage, tracing his lineage back to the Pilgrims. His grandfather was a general in the British army, and his father added new honors to the name by his marriage to Phoebie Reeves, of Virginia. Fourteen children were born to this pair of whom Joseph was the twelveth.

In the spring following the death of his father and mother, in 1851, Mr. Beezley, with his wife and children, started on the long and perilous trip to Oregon in company with Col. I. R. Moores, sen. The journey was attended with all the trials, hardships and losses incident to all immigrants at that time. The party arrived at Fort Dalles on October 15th, 1852, after seven months of continuous travel. The winter of 1852-53 was very severe and all the cattle Mr. Beezley was possessed of perished, but nothing dismayed, in the following September he purchased a hundred head of cattle in Clatsop Plains, which he skipped in a sailboat for sixty miles up the Columbia and drove to the valley of the Umpqua, where he made his home for eight years. After suffering a loss of $5,0000 through endorsing another man's note, he removed to Benton county in 1862. At the close of a three year's residence in Benton county, he moved his family and effects across the mountains and bought a squatter's right to a homestead claim on Fifteen Mile creek, now owned by A. J. Dufur, jr. Here he continued successfully in the horse and sheep business till the year 1879, when he sold out at a profitable figure and moved his family to The Dalles, where he has since sidence of nearly forty years in this state, Mr. Beezley could be reckoned among its most public spirited citizens. Ever foremost in every good work that tended to advance the moral and religious wellbeing of his fellow citizens, many an institution of learning and struggling church or still more struggling pastor, owes him debts of gratitude that never can be rewarded this side that land where the giving of a cup of water, to lips that are thirsty, never fails of its reward. During all these long and weary years of joy and sorrow, of toil and rest, of trial and triumph, his wife has been a true and faithful help- her seventh birthday. Many handsome mate, a tender and indulgent mother, and valuable presents were presented to and a faithful friend and neighbor.

If the saying of the psalmist is true that children are the heritage of the Lord, then this aged couple, who, hand fact, that they had not wearied at games in hand, have trod life's pathway for and play when the hour of nine o'clock half a century, are richly blessed with a half a century, are richly blessed with a goodly heritage. There were present with them yesterday, three of their four living children, their daughter Elizabeth (Mrs. Fred Smith) alone being absent; nine of their twelve grand-children and three great grand-children, besides the wives of their two sons and the husband of their daughter Alma. The following is the list of names: William Beezley and wife, J. Franklin Beezley, wife and two children; G. R. Simpson wife (Alma C. Beezley) and two children; Henry Smith, wife and two children Mrs. L. B. Seal (Mary E. Smith), Edward J. Smith, Raymond F. Smith, and J. C. Oliphant and wife (Elsie M. Smith). Quite a number of friends called during the day and evening, bringing suitable and valuable presents, and flowers, but the scene was one too sacred for the prolonged intrusion of one not immediately related to the family. About eight o'clock the most pathetic of the days incidents, occurred when G. B. Simpson, husband of Alma C. Beezley, presented presents from the children and grand-children and in a few touching and well chosen words congratulated Father and Mother Beezley on Cam'pbell, Miss Laura Thompson, Miss a heritage as long as memory held sway Newman, Miss Edith-Schmidt, Miss Cooper and others.

a heritage as long as memory held sway and would stand out on the page of life's history, like apples of gold in pictures history, like apples of gold in pictures Harris."

of silver. This was followed by the most touching scene of all, when the little great grand-children made their present of golden cups and saucers, to their great grand-parents, while Mr. Simpson again spoke on their behalf. It is needless to say that when Father Beezley responded, there was not a dry cheek in the room. Then the golden bride and bridegroom were kissed and congratulated by their numerous offspring, and the rest of the evening, till nearly midnight, was devoted to song and recitation, when the "good nights" were repeated and all united in the hope that the close of this long and happy wedded life may be long deferred, and when at last nature like a tired child may lay them down to rest, that their end may be peaceful, and their entrance into the world that knows no death, abundant and triumphant.

D. J. Cooper jr., left Portland yesterday over the Northern Pacific for Billings, Mont., where he is offered a position at good wages. Dan would be rather lonesome out there, being only seventeen years of age, but he will meet his older brother, Nathan, who will steer him in the right direction. The boys will miss him here, but he hopes to be able to return before his school age passes and complete his education.

Kingsley Correspondence.

The political pot has been boiling very hard since we held our primary. The republicans of Kingsely, and I may say of Wasco county, are disgusted with both factions of the party in The Dalles. The sooner the leaders of both factions emigrate to Jerusalem or some other holy place, the better for the republican party of Wasco

If they would view the situation as the writer does, they would on next June take the democratic ticket and vote it from top to bottom. I know it would be a hard dose to swallow, but I believe after two or three attempts they could down the thing, while at the same time. Well, now; I thought so. I am right glad I met you, for I shall buy a pair for myself, and take my family along too, for my children have always worn them. And do you know ? they last a whole year."

"Yes, and you can get them in all widths, and prices, in men's, ladies, misses, child's, infants, boys and youths. And do you know, they are sold under a guarantee?"

"No. Why do they do so?"
"Because they have a world wide reputation, and can be relied upon." The Walter H. Tenney Shoe is sold only by The Dalles Mercantile Compa-

Mr. J. P. Blaize, an extensive real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, nar-rowly escaped one of the severest athis breath till the morning of the resurection. In expressing my views thus,
I think I express the sentiments of the voters of Kingsley, if not of the whole county.

I noticed a letter in the Mountaineer of April 2d, from Kingsley, signed "Liberty," which is so devoid of truth that it is remarkable that any man should write it or have it printed. The should write it or have it printed. The only men who tried to dictate to the Kingsley people whom they should send to the county convention were a few Dufur politicians who had an ax to grind and by means of a keg of had been discussed in the county convention were a few Dufur politicians who had an ax to grind and by means of a keg of had been discussed in the county convention were a few learning the medicine and the next day was able to come to grind and by means of a keg of had been discussed in the county convention.
