FINLEY.

An Oregon Ploneer of 1845.

J. B. Nelson, a resident of North Yakima, was in the city last night on his way home from Dufur, where he has been undergoing medical treatment from Dr. Vanderpool for cancer. In an interview with a CHBONICLE representative, Mr. Nelson said that he camped at the mouth of Mill creek on the 15th of September, 1845, after having crossed the plains from Missouri. The only white persons here at that time were the two Methodist missionaries, Messre. Waller and Brewer, who had arrived here the year before. The only houses here were a couple of stone shanties built by the missionaries on the bluff. Mr. Nelson made his way down the river and camped on the bank of the Willamette where Portland now stands. Not a siagle claim had yet been taken up at that place. Mr. Nelson admired the location but could not think of stopping where there was not a white man nearer than Oregon City. At this latter place Mr. Nelson stayed for a time and at other places further south till 1859 when his health failed and he moved to Eastern Washington and became the first white settler in Yakima county. but is quite vigorous for his age. He is a fine conversationalist, possesses a remarkable memory and a large fund of interesting pioneer reminisences and

For nearly eight months the Colonel has been collecting data to be submitted to congress by Senator Dolph, showing what it is possible to accomplish in the way of irrigation in Eastern Oregon by a reasonable appropriation judiciously expended. The paper real last night was illustrated by a large chart which indicated all the elevations and depressions in the surface of the Eastern Oregon section with Cram and Phillips. all the available sources of supply for irrigating purposes. An amusing "case" came before the recorder this morning. Charley Haight recently put up a new shed on the west side of his building and after it was handsomely painted he tacked a card in front warning the public to "post no bills." Yesterday the whole front of the shed was found covered with a mis-cellaneous collection of patent medicine and tobacco advertisements. Engineer George Brown was charged with the crime and a warrant was issued for his arrest and duly served on him this morning by Marshal Gibons. When the bills." Yesterday the whole front of "case" came up in court, Charley Haight and Dick Fulton, on behalf of the prosecution. "swore" point blank that they had seen George Brown, the defendent, tack up a number of bills and posters on the shed referred to in the indictment. Then the prosecution rested and the 'prisoner" was asked if he wished to make a statement on his own behalf. He replied curtly : "I don't have to." 'True enough, you don't have to," said his honor. "It is entirely at your own pleasure." "Then I don't please" retorted the prisoner. "Then," solemly responded the recorder, "it remains Mr. Nelson is now in his 75th year this court. You, George Brown, have with me to pronounce the judgment of been charged with feloniously and maliciously posting patent medicine cards on the wall of Charley Haight's shed contrary to the ordinance in such case made and provided. How Ancient Builders Built.

The builders of Babel built well. Tradition relates that it was only a confu-sion of tongues that checked their aspi-ration. There can be no doubt that the foundations of the celebrated tower that was designed by its architect to reach "heaven" were of the broadest and heav iest sort; let us say vast walls of the most solid granite, bound and knit to-gether by that most excellent insoluble cement that is one of the lost arts to modern constructionists. Yet if latter day engineers be not hopelessly in error with concern to the conclusions they with.concern to the conclusions they have drawn as respects ancient ma-sonry from the ruins of ancient struc-tures, ancient builders counted only on the law of gravitation, which they knew in an empiric way, for the safety of the works they wrought. The projector of the Nag-on-Wat, whose walls and roof might have sheltered a St. Peter's and a St. Paul's and still have had room for a building like the Equitable in Broadway building like the Equitable in Broadway within its yast inclosures, would never dream of setting his masons to begin the laying of his walls say at about fifty feet from the ground .- Harper's Weekly.
