FAKE PROMOTERS.

A CERTAIN CLASS OF MEN TO BE FOUND ONLY IN NEW YORK.

Occasionally They Manage to Get Across the Water to London for a Few Weeks, but Lower Broadway is Their Stamping Ground—How They "Operate." "When I was in London I stopped at the Langham. I intended to combine business with pleasure. "I expected to sell a few thousand of our Irrigation Canal bonds. The day I arrived I strolled down stairs and into the hotel office. "I was staggered to recognize several faces from New York in the throng. "They were faces, too, of fellows whom I had seen hanging around the cafes and bars of lower Broadway. "They were generally seedy and seemed to be waiting for somebody to 'blow them off.' "How they ever got to London or what they were doing I don't know. One thing I do know, they spoiled my game, for I never mentioned bonds to any one during my eight months' stay. "No wonder London is a suspicious market for American investments. "Thus a gentleman, just returned from the other side, held forth on some of the New York promoters he met in London. "This class of 'promoters' is a peculiar New York one. They make a precarious living by bringing labor and capital together. "The capital they join to labor is not their own—far from it. With the true spirit of the broker, they give the benefit of their experience and business acquaintance to others and pocket only their commissions. "That is about the only thing pocketed in the whole transaction, except the bitter, bitter memory of the laborer or producer. "A short time since Mr. Jason Idlewild, a highly respected citizen of Painted Post, came to New York. "He brought with him his latest invention, a compound centrifugal churn. "He had a feeling in his simple, suburban mind that each and every resident of Fifth avenue was losing sleep because the hired girl could not get the skimmed milk which is sold to unsophisticated city folks to produce the proper amount of butter. So he hid himself to this city with his churn model packed in a dry goods case. Visions of untold wealth were in his mind. "Now, if there is any one in this wide world who can put an inventor on the right track it is this class of 'promoters.' "One of these individuals scented the festive granger and his packing case full of churn. So he took him gently in tow and piloted him right up against capital. "What Mr. Idlewild did not learn of 'controlling interests, charters, treasury stock' and other mysteries of corporate companies wasn't worth knowing. "After he had paid his 'broker the commissions and expenses' he went home. "Of course he was made vice president of the 'Compound Centrifugal Churn company.' When he struck his native heath again the Painted Posters congratulated him on his success. "His old occupation of rising with the lark at dewy morn and gathering the early varieties of hen fruit seemed irksome. "His duties as vice president of the churn company did not interfere with his regular farm work—not to any great extent. He was only required to be vice president—that was all. "But it all ended as it usually does—and the suffering citizens of Fifth avenue continue their struggle with an inferior grade of butter. "The poor, hard worked trustee of somebody's estate may have tried to knock Jay Gould out of the street. But Jay has an 'anchor tied cinch' on that particular portion of this somewhat wicked metropolis. "Now, the trustee would not for the world be dishonest or work any wrong to the fatherless or the widow. He therefore fills up his safe with stocks and bonds. These he buys from the 'fake promoter' for about fifteen dollars per thousand. "True, the value is hardly up to the amount of his trust, but that is the trustee's business. "So he turns over to his wards as beautiful a lot of bonds and stock certificates as ever escaped a junk shop. "And then the titles—'Alaska, Yucatan and Cape Horn Railroad First Mortgage Bonds' and the 'Bungtown Water Works Company's Bonds,' and others. "Who shall say it is not a goodly lot? "In the matter of providing purple and fine linen wherewith they may be clothed and food wherewith they are nourished these handlers of prodigious financial schemes—these links between capital and labor—are not in it to any great extent. "They know that the great financiers are not given to pointed toes and strap seam covert coats. "Therefore, if their own coats are a trifle shabby, if their trousers do have whiskers on the bottoms, if their shoes are rather gone at the heels and their derby are of the crop of three years ago they have their example in the master minds of finance. "Most of these 'promoters' are too strong to work. While their wives can keep their houses filled with boarders at six dollars a board, why should a 'promoter' bother his head about where the staff of life is to come from? "It sounds well for any boarding house keeper to inform the compiler of vital statistics for the city directory that her husband is 'a broker.' "Again, the table talk at dinner time is much enlivened by the broker's description of 'how Jay milked the market.' "The boarders fall to grumble and fall to wondering why he did not dine with his friend Jay. "One peculiarity of this 'promoter' is his watchword, 'tomorrow.' "Alas! for frail humanity, who believe that 'all things come to him who waits, the 'promoter' fails to bring the day for 'closing the deal' ninety-nine times out of a hundred.—New York Recorder.

Steals Ten or Twenty Dollars at a Time.

There is a man over on the north side who is slowly but steadily growing rich at the expense of the small storekeepers. He is a thief, but he is a successful one, and is possessed of at least a rudimentary idea of humor. For some weeks he has been making a good income by asking for change for a ten or a twenty dollar bill and then walking off with the bill as well as the change. He is a good looking man and well dressed, but the police are unable to find him.

He walked into a bakery at 63 Wells street, owned by L. Vizona. He was in his shirt sleeves, and in his hand carried a letter which was addressed "P. H. Rear, 243 Hubbard street, Milwaukee." Laying the letter down so that the address would show he produced a handful of change and asked if he could get a ten dollar bill in place of it, saying in explanation that he wanted to send ten dollars to a friend in Milwaukee and did not want to make his letter too heavy. Mrs. Vizona saw the letter, and as it seemed to bear out his story, produced the ten dollar bill.

The stranger took the bill, and showing it and the change in his pocket, skipped out the door and ran down Locust street. Mrs. Vizona shouted until she was hoarse, but the man got away. Then she saw the letter, which was still lying on the counter. It was unsealed and she opened it. Inside was a part of a sheet of note paper and on it was written, "This is what you might have expected." Mrs. Vizona still has the letter, but the fellow has her ten dollars. As there was an unused stamp on the letter she only loses $9.98.—Chicago Herald.

SICK Head-Aches. Image of a person's head with a lightning bolt striking it.

Sick-headaches are the outward indications of derangement of the stomach, and bowels. Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla is the only bowel regulating preparation of Sarsaparilla, it is seen why it is the only appropriate Sarsaparilla in sick-headaches. It is not only appropriate; it is an absolute cure. After a course of it an occasional dose at intervals will forever after prevent return.

John M. Cox, of 735 Turk Street, San Francisco writes: "I have been troubled with attacks of sick-headache for the last three years from one to three times a week. Some time ago I bought two bottles of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla and have only had one attack since and that was on the second day after I began using it."

A Severe Law.

TEA Image of a tea box with a teacup and saucer.

The English people look more closely to the genuineness of these staples than we do. In fact, they have a law under which they make seizures and destroy adulterated products that are not what they are represented to be. Under this statute thousands of pounds of tea have been burned because of their wholesale adulteration.

Tea, by the way, is one of the most notoriously adulterated articles of commerce. Not alone are the bright, shiny green teas artificially colored, but thousands of pounds of substitutes for tea leaves are used to swell the bulk of cheap teas; ash, sloe, and willow leaves being those most commonly used. Again, sweepings from tea warehouses are colored and sold as tea. Even exhausted tea leaves gathered from the tea-houses are kept, dried, and made over and find their way into the cheap teas.
