Statues in snowy marble no longer decorate the art halls of Boston. In the interest of realism an artist of that city has propagated a new fad which maintains that sculptured images must be of his images a rich scarlet, making the eyes and flesh the hue of the eyes and flesh of hving men, and gilds the hair. The impression left by his statuary must be that of a collection of bleached blondes wearing cosmestics and mysteratously petrified in heroic attitudes. While the fad lasts there will probably be added to the collection a bust of Horace showing a red, convival nose, and a statue of Diograpse with relied eletter. a statue of Diogenes with soiled clothes, a portable plung bath and a dark-lantern having a lighted wick inside.

According to dispatches yesterday the will of William Astor, lately deceased in Paris, leaves $60,000,000 to his son, John Jacob Astor third, a young man whose most remarkable achievement so far in life is his marriage to a pretty girl from Philadelphia. The bridegroom of the pretty girl is the father of a son six months old. He has three sisters all married, if Mr. Drayton is still to be regarded as the husband of one of them. These women are cut off with $2,000,000 each and Mrs. William Astor receives a dife income of $500,000. It ought to be explained that all these bequests to the sons and daughters of William Astor are made in trust for their children. That is the Astor fashion, though the will of T. Wright, whose death was announced in THE CHRONICLE yesterday, was the correspondence preliminary to the annual meeting of the Grand lodge of Good Templars in Oregon. The meeting was to have been held this year in The Dalles, but for want of a suitable hall, since the fire, session will probably be held in Portland. In the death of one so well known, the bereavement of a household becomes a community's sorrow. Cut off in his prime, Mr. Wright has left an enviable record. His career was a steady unfolding of latent powers and his future was full of promise. But to console his friends and to mitigate the bereavement of his family there may well come the knowledge that his career was that of a faithful, intelligent, conscientious believer in his work.

Mr. Jay Gould, who is said to have given up $1,000,000 for Chapultepec, is not the first American to take possession of that property. Some time in the '40s a that property. Some time in the '40s a party of Americans went down into Mexico and secured the entire site of Mr. Gould's purchase. And it did not cost them $7,000,000, either.

The naturalization of foreigners who cannot speak English is not surprising. Few newly made voters are so ignorant that they do not understand the deep Ciceronian eloquence of a pint of beer, pale and frothy. Beer is the volapuk of Signed:

We do not know which is the more diverting spectacle, the lively efforts of Mr. Hill to run down the presidency or the sinuous grace and alacrity with which the presidency eludes Mr. Hill.

Mr. J. P. Bleiter

Mr. J. P. Blaize, an extensive real estate dealer in Des Moines, Iowa, narrowly escaped one of the severest at-tacks of pneumonia while in the northtains that sculptured images must be colored in the hue of their human sim-ulacra. The propagandist is even now Blaize had occasion to drive several holding an exhibit of Greek plaster-cast which he has bedizened with a brush and some paint. He colors the mantles have several miles during the storm and was so thoroughly chilled that he was unable to get warm, and inside of an hour after his return he was threatened with a druggists.

TO THE TRADE AND CONTRACTORS

DESIRE IT TO BE UNDERSTOOD that I have appointed Wm. Butler & Co. exclusive agents for the sale of the "Oregon" lime, at The Dalles, and surrounding country. Other parties have, through surreptitious and unbusinesslike methods, obtained a small quantity of this lime, which may naturally cause the idea that Butler & Co. are not the exclusive agents of these goods.

Such, however, is not the fact, and further stock of this article cannot be obtained from others than Wm. Butler & Co. The trade, however, will not lose sight of the fact that the great strife to obtain the Oregon lime by other dealers proves conclusively that the "Oregon" is the best time in the market.
