The fine Italian band of the ex-editor of the Waco Sun is very observable in the local columns of the Sunday Welcome. An accomplished intermeddling granny-gossip he must needs regale the readers of the Welcome with matters relating to the Chronicle and its proprietors of no earthly interest to any one. His persistent habit of poking his nose into other people's business caused him the loss of his official head in The Dalles and will not conduce to protract his stay on the Welcome. The Chronicle, as an independent journal, has as good a right to refuse to support for office a republican candidate whom it may think morally incompetent, as a rabid democratic paper like the Welcome has to forsake its party affiliations and support the same candidate.

The protection speech of Lord Salisbury has created a great sensation in England, especially among his own organs and followers. In the business centers the premier is severely denounced. The English free trader is closely "joined to his idols." Salisbury had just as well "let him alone."

Rudyard Kipling comes unpleasantly near the truth when he says the "government of the largest city in America" (referring to New York) is a despotism of the alien, by the alien, for the alien.

If The Dalles intends to have a celebration on the Fourth, it is time some definite action was being taken towards that end.

GREAT WORK ON TYGH HILL.

Observations of a Practical Engineer on the Subject.
 Special to The Chronicle.
 WASH, May 20.—I have just returned from the great Tygh-hill grade. I say great, and in the sense I mean; it is truly great. Why, sir; just think of it. There has been removed and replaced, about 19,000 cubic yards of what engineers classify "mixed material," for a total sum not exceeding $2,000 at this writing. This beats the record. If there is any person inclined to doubt this I refer them to Trautwain's History of Excavations and Embankments, compiled from figures and facts, taken from actual experience for the last fifty years. Or the experience of any old and tried engineer, who has been kind enough to record for us his experience.

I truly believe that nowhere, will there be found an instance, of as much work being done, with no greater numbers of hours labor. I speak of this matter from a practical standpoint. It is a problem for engineers and professional managers of construction, and knocks the bottom out of all estimates based on ordinary labor, such as is generally employed in public works. It shows the possibilities of independent and interested labor judiciously managed.
 F. S. GORDON.

A visit to the dental parlors of Dr. D. Siddall today found the genial doctor putting the finishing touches on an upper set of teeth that made the reporter long for the touch of a magic wand that would plant just such a set in his own mouth to replace the battle scarred veterans that have waged warfare with saw-belly and hard tack, not to say anything of Irish potatoes, for half a century of rolling years. The set in question had an aluminum base, cast to fit the mouth while in a molten state, with American pink gum facing so perfectly natural in color that, when placed behind a pair of ruby lips, the most critical lover who ever worshipped at the shrine of the goddess of love and beauty could not tell the difference. The use of aluminum is a recent discovery in the dental art. The metal has less specific gravity than any other; it is non-magnetic, non-electric, non-corrosive, will not oxidize, change color or be in the least affected by the fluids of the mouth. The doctor claims to be the only dentist on the Pacific coast who can cast the aluminum plates and the only known dentist who can attach the gum facing on the aluminum, so that it will not, in the course of time, chip off. This latter is a discovery of his own.

Until further notice the Regulator will make trips to the Cascades and return on Thursdays and Sundays, leaving The Dalles at 7 a. m. Excursion rates, 50 cents for the round trip. 5-23dt

Assassinated After Seven Years.
 About seven years ago the village of Forest City, Pa., was excited over the mysterious disappearance of William Doolittle. One morning William left the house to buy some meat for dinner. During the forenoon the meat was brought to the house by the butcher, but William failed to appear when dinner time arrived. Months went by, but no trace of him could be found. Every one thought that he had been foully dealt with.

Saturday afternoon Doolittle arrived in Canondale, after an absence of over seven years. His mind had become deranged. The past was a blank to him, except at two or three intervals, when he could for a short time remember something of his house and family. Four years ago he found himself in Omaha, and then for the first time in three years remembered his name and that he had left his home in Forest City to buy some meat for dinner. He could not recall anything that occurred after he bought the meat. His wife and two children, who live in Canondale, greeted him as one from the dead. He left Omaha four years ago, and has been on the road working his way homeward ever since. —Philadelphia Times.

A Bowery Scheme.
 "Here you are now, warm your hands—only a penny—warm your hands, everybody—nice warm fire here for a penny." The cry was a little out of the ordinary, even on the Bowery.
 A youngster of say twelve years, of no telling what nationality, had inaugurated a unique business venture. It consisted of a big iron pall filled with live coals, arranged to conveniently toast one's cold fingers by, and the young inventor charged "a penny a warm."
 "Isn't this something new, Jimmy?" inquired the reporter, after having paid the required fee.
 "Yaas, I gep. Dis is my first night at de racket, and dey ain't much in it. I only got in seventeen cents since 3 o'clock. Ain't many as catches onto it at first."
 "Is it your own scheme?"
 "Yaas. Ye see Gippy, the chestnut roaster on the corner here, is always been sore on de chumps wot stop and warm der dukes at his fire, so I got an outfit and now Gippy sends 'em all over here to me. But dey ain't much in it." —New York World.

Extravagance in Smoking.
 Nestor Gianacis is a bright young Greek who some years ago moved to Cairo and engaged a small army of dark skinned men, women and children to make cigarettes for Americans to smoke.
 Mr. Gianacis is said to be the best judge of tobacco in the world. Last year 2,500,000 of his cigarettes passed through the Boston custom house and during one month 150,000 have been entered there. These cigarettes pay a duty of four dollars a pound and are sold at five cents apiece or forty cents for a box of ten cigarettes.
 By actual experiment it costs one-half a cent a minute to smoke an Egyptian cigarette, which makes them probably the most expensive thing in the smoking line. —Boston Herald.

Boston Gets an Egyptian Antique.
 The red granite column from the remains of the temple at the site of the Biblical Hanes, in Egypt, procured by the Rev. Dr. W. C. Winslow, of the Egypt exploration fund, from the excavations, has just arrived at the Museum of Fine Arts. The capital is an exquisite palm leaf design, and the total weight is from six to seven tons. Only the British museum has so fine a column among its treasures. —Boston Advertiser.

Manning and Simeoni.
 It is worth noting as a curious coincidence that Cardinals Manning and Simeoni were called to the cardinalate on the same day in 1875 and died on the same day in 1892. Furthermore, the last official letter written by Cardinal Manning a few days before his death was addressed to Cardinal Simeoni, the late prefect of the propaganda. —Pall Mall Gazette.

Liked His Books.
 Physicians and sufferers from the grip may find a useful hint in the announcement that at a recent reception given to Rudyard Kipling, in Melbourne, a sweet young thing approached the author with this flattering remark: "Oh, Mr. Kipling, I feel so proud to have met you. When I had the influenza, your books were the only things that did me any good." —Exchange.

Coins Under a Glacier.
 About 1837 a horsehoe was found under the ice of the glacier Theodul, in Switzerland, which led geologists to the idea that this pass, 3,822 meters high, was formerly not imbedded in ice. This has been further confirmed by a recent find of coins bearing the likenesses of Augustus and Diocletian. —Popular Science News.

An ingenious mail box has been offered for the approval of the government. It is operated by a timelock, which automatically displays a card announcing when the next collection will be made. It also stamps upon each letter as it drops in the very minute when it was placed in the box.

A woman in Asbury Park, N. J., is said to be in a dangerous condition through being poisoned by inhaling smoke from a cook stove filled with green wood. It is thought that the wood in the stove was covered with some poisonous vine or fungus.

Two neighbors in Stamp Creek, Ga., had a dispute about a couple of geese, and the matter was brought to court. After the costs had amounted to seventy dollars, the disputants compromised the matter by each taking one of the fowls.

There's a queer state of things in Richmond, Me., where a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been organized, but nobody will act as its agent.
