celebrated yesterday evening at St. Paul's Episcopal church, by the Rev. E. D. Sutcliff. The church was tastefully decorated for the occasion and numerous friends of the happy couple were present to witness the wedding ceremony. The party then adjourned to Mr. Crandall's residence on the Bluff where between twenty and thirty guests sat down to a magnificent supper. Here a number of Crandall were seceived, extending warm congratulations. The dining room and parlor of the Crandall residence were fairly embowered with magnificent bunches of roses, the tribute of friends in this city. The Dalles city band arrived about ten o'clock and played a number of choice selections. The party broke up a little before midnight after wishing the newly married couple many happy days.

DEMOCRATIC BALLY.

Speech by Capt. G. W. Bell on the Tariff Last Night.

A moderately well filled house greeted Captain G. W. Bell last night at the Court house. The gentleman discoursed in a quiet, easy and graceful manner. for fully two hours and a quarter on questions relating to the tariff. He was introduced by J. L. Story who said that while republicans were now in great spirits he did not believe they would be heard from on the 6th of June. He claimed that the republican party was to blame for the delay in opening the Cascade locks and that it was a democratic governor who had forced the party in the last legislature to give us temporary relief through the Cascade portthem

He thought the people should stand by the party that had stood by Captain Bell, on coming forward said he knew nothing of the local politics of Oregon or of candidates. These were matters his hearers must judge for themselves. He wanted to reason with, not instruct, his hearers. They were kingdom in the whole world. He was not there to abuse any men or party. Life was too short for abuse. Only small men did that. He believed opinions should come first, then party affiliation. All wealth was the product of labor. The production of wealth was a foot rise in the Columbia at The Dalles great thing; its concentration was dangerous. Thirty years ago we had no millionares, now 4,000 of them own the THURSDAY - - - MAY 26, 1892 half of all the wealth in the United States, and all their millions were accumulated in the last thirty years. There were three ways of acquiring wealth; first, by work, second, by inheritance, third, by appropriation of the fruit of other people's labor. Millionares were the privileged classes and the Court house where Rev. W. C. Curtheir wealth was accumulated through class legislation. The ways and means committee confers with manufacturers as to how much the people can bear. Then the manufacturers meet and regulate the output. There was no competition on wholesale prices. It was only among retailers. Prices were regulated by the tariff. The half a cent duty on refined sugar put fifteen millions into the pockets of the sugar refiners. Protection died in 1857 and was rather decently interred, but a tariff was levied in 1861 "to save the Union." It gives them the control of the commerce of telegrams from friends of Mr. and Mrs. the world. There was not a ship on the ocean carrying the American flag. Captain Bell then paid his respects to Carnegie and his millions, acquired, as he claimed, through the protective tariff on iron. We needed no protection for iron. England had to go down an average of 1,500 feet, into the bowels of the earth, for her iron. In the United States it was piled up in mountains that kissed the stars. of an able address, viewed from a free traders stand point. It was frequently interrupted by applause and was apparently well received by the democratic portion of the audience.

AN IMMENSE FLOOD.

A Sixty Poot Rise in the Columbia at The Dalles.

"The river rose sixty feet last night," said a guest to one of the waiters in the man & Corson, The Dalles. Umatilla house dinning room this morning at 5:30, in the hearing of a representative of THE CHRONICLE. "Sixty feet?" quered the astonished waiter. "Yes," replied the nonchalent guest. "Do you see that stake out there in the water; well, I put that there last night myself, and it is exactly sixty feet from the dry sand." "Humph!" indignantly interpolated a curious guest, who had by this time come over to the window to take in the sight, "you must be a greeny; if that rule worked the river has risen six miles at my place!" Then he wished miles at my place!" Then he wished to explain the method of water measurement on a rise, but guest No. 1 wouldn't listen; he was to smart to be educated by a hayseed; the clocks stop that time might wait his move, and all that, but he hadn't time to wait for the explanation; and before guest No. 2 had finished the stage drove away; but the story last night, from actual observation, did

W. H. TAYLOR, Foreman,

Is it not about time that the twaddle about Ellis being a nominee of the Portland ring was stopped? Two or three irresponsible sheets have been repeating the charge at regular intervals like pied parrots but have never attempted to give the smallest scintilla of proof. The burden of proof rests on those who make the charge. Gentlemen will you prove your statements or shut up? You cannot prove them and you know it.
