The friends of Judge Watkins have circulated a comparative record of the work done by himself, when on the bench of this judicial district and that of Judge Bradshaw, the present incumbent. The Sun made such a fuss about it that the public became anxious to see it. Indeed the Sun dared the friends of the impression that it was so favorable to Judge Bradshaw that the friends of yards of the spot. Judge Watkins dare not publish it. But the Dufur Dispatch met the Sun's demand and published the statement and there the writer saw it for the first time. We now present it to the readers of the Chronicle who can judge for themselves, if it deserves half the hard things the Sun has said about it.

WASCO COUNTY. Bradshaw held in all 64 judicial days, Bradshaw held in all 64 judicial days, and tried in all 27 jury cases.

Watkins held in all 35 judicial days, and tried in all 24 jury cases.

The three gentlemen who certify to the truth of this statement in their respective counties are wellknown, honorable men and accepting the statement as fair and true, which we believe it to be, we have a of last week puts it: "Judge Watkins, over sixty. the republican nominee, and Judge Bradshaw, the democratic nominee, have both made a good record for rushing business, each having served an unexpired term on the circuit bench by appointment. It is urged by Judge Watkin's friends that his record for a "rusher" is superior to that of Bradshaw, and this is denied by Judge Bradshaw's friends, who claim the opposite. The "comparative record" gives Watkins the better allowing in this respect, and the letter from the Wasco Co. Dem. Cen. Com., even admitting all its statements to be correct and impartial, still gives Watkins the better time. For example, the letter says that Judge Taylor tried seven cases for Watkins his first term. That brings his record down to 23 judicial days and 10 jury cases for that term, (there being 17 jury cases in all), but still leaves him ahead of Bradtried 10 jury cases during his first term. The statement that Judge Bird left a large amount of work for Judge Bradshaw to do has little force, and in no way affects the average time taken up by each case. In fact, Judge Bradshaw made a better average in his first term in Wasco than in his third. In regard to equity cases, nothing has been brought forward to indicate that one judge tried more of them than the other.

"Both judges have certainly made a record in the line of rushing that ought to satisfy the most exacting. We have heard nothing derogatory to the character of either of these gentlemen. Both have shown themselves well qualified for the office. It is urged by republicans that Judge Watkins has lived in the district about 20 years, and is closer identified with the people than Judge Bradshaw, who has been in the district about three or four years. Judge Watkins having served in the Oregon senate last session, was very instrumental in securing the portage railroad around the Cascades, which has greatly benefited the farmers in some parts of the district. On the other hand Judge Bradshaw, being the present incumbent, has become well known also, and very popular with his party, we respect and esteem both these gentlemen, and regret that a portion of the press of this state should bring reproach upon the high office to which they aspire, by imputing base metives to one of the candidates and his friends, and thus engendering party bit-

THE CHRONICLE means to be perfectly fair towards Judge Bradshaw, who has made an excellent judge and is himself a the Cascade portage that they will never be able to pay. In one word, there is no reason under heaven why any man who is a republican should scratch his ticket in favor of Judge Bradshaw.

FIGHTING WITH A BABOON.

A Man's Desperate Hand to Hand Battle with a Monster Anthropoid. I was walking through my lands and had my gun with me, and the baboons were screaming on the top of the rocky precipice that overhangs my homestead. The dogs in the farmyard, on hearing the noise the baboons were making, rushed up to the mountain and were soon engaged in a deadly fight. I took up my gun and climbed up the mountain for the purpose of assisting the dogs and in the hope of saving them from being torn to pieces. When I reached the summit of the krantz a number of baboons fied. I fired and wounded one in the shoulder; he was immediately pursued and tackled by the only dog left, the others having been torn to pieces. The struggle for life or death was taking place between the wounded baboon and the dog on the very brink of a precipice. I had not another cartridge for my gun, so I put it Judge Watkins to publish it, leaving down and picked up a couple of large stones and walked to within a few and defiant manner, his eyes gleaming with anger and his huge jaws working together as if in anticipation of the crunching that was in store for me. I just had time to hurl the stone in my now upraised hand at him when he was upon me. He seized me by the leg first and bit me with such violence that I thought every bone in my leg was smashed to atoms. I kicked with all my might, I tried to get hold of a stone, I attempted to seize him by the throat, dealt him several blows with the fist, but it was all useless; the strength of the enraged African mandril overpowered me completely. After he had finished with my leg he raised himself on his hind legs, put his arm around me and seized hold of me on the chest with his powerful jaws. What could I do? Every now and then he let go his hold of my breast and snapped at my throat. I seized him by the throat with my right hand and clinched my fingers, but he would not yield his grasp for a single moment. Every time I moved he dragged me nearer to the edge of the precipice, and we were now within three feet of the brink and the ground sloping down to it. I knew that if I for a moment -lost my footing down we should go into the chasm below. The wounded baboon and the dog, that were responsible for the awful predicament in which I now found myself, had just rolled over into the abyss. We had been at it nearly an hour, and as the baboon showed no signs of releasing me I felt I record that neither of the judges need should not be able to hold out much be ashamed of. As the Fossil Journal longer, as I am an old man, considerably

At this stage I bethought myself of a enknife I had in my waistcoat pocket. If I could only get it out I might ward him off by stabbing him in the face. 1 gradually got my left hand into my pocket and got the knife, the brute scratching and tearing my face with his hands all the while. I got it to my mouth and held it there till I had an opportunity of opening it with my left hand. I then began stabbing and prod-ding him, but the knife was not large enough to do him much damage. I drew blood, however, the sight of which only made him more vicious still. By this time I had scarcely a vestige of clothing left, and my lacerated body bore tokens of what a south African baboon can do when he chooses to tackle and fight an unarmed man.

I was wondering how all this was go ing to end, when one of the dogs that had been wounded in the fight and had recovered sufficiently to make his way to where we were seized the animal all), but still leaves him ahead of Brad-shaw, who held 25 judicial days, and from behind. I felt the brute wished to PRICE, and may depend that we have get at the dog, He threw himself from me upon the dog; they had one rough and tumble, and then the baboon walked sullenly away along the ridge of the Cut from mountain water; no slough or precipice, looking back from time to time as if undecided whether he should renew the attack. It was some time before I could recover sufficient strength to descend the mountain. I got home however, and the dog, too, after an en-counter such as I shall never forget, and the like of which I hope never to experience again.—Graff-Reinet Advertiser.

Count Pulaski's Horsemanship. In the American army of the Revolution there were few who could equal Count Pulaski either in horsemanship or as a swordsman. His feats were the wonder and envy of his officers, and many were the serious injuries received in trying to imitate him. It is related of him that, with his horse at full gallop—and he always rode a magnificent charger—he would discharge his pistol, toes it in the air and catch it by the barrel, then hurl it at some object in advance; and then, without in the least checking the speed of his horse, he would slip one foot from the stirrup, and, bending over toward the ground, recover his pistol and wheel into line with as much precision as though he were engaged in ordinary exercise.— New York Ledger.

What Nature Has Done for Us.

If an elephant was as altisonant or farcounding as a nightingale in proportion to his bulk, his trumpeting could be easily heard around the world. On like conditions an ox bellowing in Australia could be heard in New York about fifteen hours after making the noise.—St. Louis Republic.
