STATE OFFICIALS.

Governor: S. Penneyer; Secretary of State: G. W. McFried; Treasurer: Philip M. McLean; Sup't. of Public Instruction: E. R. McElroy; Senators: J. N. Dolph, J. H. Mitchell; Congressman: B. Hermann; State Printer: Frank Baker.

COUNTY OFFICIALS.

County Judge: C. N. Thornbury; Sheriff: D. L. Cates; Clerk: J. B. Crossen; Treasurer: Geo. Eubank; Commissioners: H. A. Leaveness, Frank Kincaid, John E. Bernhart; Assessor: J. H. Mitchell; Surveyor: E. F. Sharp; Superintendent of Public Schools: Troy Shelley; Coroner: William Mitchell.

The Chronicle feels a deep interest in the re-election of Hon. Binger Hermann in the first congressional district of Oregon, and shall be greatly disappointed if he is not again chosen. In view of his close sympathy with the mass of the people, and his work in Washington for their benefit, it would be a strange revolution, as well as the basest ingratitude, if the people of his district were to set him aside. One can never be certain of anything in politics. The surprises of two years ago in Kansas was enough to shake all faith in political predictions. People sometimes become stumped, so to speak, and the power of reflection seems bereft. Even gratitude is blinded. From what we can hear concerning certain portions of the valley, Mr. Hermann may be elected by a phenomenal majority, and he may be defeated. Nothing would surprise us. The caprices of the human mind are sometimes beyond our own analysis. But the vote of Mr. Hermann on the silver question; his consistent record against monopoly and corporation influences in legislation; his record on all matters affecting the agricultural interests, whenever they have sought national legislative aid, should combine him to the farmers of this state. His attitude on the wool question should be most satisfactory to all wool growers. His name has never been associated with any scandals at the National Capitol, or in any jobs or unclean legislation. He has labored for one common end—the advancement and prosperity of all parts of Oregon, and the honor of her citizens. We cannot, for one moment, believe otherwise than that he will be returned by a very large majority of the votes of his constituency on Monday next. We have too much faith in the people to doubt the result. They have always sustained Mr. Hermann, and we feel assured they will now stand by him.

Chauncey M. Depew arrived in Chicago last night, and speaking of the possibility of Blaine being a candidate, he said Harrison was almost certain to be the nominee of the convention, but in case Blaine was nominated and refused, then Harrison could not be a candidate for an office declined by the chief officer of his cabinet. The demoralization of such an event would spread all over the country, and the party would be defeated before the election began. The inevitable and irresistible logic of the situation is the nomination of Harrison. The only chance to beat Harrison is that the convention should vote for half a dozen favorite sons and prevent a choice until his opponents could concentrate on somebody. The supreme effort to induce Blaine to become a candidate has practically retired everybody but him, so that unless Blaine allows his name to be presented, Harrison will be nominated by the potential force of his record and friends, and by default of his opponents. He said nothing could be more suggestive of the difficulties of the situation to the opponents of Harrison than the spectacle of practical politicians like Platt, Quay, Clarkson and others, flirting with the ghost of Caesar and the coffin of Mahomet.

Recently a Chicago politician in public quoted the declaration of independence as declaring that "all men are created free and equal." This is a common error, inexcusable at all times, but in this instance reprehensible because it was used as an argument to prove that the founders of the republic knowingly pronounced a falsehood. It would have been absurd for Thomas Jefferson and his slave-holding associates to declare that all men are created free and equal. They merely said that "all men are created equal." It was in the interest of civil rights for the colored men in the south that the speech referred to was delivered. Orators inclined to quote the declaration of independence or the national constitution in demanding reforms politic should be tolerably exact.

NOTICE TO ICE CONSUMERS.

As manager of The Dalles Ice Co. I wish to contradict the statements that I was only acting as agent for an outside company. I own one half interest in the company, and will sell ice this year and for years to come, and should a crop of natural ice come in this locality we will put up enough to supply this city for three or four years and Spokane companies will then have to withdraw their agents from here. Respectfully, W. S. CRAM, Manager.

HORRID BEDFELLOWS

TARANTULAS CRAWL ALL OVER A SLEEPING TRAVELER.

A Tired Camper Who Awoke One Morning to Feel a Poisonous Reptile Exploring His Anatomy, While Another Made a Bed of the Man's Upright Hair.

Joseph Grandelmyer, a well known mining man of Nevada, has passed through many startling experiences during a residence of twenty-eight years in the far west, but is perhaps the only man who can boast of having had a round baker's dozen of deadly tarantulas for bedfellows and surviving the terrible experience without material injury. It happened a number of years ago, but even now it causes cold shivers to chase up Mr. Grandelmyer's spinal column when his mind reverts to that particular event. However, surrounded by a circle of friends at the Palace hotel a few evenings since, he was induced to relate the incident.

"In 1864 I came to San Francisco," said the gentleman, and with the hopefulness of youth determined to make my fortune. I had a little money saved up, but was a raw tenderfoot, and whatever I put my money into failed to pan out. Finally I concluded to strike out for Nevada. It was a new section of country then, that had been explored to a very limited extent, and when I made known my intention many and urgent were the requests for me to refrain from being so foolish as to encounter dangers in such a wild and almost unknown country.

"Nothing daunted, however, and not allowing myself to be dissuaded from my purpose, one day in the summer of 1864, after inducing three acquaintances to join me, I set out for the land of sagebrush. My particular object in going was to better my fortune by any method I could. Two of the party were prospectors, and the fourth, a Dr. Heath, went along to spy out a good location for a hog ranch. Well, after crossing the Sierras at Walker's pass, we found ourselves in Owen's valley, which is now in Inyo county. Dusk was approaching, and when, after riding a distance in the teeth of a cold wind, we found ourselves at a deserted adobe hut by the roadside we halted, unpacked and unsaddled our animals, and prepared to camp for the night.

A TERRIBLE AWAKENING. "There was feed for the horses in abundance, and while one staked them out the others began preparations for supper and made the beds ready. My friends preferred sleeping under a large oak tree near, but I chose a spot adjoining the old adobe house, where I spread my blankets close to the wall where the wind would not reach me. After a hasty meal we all retired to our respective beds on the ground and readily dropped off to sleep.

"I presume it was within an hour of daybreak when I awoke with a sudden start. A peculiarly dreadful feeling, worse than any nightmare, took possession of me. I felt paralyzed and was afraid to stir. There was something moving on my face. It was not a large object, but as it moved about the trail left seemed to scorch my face. I felt the thing traverse my face from the left eye down over my nose and mouth. Then it crossed to the other side and explored in the region of my ear. Then it was gone.

"I knew it was not a snake gliding over my face, but some animal much smaller, though what it was I was utterly unable to conjecture. I was wide awake, of course, but such an uncomfortable horror held me fast that I was unable to move a muscle and gazed helplessly up at the stars. Once I tried to call out to my companions, but not a sound could I muster. A lay there rigid as a log, maybe for one minute, maybe for five, when I again knew that the same thing, or something like it, was on my hand, which rested outside the blanket, and a cold chill ran up my arm and through my whole body. Still I was absolutely powerless to move a limb, and involuntarily closed my eyes, almost expecting to feel them closed in death, so dreadful and indescribable was the sensation.

A HORRIBLE SUSPENSE. "Next I knew 'it' was climbing up over my throat, then to my chin and about my nose. An irresistible impulse caused me to open my right eye, and I saw by the dim light the fiery eyes of a big tarantula looking into mine, with its hairy body on my face, not two inches away!

"Knowing that death or at least painful injury might result if I moved my body, I immediately dropped the eyelid and had the satisfaction of feeling the sprawling spider crawl over that eye to my forehead and into my hair, where it prepared a nest and finally settled down, no doubt as snugly as a bug in a rug. You may think you can imagine my feelings, but you cannot. For a full half hour, I should judge, I endured all the suspense and torment that comes to most mortals in a lifetime, and allowed another spider to slowly crawl up my leg, not knowing at what time I would feel those black fangs sink into my flesh.

"But, thank God, that did not happen, or I should probably not now be alive. Ages after that, so it seemed, Dr. Heath arose, and, after dressing, came to see if I was awake. I whispered to him the particulars of my plight, and in my hair, which had been standing on end for I don't know how long, he discovered and at once killed one of the tarantulas, an immense fellow, fully three inches long. Carefully turning back the blankets and examining me, he found twelve others that had undoubtedly sought my quarters for warmth. These he quickly but quietly dispatched in a manner not to alarm the others. When the strain was over I fainted and was delirious with brain fever for many days. Since then, you may depend upon it, I have always taken good care in the selection of a camping spot, for of all the bedfellows one can encounter one of the most terrific-trying is a tarantula."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Rheumatism Cured in Three Days.

Miss Grace Littlejohn is a little girl, aged eleven years, residing in Baltimore, Ohio. Read what she says: "I was troubled with rheumatism for two years, but could get nothing to do me any good. I was so helpless that I had to be carried like a babe, when I was advised to get a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I got it from our druggists, Mr. J. A. Kumber, and in three days I was up and walking around. I have not felt any return of it since and my limbs are limber as they ever were." 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

NEW TO-DAY.

TO THE PUBLIC.—It having come to our knowledge that a party in The Dalles in selling lime has made the assertion that he charges more for other brands than the "Oregon" because they are better, thereby implying that the "Oregon" is an inferior article, we desire to state that the "Oregon" is the strongest lime on the market; that it will work more plastic and leave the work when set stronger and firmer than any other lime at present manufactured in either Oregon or Washington. Wm. Butler & Co., Agents at The Dalles for the "Oregon" lime, are instructed to furnish, free of charge, any and all Oregon lime, which does not fully come up to the stipulations above set forth. The object of this notice is solely to defend our goods against the false imputations and statements of any person whatsoever. The Or. Marble and Lime Company, by T. F. Osborn, General Agt. 5-24dwlm
