It can hardly be doubted that the Australian ballot law has proved, in the main, satisfactory to the people, but, as might have been expected, its first trial has been attended with difficulties that ought to be greatly diminished hereafter. In every precinct defective ballots were found in the boxes and in some cases these amounted to a considerable per centage of the returns. Numbers were unable to prepare their ballots so as to comply with the law, and it was impossible for the judges to make anything out of them. But the law effected some good; it threw the ward strikers, who used to peddle prepared ballots for the man who had the biggest sack, completely out of employment. It made it practically useless and unprofitable to fill voters with liquor and while in that condition march them to the polls and have them vote the ticket placed in their hands, and it must have greatly diminished the practice of purchasing votes. Whatever faults have been discovered in its operation, and there were more than one, can be easily rectified by the next legislature.

It was telegraphed yesterday as an astonishing thing that an association of servant girl anarchists had been discovered in Minnesota. The only astonishing thing about all that is that such a discovery should cause any astonishment. Servant girl anarchists! The world is full of them. How many ladies have gone into the kitchen and found that in a state of anarchy? And as anarchy and socialism are near neighbors, how many ladies have not gone into their kitchens at night and found a perfect socialist society, composed of the servant girl and the hired man of the next neighbor? On the day that the family is served with hash, who has failed to notice that the hash itself came nearer being anarchy than it did corn beef and potatoes? Well, we should remark! The train dispatcher for the telegraph in the east had better bend his massive brain and exercise his eagle eye in trying to discover any place where servant girls are not anarchists and where they have not always been.

The democrats in this county have elected the sheriff, clerk, county judge and county commissioner. It is believed that Smith of Sherman county has beaten McDaniel for joint senator. Watkins and Bradshaw will have a close race for the circuit judgeship, with the chances in favor of Bradshaw who may be able to overcome Watkins' majority of about 150, when Crook county is heard from.

In Washington county Tongue is defeated for senator. This result is due chiefly to the independent candidacy of Hare for circuit judge, which stirred up and brought together all the element of opposition, the weight of which fell upon Tongue. Nevertheless, Tongue is the ablest man in Washington county, and it will not be long till the people will want him again.

In addition to the democratic vote, Chamberlain for attorney-general, has also received the people's party vote. This great reinforcement has elected him. Where all elements of opposition can be united against a republican, in the present state of parties in Oregon, he will be defeated. In this way Penoyer was elected over Thompson two years ago.

The bogus reformers in Multnomah county, known as the "citizens' party" made a stubborn fight and have gained a substantial victory. The reformers had the "sack" and they used it generously while "Jim" and "Joe" had no sack and got fed. Political success in Portland depends largely on the size of one's sack.

An impression has recently struck the versatile brain of the editor of the East Oregonian, and it has left the "feeling" that Governor Penoyer is "demagogic." That impression was a long time getting in its work.

The island of Mauritius, where the recent terrible hurricane occurred, is where the scene of the story of "Paul and Virginia" is laid.

Woman's Dainty Underwear.

Just what sort of underwear to assume is one question that troubles the average woman very much. She doesn't want to wear so much that it will be bulky, and she doesn't want to wear too little for fear she will catch cold. She tries first one and then another shaped garment, and the wise woman is she who, having at last hit upon that which is most comfortable, makes it most dainty and assumes it for good. Very little linen is used nowadays for one's lingerie, the preference being given to cambric, Victoria lawn, nainsook or percale. The last is noted with tiny dots or wee flowers in pink, blue or lavender upon the white ground. Then when the garment is finished the edges have a triple scallop or a sharp point embroidered in cotton of the same color as the figure. This material, with its simple finish, is liked for sack shaped chemises, for night-dresses and for drawers. It is seldom, if ever, used for skirts.

The fancy for silk nightdresses still exists, but as there always have been women who would wear nothing but the clear white lawn or nainsook, and as these women are many, the makers of underwear are specially catering to them. Very much more fine work, that is, handwork, can be put upon a nainsook gown than upon a silk one, and the needlewoman can make more fine tucks, fancy stitches, gatherings, hemstitching and drawing of threads than ever would seem possible.—Mrs. Mallon in Ladies' Home Journal.

The Bayeux Tapestry.

Tapestry was brought into general use in western Europe, with many other elegancies of life, by the Moors of Spain. The oldest known specimen is the Bayeux tapestry, an epic in embroidery, carefully treasured for centuries in the cathedral of Bayeux, and now preserved in the hotel de ville of that place. Miss Strickland says of this piece of work: "It is beyond all competition the most wonderful achievement in the gentle craft of needlework that ever was executed by fair and royal hands." It was done by Matilda of Flanders, wife of William the Conqueror, and the ladies of her court. It is a coarse linen cloth, 214 feet long and 20 inches wide, on which is worked in woolen thread of various colors a representation of the invasion and conquest of England by the Normans.

It contains the figures of about 625 men, 300 horses, fifty-five dogs, forty ships and boats, besides a quantity of quadrupeds, birds, trees, houses, castles and churches, all executed in the proper colors, with names and inscriptions over them to elucidate the story. It is a valuable historic document, as it gives a correct and minute portraiture of the Norman costumes and their manners and customs.—Woman's Work.

Ailments of the Eyes.

No organ of the body is liable to a greater variety of ailments than the eye. More than forty such diseases are enumerated in medical works. Some of these tend toward blindness, partial or complete. Some are highly contagious. Some are peculiar to the earliest stages of infancy; some to old age. Some are due to other diseases; some originate with the eye itself; some are the result of external wounds. Some are brought on by the improper use of the eye; some by the abuse of other organs. Some are partially or wholly curable; others are not.

As we have two eyes, the loss of one does not materially affect the other. The double provision is a wise and benevolent one in the case of an organ exposed to so many accidents from without and so many diseases from within.—Youth's Companion.

A Professional Housecleaner.

A woman in this city has a certain number of customers, all of whom are persons of wealth and willing to pay her well. She goes to the house of each customer at stated periods and removes all the furniture, curtains and pictures from the drawing rooms. She then directs the cleaning of the rooms and the furniture, taking care that the latter is not scratched or injured in the handling, and that all blemishes are removed by careful oiling. All the furnishings are then replaced according to her ideas. As she has excellent taste, she manages to create a good impression each time, but never duplicates a setting. She suggests the removal of unnecessary pieces or the addition of odd bits that will fill out her plan, and keeps the customer informed in regard to the changes of styles.—New York Sun.

Bimini and the Fountain of Youth.

Bimini was a fabulous island firmly believed in by the Indians of the Antilles, though they could give no further clue to its location than that it lay some hundreds of leagues north of Hispaniola. On this island was the famous fountain of youth which had the power of restoring youth and giving perpetual health and vigor. It was the search for this fountain that led Ponce de Leon and Hernando de Soto to Florida, on the outskirts of which the island was generally supposed to be situated.—St. Louis Republic.

The Heart Beats Eight Hours Every Day.

That wonderful piece of mechanism, the heart, appears to work continually day and night, from birth to death, but in reality there are short pauses or rests between each beat, which, though minute in themselves, amount up in the aggregate to eight hours out of every twenty-four. These short pauses enable the heart to repair the waste which constant work entails and without which rests it would break down.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Why the Wren is King.

The wren is chased every St. Stephen's Day on account of it betraying the Saviour by chattering in a clump of furze where he was hiding. It is called the "king of all birds," because it concealed itself beneath the wing of the eagle when that lordly bird claimed supremacy by soaring highest. "Here I am," said the wren, mounting above the eagle's head when the latter could go no higher.—Irish Times.

A Pointer.

"I am very much pleased with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says H. M. Range, the druggist at Chatsworth, Ill. "During the epidemic of influenza here it took the lead and was very much better liked than other cough medicines." The grip requires precisely the same treatment as a very severe cold, for which this remedy is so efficient. It will promptly loosen a cold and relieve the lungs, soon effecting a permanent cure, while most other medicines in common use for colds only give temporary relief. 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists, d&w

Rheumatism Cured in Three Days.

Miss Grace Littlejohn is a little girl, aged eleven years, residing in Baltimore, Ohio. Read what she says: "I was troubled with rheumatism for two years, but could get nothing to do me any good. I was so helpless that I had to be carried like a babe when I was advised to get a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I got it from our druggists, Mr. J. A. Kumber, and in three days I was up and walking around. I have not felt any return of it since and my limbs are limber as they ever were." 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists, d&w

NEW TO-DAY.

TO THE PUBLIC.—It having come to our knowledge that a party in The Dalles in selling time has made the assertion that he charges more for other brands than the "Oregon" because they are better, thereby implying that the "Oregon" is an inferior article, we desire to state that the "Oregon" is the strongest line on the market that it will work more plastic and leave the work when set stronger and firmer than any other line at present manufactured in either Oregon or Washington. Wm. Butler & Co., Agents at The Dalles for the "Oregon" line, are instructed to furnish, free of charge, any and all Oregon line, which does not fully come up to the stipulations above set forth. The object of this notice is solely to defend our goods against the false imputations and statements of any person whatsoever. The Or. Marble and Lime Company, by T. F.
