The Australian Ballot Law.

A citizen propounds the following inquiry: "As I am informed it is the intention to conduct the coming Dalles City election under the old law. Have we any election law in Oregon now, except what is called the Australian ballot law; and as The Dalles city charter provides that Dalles City elections shall be held under the state law, how can any other law be used?"

Answer.

Section 9 of the Australian ballot law says: "All general or special elections hereafter held in this state shall be conducted under the provisions of this act."

Section 23 of The Dalles city charter says: "All laws of this state regulating ceedings and matters incidental thereto, shall apply to and govern elections unprovided." The charter provides for self up, scratched his head, put on his hat, and walked off. ber of days notice required, the time THE CHRONICLE namesakes in Oregon when the polls shall open and close, the garding the ballots or the mode of casting them-the most radical and importof the two sections quoted above can be same dress for the La Grande Chronicle tive that our city elections shall be conducted according to the provisions of the Never was money spent in Wasco new law except in so far as the charter

CHEERING TO SETTLERS.

Three Years Allowed Settlers to Pay For Forfelted Lands.

Captain Lewis of the United States land office at this place, received the following telegram last evening:

Washingron, D. C., June 10, 1892.—
[Captain John W. Lewis, The Dalles, Or.]—Just passed through the house the bill extending the time for three years to settlers for payment for forfeited lands. The act will become a law next week.

Instantaneous Portraits. Chapman Block, The Dalles, Oregon.

The late Miss Theodosia Burr Davis, of New York, was a dear friend of mine in the long, long ago days. The niece and ward of Matthew L. Davis, the intimate associate and biographer of Burr. she had a store of anecdotes of men who figured prominently in national affairs seventy or eighty years since; but this one—which I shall repeat as nearly as possible in her own words-interes me most of all:

"I was a schoolgiri of fourteen, spending a short vacation at Uncle Matthew's and went to the head of the stairs. 'Come down,' he said. 'There is a gentleman here who wishes to see you.' I hesitated, held back by some undefinable fear. Again he said, 'Come down,' and in such tones that I dared not disobey. He led me into the parlor, and there on the sofa sat an old man whom I had never before seen. Very old he looked, dressed in the costume of the last century, with his snow white hair drawn back and tied in a cue behind. But his eyes—they were not old. Large, dark and deep, they flashed with all the fire of youth. I never saw such eyes in man or woman. They fascinated while they frightened me.

"My uncle led me forward and said:
Colonel Burn this is the shill of when

Colonel Burr, this is the child of whom I spoke. I need not tell you whose name she bears.' The old man rose, took my hand in his and held me out at arms length and looked at me-looked at me with those eyes which seemed to see into my very soul. Only a moment, but the moment was an hour. Then he dropped my hands and exclaimed in a voice trembling with emotion: 'Take her away. Matthew, take her away! I cannot bear it!' I saw him only once afterward; it was on Broadway, and I tried to slip by him unperceived. But when I turned to look back he was standing still, following me with those wonderful, wonderful eyes. They haunt me still, and will, I know, while memory lasts."-St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Macaulay as a Host. Macanlay was a pattern host. On his own account, it is true, he was no epicure, and his nephew tells us that at any fied with a dinner such as is served at a a sad moral defect, but happily his con-scientious views of the obligations of hospitality prevented his guests from suffering by it. He generally selected by a half conscious preference dishes of established character and traditional fame. His Dissenting friends he treated to a fillet of veal, "which be maintained to be the recognized Sunday dinner in good old Nonconformist families." On Michaelmas day he would have been wretched had no goose smoked on the board. At Christmus he never forgot the old historic turkey. If he was entertaining a couple of schoolboys who could construe the fourth satire of Juvenal, he would reward them for their proficiency with a dish of mullet that might have passed muster on the table of an augur or an emperor's freedman With regard to To this the captain sent the following the contents of his cellar, Macanlay prided himself on being able to say with

One marked difference divided the generals of Frederick William III from those of Napoleon. The Duke of Brunswick was seventy-one years old. Prince Hohenlohe, sixty, and among subordinate commanders were men of sixty eight, seventy and seventy-four. Lefebyre, the oldest French general, was barely fifty-one, Augereau, forty-eight: Bernadotte, forty-two: Napoleon, Ney, only thirty-five.

Excepting for the intervention in Holland in 1787, and the Duke of Bruns-Twenty-five double sheets of tangle-foot fly paper for fifty cents at Snipes & in 1792, the Prussian army—like that of Kineraly's. 6-11-3t Great Britain in 1854—had suffered writing in 1798 under the title "Is it necessary that we should only have young generals?" decided the question in the negative; and in the British army today an officer of the same age as that of Napoleon or Murat at Jena may find his energies confined to the command of a company, whatever his capacity .-Edinburgh Review

Claims Before Congres

Immediately after every change of administration, claims which were disallowed by the outgoing power pour in by thousands, to be considered and rejected again. Applicants imagine, evidently, that what one party will not grant the other may grant. Their persistence in many cases is astonishing. One citizen, who has not the shadow of a right to back him up, has written more than his demand, and has expended more money in postage than the value of the claim. He has addressed his communications on the subject to every public official in Washington, from the president down, and even to the Chinese and other foreign ministers -- Washington

Went to Church Once.

A Maine woman who had an irrelig'ous husband kept driving at him until she finally got him to go to church. Now mark how she was rewarded. Instead of following the service he looked at the congregation and noticed how much more landsomely the other wom-en were dressed than his wife. This fact pricked him to the heart as no words of the minister could, and the next day he gave his wife $500 and told her to go and buy some clothes. Need we enlarge on the moral of this story? We think not. -New York Tribune.
