It may be none of the business of THE CHRONICLE, nevertheless, notwithstanding, it is an opinion pretty freely shared that consolidation will not save a broad division in Multnomah affairs if Albina is hoodoed out of a free bridge. That the people down there keep moving, and show no signs of discouragement, is positive proof of earnestness. On Saturday they turned over a petition with 9,000 names appended, addressed to the secretary of war, in which it is recited that the proposed free bridge would benefit one-fourth of the people of Portland, approaching city election. and that it would be no material obstruction to the navigation of the river. Thirty-five other petitions of similar import still out, will swell the number of signatures to 20,000.

Judge Thornbury, and Messrs. Schano, Burgett and Haight left yesterday for their annual pilgrimage to the shrine of Isaac Walton, on Trout lake, Klikitat county. They were accompanied as far as White salmon by about half a huudred friends, ladies and gentlemen, all of whom were heard to express regrets that they could not go on to the lake. At white salmon the outfit of the judge and his party comprising a team, a saddle horse, and a well-stocked department of suplies; left the Regulator and took to the hills amidst the cheers and kindly wishes of all on board, separating signals flying upon both land and water until White Salmon to Tront lake, is said to each receded from the sight of the other.

Yesterday was a gorgeous one for an excursion on the middle Columbia, and as the steamer's prow turned homeward at 2 p. m., from the Cascades, there was not breeze enough to ruffle the water, and the cloud of smoke and steam ascended straight heavenward, rendering any part of the boat comfortable. Capt. McNulty appeared also to be in his best mood, if such times ever occur to the genial Commodore, and everybody in the party was delighted with the trip. The Regulator will make another, similar trip, on Sunday next.

A Jilted Artist's Suicide

Paul Canon, artist, journalist, mem-ber of a half dozen clubs and looked upon at St. Joseph, Mo., as a rival to James Whitcomb Riley, walked into Levin's gun store and asked to look at some revolvers. Selecting a weapon of 38-caliber Canon inquired if the price included cartridges. On being told that it did he requested the storekeeper to load it for him. Taking the weapon in his hand Canon said:

"Are you sure this gun will shoot "If it doesn't you needn't pay for it."

replied the dealer.
"It looks like a good weapon," said Canon, "but I'd like to bet you the cigars I couldn't hit a mark six inches away. "I'll take you," quickly replied the

"All right; here goes," said Canon. and before the horrified shopkeeper could interfere Canon had placed the pistol to his temple and sent a bullet through his brain.

On his person was found a note addressed simply to "Adelaide." It said: "DEAR GIRL-You have wedded wealth and I am wedded to death. Which is the happier? PAUL."

It told the whole story. A short time ago the announcement of his engage ment to one of the most beautiful girls in the city was made. A wealthier suitor appeared on the scene and she had heart-lessly jilted him.—Cor. Chicago Tribune.

It would seem evident to any one who has been watching passing events and expressions of precedence that the popu lar track of the future will be the regu lation mile track, with quarter mile turns, quarter mile stretches, railroad curves and grades, made of good, elastic soil, and on a level plane. All of the "solid comforts" of trotting races are with this form of track, because spectators can see what is going on, and the danger to horses and drivers is reduced to a minimum. There is no use of thinking or talking about the trotting turf remaining a popular resort for the recreation loving public unless trotting races are conducted on a track and in such a manner that spectators can get something for their money .- Turf, Field

A Mice Plague in Scotland.

There is a veritable mice plague on the Scottish borders, which has done immense damage to pasturage. "The herbage has been totally destroyed, not a vestige of green having been left. There is consequently no alternative but to remove the greater number of sheep and find food for them elsewhere. ft is believed that at least two-thirds of the sheep on the affected farms will have to be removed, so that the outlook for spring is very gloomy. Farmers unani-mously attribute the plague to the destruction by gamekeepers of the weasel, hawk, owl, magpie and other natural enemies of mice, and to the fact that tenants are prevented from burning rough pasture in spring.-London Let-
