The Washington special correspondent of the Oregonian says Paul Mohr has been in Washington most of the past winter laboring against the project of the dalles Boat Railway and is doing everything in his power to defeat the amendment to the river and harbor bill, Chicago News. and prevent the opening of the Columbia river. Senator Dolph says Mohr is not there for the protection of the rights of his company, but for the purpose of preventing the opening of the river and continuing indefinitely the burden of excessive freight charges paid by the believe to be true.

The columns of our newspapers are now being distigured with old stock portraits of alleged statesmen. Most of these portraits are in outline, and very can represent an alleged statesman as possessing no character. After the convention season these newspaper cuts will be distributed among the weekly papers throughout the country, and so from a bad beginning these libels upon art will proceed to a bad end. We want to be distinctly understood as saying that THE | keeps its shape. CHRONICLE to-day presents bona fide portraits of Harrison and Reid. They were taken on the day of the nominations at Minneapolis.

The mass meeting at the Court house last night fully demonstrated that in order to ascertain the choice of the people for any office in their gift we must adopt and observe some system similar to the Australian primary election law. There is no question that numbers voted who had no more right to vote in The Dalles than they have to vote in Patagonia. Of course these votes were cast for individual candidates and as there was no principle at stake they were allowed to pass. Had it been otherwise, the votes would have been scrutinized more carefully.

Cleveland will certainly be nominated as by acclamation. Hill will receive the nomination on the first ballot. Neither of the leaders can be nominated, but there will be a compromise on a dark horse. That seems to be a fair and impartial summary of opinion at Chicago,

No Excuse for Late Hours

There would seem to be no excuse for the late hours which society prescribes for its ceremonies. Late evening par-The abomination of desolation known ties for children are admitted to be in-But we are all children or ought to be, so far as the laws of health are concerned. We do not, as many think, by age earn a right to violate the laws of health. Nature takes pay for it in one way or another.

One difficulty at the foundation of our social life is that we do not admit amusements as necessary to our lives. We do not set apart time for them, but insist, if forced into them by fashion, upon taking them out of time that ought to be given to rest of mind and body. The day must all be given to business, up to its latest available hour, and then we take from hours that should be given

Glacier Ice.

Glacier ice is not like the solid blue ice on the surface of the water, but consists of granules joined together by an intricate network of capillary water filled fissures. In exposed sections and upon the surface of the ice can be observed "veined" or "banded" structure veins of a denser blue color alternating with those of a lighter shade containing air bubbles. The cause of this peculiar structure has been the subject of much theorizing among investigators, but hitherto the greatest authorities consider that the explanation of the phenomenon is yet wanting.—Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine.
