WOMEN EMANCIPATED.

The Movement in Her Behalf May soon be Abandoned.

MARION HARLAND'S LATE ESSAY.

Quite a New Phase to the Woman Question—The World Open to Her.

SURELY AN ADVANCED POSITION.

But it is Taken by a Woman in Words Which Carry Convincing Proofs of Fact—Other Notes.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Here is a new phase to the woman question. In a recent essay Marion Harland expressed her hope that the movement in behalf of the sex will soon be abandoned. There is now, she says, little need of these agitations or for endeavors looking to the advancement of one sex as apart from the rest of mankind. "With the world of knowledge and opportunity thrown open to her, it argues little for her ambition and less for her ability to grasp cardinal principles that she elects to build fences about her reservation." Thus it is that Marion Harland thinks talk about woman's emancipation is unnecessary. Woman is already emancipated. This is surely an advanced position to take, yet it is a woman who takes it, and there is conviction in her words. It is an encouraging fact that in certain phases woman's progress has come to the ultimate of success. In certain fields she is now completely free. After slavery was abolished who talked of abolition? Woman is rapidly getting to the place where her freedom, her right to work and to compete, will be considered as things to be taken for granted, without comment, without surprise.

KINGSLEY LETTER.

Good Crop Prospects—A Sick Rooster—Minor Topics.

KINGSLEY, June 18.—Since election is a thing of the past everyone around Kingsley has settled down to work, and to consider the part they had played in the game. Some of the republicans that helped to defeat part of the state and county ticket, are disgusted with the crowing of that sickly looking rooster that appeared in the Wasco Sun. Judging from appearance he was looking for a hole to hide in and we certainly would advise him to do so for on the first part of November the grand old party rooster will crow so loud that he can be heard from Maine to Washington, with a hip hip hurrah for Harrison.

Frosty nights are over and the grain is growing in good shape. I believe the frost injured the grain more than the hot weather; for we have had no real hot weather and there is considerable moisture in the ground yet, and my opinion is that we will have plenty of grain on Tygh Ridge this fall.

The inhabitants of Kingsley were startled last Wednesday morning by the statement made by John Roth that some one had stolen a horse and saddle from his barn the night before, there he learned that a party with a band of horses had camped at Kingsley the night before, on their way across the mountains. So brave John started off alone to capture the whole band of horse thieves and recover his stolen horse and saddle, but to his surprise when he caught up with them he found neither horse nor saddle, so he turned back disgusted and on arriving home found his horse and saddle in the barn where he had overlooked them in the morning.

The farmers' alliance are about to build a new hall at Kingsley. I do not know the size of the building, but judging from the pile of lumber on the ground, it is to be a large one.

TAM O'SHANTER.

Perhaps Prejudiced.

Helena Dispatch. Governor Toole has issued a proclamation forbidding the bringing of sheep into Montana from Oregon, Nevada, California, Washington, Idaho or Utah. The proclamation was made on a showing made by Veterinary Surgeon Holloway that sheep from the states named were infected with scab. From 4,000 to 5,000 sheep from outside points are held by Holloway at Butte. Montana sheep have not been affected with scab or other disease, and it is the intention of the authorities to keep up a good record.

CHICAGO MOSAIC.

Every Candidate Confident of Success This Week.

CHICAGO, June 20.—The uncertainty of Illinois, Kentucky and Indiana, is a grand factor in the hopes of candidates now. Should these three states cast their ballots for a "favorite son" the possibilities of Cleveland's nomination would be remote from what it is. The leaders are John M. Palmer for Illinois, Henry Watterson for Kentucky, and Senator Vothrees for Indiana, a strong team, it must be admitted. Illinois is for Palmer, Kentucky for Carlisle, and Indiana for Gray. Delegates are practically free, in those three states, and, acting as they please, have held a conference, but it is not known outside just how they will cast their 104 votes.

Tammany has let go enough to establish the belief that the empire state will go for Harrison if Cleveland is nominated. In short, the harmony expected between the Syracuse and Tammany factions may never be realized. If Tammany fails in securing its nominee, its whole strength will be thrown against the nominee of the convention. They mean rule or ruin. These threats do not terrorize the Cleveland contingent, who look to the Michigan Gerrymander, and to the prospects in Kansas, with confidence that "Cleveland can be elected without Tammany."

But with all these reasonable theories, Senator Patterson, of Colorado, says Cleveland would not only lose New York, but almost certainly several southern states, owing to the alliance's deep feeling on the coinage question, and by such loss the democracy would surely lose.

If people continue flocking into Chicago for the next few days it will seem less accurate to speak of the democratic convention present at Chicago than of Chicago present at the democratic convention. The city appears to have fairly lost her identity in the crowd.

It is worth while for temperance advocates to take notice that in Chicago the price of beer, such as it is, and pure water, are now very nearly the same. Water that is said to be pure, bearing, generally, some high-sounding name, costs ten cents a gallon in ten-gallon lots. Beer is obtainable by the keg at the rate of $4 a barrel of thirty-six gallons. This makes it cost about eleven cents a gallon. That pure water should get beyond the financial reach of many while beer should slip down until it becomes a rival of nature's beverage is unfortunate. It operates against all the work of temperance organizations, Keeley institutes and so forth, and furnishes an easy apology for the beer-drinking habit.

The Souvenir Half.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Representative Durbin called on Saturday, at the treasury department and had a long talk with Secretary Foster with regard to the minting of the souvenir half dollars for the world's fair. Secretary Foster said that he would willingly lend any aid in his power to the proposition to make use of the mutilated coin now in the treasury for the purpose of these special pieces. Altogether there is about $14,000,000 of this mutilated coin, but about half of this is in dollars or quarters and dimes. The $7,000,000 worth of half dollars is what will be probably used for the purpose. This money while not actually an asset is carried as such on the books of the treasury, and to make use of it in the way indicated will make of it an available asset, while it is unavailable at present.

Will Fire the Straw.

Fossil Journal. The dry, hot weather, which had seriously damaged the wheat on Shuttler Flat two weeks ago, has destroyed it almost entirely now, and farmers are getting ready to fire the straw and commence plowing for summer fallow. They are much discouraged and cruelly disappointed, as the crop looked better a month ago than ever before at the same season. In this end of the county, though badly scorched in places, a good rain would yet insure a fair crop. Unless we have rain within a week, there will not be enough grain left in the country to make seed.

A VALID CHICAGO WILL.

John Crerar's Endowment of a Great Public Library.

CONTESTED THROUGH A FLAW.

The Courts Sustain the Will and the Contestants are Downed.

PUBLIC OPINION REJOICETH.

A Decision Which May Prove of Value in Determining Similar Contests Elsewhere.

CHICAGO, June 20.—It would have been unfortunate, for many reasons, if the purpose of the late John Crerar to endow a great public library in Chicago had been set aside through technical flaws in the bequest. Thus far the courts have sustained the will. Judge Gary of the Appellate court has confirmed the famous ruling of Judge Tuley, and the contestants of the Crerar will have no standing in court. It is unlikely that any further contest will be made, and the executors are free to set about the fulfillment of the trust. It is not alone because Chicago is the beneficiary of Mr. Crerar's bequest that public opinion rejoices over the finding of the courts. The professional will-breaker has received a check, and these Illinois decisions may prove of value in determining similar contests elsewhere. Just as the breaking of the Tilden will in New York was demoralizing, the sustaining of the Crerar will in Illinois will inspire future benefactors of like character. There was a marked similarity in the contests in these two cases, but the Tilden will was made invalid by a peculiarity of New York laws that does not obtain in this state. The execution of the Crerar trust will give to this city another splendid library. It is matter for congratulation that there will be no diversion of the magnificent bequest from the object contemplated by the giver.

Rumor Concerning a Dalles Boat.

Oregonian. The Union Pacific steamer D. S. Baker will resume business on the Upper Columbia between The Dalles and the Upper Cascades August 1. The boat was hauled out in the spring and given a thorough overhauling and is now practically a new steamer. The wharves and other properties have been repaired, and it is thought that the enormous grain crop will be handled easily. The Regulator of the Dalles City, Portland and Astoria line, will be placed on the route, and some rate cutting may be expected.

Col. Shepard's Pupil.

Chicago Record. A complimentary notice of Col. Elliott F. Shepard appears in the columns of one of our esteemed Oregon exchanges, the editor having been graduated from Col. Shepard's New York evening paper some years ago. This editor is endeared to Col. Shepard by the most sacred ties of gratitude, and no wonder; for it was Col. Shepard who taught him when he first went to New York that it was very scandalous form to eat ice-cream with a spoon.
