Miss Rosa Moore of Scio, Linn county, is visiting her uncle and aunt Mr. and Mrs. John W. Moore of this city.

A dispatch from Cleveland, O., says the whalebacks seem to be crowding into every trade on the great lakes.

An exchange has made the startling discovery that when a fly lights on a sheet of sticky paper he realizes that he is "better off."

The finder of a door key, with a brass tag on it marked 112, will be suitably rewarded on leaving the same with the clerk at the Umatilla house.

The Columbia was at a stand still at noon today, thirty-four feet and five tenths above zero, at The Dalles. Reports from up the river say it is falling.

Mr. Albert O'Leary, who graduated a few days ago from the Wasco Independent Academy has not fully decided upon going to Brown's University. He may go somewhere else.

The crops in Klickitat county are reported by all the farmers to be in excellent condition. The fruit crop is just beginning to come into market. Strawberries are in profusion.

Mr. Victor Mesplie, an old settler of The Dalles, who was injured night before last by falling on the rocks while crossing a plank over Mill creek, died this morning at 3 o'clock.

H. C. Rooper, the well known Bake Oven wool grower, was in Portland the other day, and here is the way the Oregonian got it: "A. C. Roper, a merchant of The Dalles, is in the city, at the Perkins."

Rev. O. D. Taylor has tendered his resignation as president of the board of directors of the Wasco Independent Academy, in consequence of his expected absence from home for some time to come.

Palmer & Rey must have some grudge against the pencil shavers of the Pacific northwest, if we may be permitted to judge from the samples of Faber showed upon this office, bearing the brand of that otherwise accommodating typefoundry.

It was a surprise to Col. Sminott today to be informed by letter from Notre Dame that both his sons were to graduate today. This was expected with respect to Nicholas J., but he was not expecting so much from Roger B., who has finished his course in English literature.

Portland has decided not to elaborate the 4th of July celebration this year. With entertaining people and "donating for this thing, that and the other," as Walling expresses it, the town has about gone broke. The people want a rest to get ready for the exposition, October 21st.

This is the longest day of the year. Hon. W. H. Dufur of Dufur, is in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. VanDyyn, of Tygh, are in the city.

Wool is still arriving at the warehouses in large quantities.

C. Confer and Nathan Alexander, of Wapinitia, were in town last night.

Miss Florence and Master Howard Blackerby of Wapinitia were in the city last night.

The price of wool remains unchanged and sales are being effected every day at from 11 to 15 1/2 cents.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex McLeod and Messrs. J. J. Butler and Pat. Bolton of Kingsley came into town this forenoon.

The wool clip of the Baldwin sheep and land company for this year is expected to reach a half a million pounds.

The implement dealers are all apparently doing a good business as farmers are getting prepared for the coming harvest.

A dispatch has been received at Berlin stating that Emin Pasha has arrived in Bukoba in good health. It is believed it has been sent later than the date on which he was reported dead.

Mays & Crowe have just received a large importation of steel ranges which they are offering at from $45 to $60, which is lower than these goods have ever been offered for in this city before.

The people's party is very jubilant over the fact that Klickitat county will be represented at the national convention at Omaha by their co-worker, Hon. A. H. Jewett, of White Salmon. The woman suffrage advocates in that county are rejoicing over the people's state convention favoring them in their platform adopted at Sprague.

Here is the way the Waitsburg Times speaks of a late incident connected with Editor Shutt of the Condon Globe: Shutt Condon, editor of the Arlington Globe, was arrested Wednesday for criminal libel, on complaint of Mr. Brown, editor of the Arlington Record. Shutt retaliated by causing Brown's arrest on a similar charge.

The Grant county News says: During the next two years only three democrats will have a hand in our county government, and two of these are "hold-overs." Last two years only three republicans tended brake while the car of government rattled down the hill of time. Such are the political changes among free and independent voters.

Mr. Charles Colman, an Oregonian in territorial days, but now a resident of San Francisco, is making his first tour of the Inland Empire, and is today a guest of the Umatilla house. He wonders now how it can be that in 1857, when he was a property holder in Portland, he did not remain so, and visit this country in the early Sixties. He sees now why it is that Bradstreet reports so few failures in Oregon.

Mr. M. J. Cockerline, the Boyd flouring mill man, was in The Dalles today arranging for the final delivery of the machinery for a first class roller mill which is to take the place of the old style stone mill at Boyd. The new mill will be in running order by the time the wheat of the present harvest is ready to be converted into flour, at which time he will be pleased to have the patronage of the farming community.

Wheat options in the San Francisco and New York markets, are higher and firm this week.

The home of Mr. G. E. Moore, at Salt Spring, was gladdened by the appearance of a charming daughter on the 13th.

Fruit markets are active, and buyers come from both the east and the west. Shipments are largely to Montana, from The Dalles and Hood river orchards.

Mr. Kinerly, of the firm of Snipes & Kinerly, returned from a trip to Klickitat county yesterday, and from him we learn that assurances of a bountiful harvest, and an abundance of fruit, causes people to appear remarkably cheerful.

Somebody must be furnishing considerable whiskey to Indians in this city, for a drunken Indian is a sight one may see any day. Are white men guilty of this crime or is it possible that the wily heathen Chinese is improving the shining hours by making a odd dollar in this manner?

An Idaho newspaper in writing up a ball thus describes a fair lassie's garb: "Miss Y—wore a red bombazine dress ruffled with a point alpaca and overskirt of lose gingham with a border of parse blossoms. Her tennour was particularly noticeable from the fact that her hair was so deliciously scrambled in front. She also wore No. 9 lilac double-button gloves and No. 6 store shoes slashed at the heels and pompadore socks."

Uncle Jimmy Farris returned last night from a trip to his old home in Oak Grove. He says crops are looking fine out there and there is every hope of a bountiful harvest. Uncle Jimmy voted the democratic ticket for the 63rd time last election day. He thinks it hard, however that he had to swear in his wife because he was temporarily absent for a short time from the only home he has in the world and where he has resided for the last 21 years.

Bishop Morris has declared his intention to resign his position as Bishop of this Episcopal diocese, next October. He feels that the work should be carried on by younger hands. He is now in the 74th year of his age, and feels a consciousness of failing powers that lessen his ability to do the work required of a bishop in this large and growing field. The clergy have asked him to retain charge of the diocese and consent to the election of an assistant bishop, according to the canonical provisions governing such cases.

The results of the election in Portland yesterday are somewhat mixed. The only decisive thing about it is that the republican ticket was beaten pretty badly. The citizens elect both the police and fire commissioner. The councilmen are equally divided between the republicans and citizens parties, each getting two. Three independent candidates for councilmen were elected and the people's party elect one councilman. It was Portland's first election under the "Australian" ballot law and it was, according to the great daily itself, one of the most orderly and quiet elections ever held in the city. The "sack," that usually plays an important part in city elections in Portland, was conspicuous by its absence, and the toughs who lay about the polls waiting for a chance to sell their votes for $2.50 or a drink of whiskey, were doomed to disappointment, which is a fine testimony to the value of the new ballot law as a purifier of elections.

State Lecturer Holder says it is a mistake to say that crops in the Grass Valley country are a complete failure. He says they are certainly nothing to boast of but should the weather keep cool for a little longer, possibly half a crop may be expected.

Hon. Charles W. Cartwright of the Baldwin sheep and land company, Hay creek, who is at the Umatilla house today, says shipping from the ranch amounts to about 500,000 pounds of wool this year, and it is moving off at from 12 1/2 to 15 cents per pound. The grass on the ranges is beginning to dry up and the sheep are all well up into the mountains.

Oregon is productive of many remarkable things, among which may be mentioned trout. Mr. John Williamson, who is in the employ of F. M. Warren at the Cascades, has taken to Portland from that place a trout three-feet in length, weighing twelve pounds. This monster trout was captured in one of the water wheels at the cascades. Mr. Williamson says in all his twenty years' experience he has never seen anything to equal in size or weight the fish that has been captured.

A jury is occasionally compelled to close up the mill of justice and quit grinding in order to attend to more important matters. Up at Pendleton a few days ago a juryman was compelled to go home and take care of a cow and young calf at his place. The law says the men must be kept together until they are discharged by the court. The judge allowed the juror to go home, but he was accompanied by the bailiff and the other eleven men, who stood around and gave directions as to how the cow should be properly milked—and bet-pants as to how much milk the cow would give. During this time the case they were to decide never entered their minds.

Dr. L. Vanderpool of Dufur, has discovered the coming grass of the Inland Empire. It grows fine, heads out well, is nutritious, stock like it, and it makes excellent hay. It is thrifty on the dryest soil, does not require irrigation, and every way considered, will become better for the Inland Empire than its former famous bunch grass. Dr. V. says it is quite plentiful in patches about Dufur. He saved some of the seed last year, which he carefully planted and expected to replant next year, but the man about his place cut it down some time ago by accident, and the Doctor was quite disappointed in his anticipations, but he says it is prolific and will reassert itself.

While the votes were being counted last night a large crowd gathered around the polling places. The count was completed in the first ward before 8 o'clock, and when it was learned that Maloney had a majority of 14 for marshal all interest was transferred to the second ward where the count was not completed for two hours later. Here it was a neck-and-neck race between Maloney and Gibbons ran a few votes ahead but not enough to overcome Maloney's majority in the first ward. When the announcement was made that Maloney was the victor by seven votes, loud cheers rent the air as the railroad boys hurriedly scampered off to their engines, pulled the whistles open and filled the welkin with their discordant music for nearly half an hour. The boys had fought hard for their mate and were exceedingly jubilant over their success.

A Hood River Treat.
The force of THE CHRONICLE return compliments to Master John Cooper of Hood River, for remembrance today in the shipment of a bountiful supply of elegant strawberries. Master John is considered one of the force, when at home, but he is off on a furlough and making all the hay he can while the sun shines on the berry fields of Hon. T. R. Coon. In a business-like note accompanying the fruit Johnny says: "I send you half a crate of strawberries. Some of them are pretty ripe. Better get them as soon as possible from the express office. Hon. T. R. Coon grew the berries, and I picked and packed them. Please accept them with my compliments if they get there all right, and let me know." They came all right Johnny; and THE CHRONICLE wishes to let you know that they were highly appreciated. Thanks.
