THE HOMESTEAD FIGHT

Strangely Silent, Quiet and Sober Yesterday.

ALL DAMAGES TO BE REPAIRED.

Men Bathing Their Wounds And Preparing For Burying The Dead.

NO LEGAL COMPLICATIONS RISE.

Lovejoy Says no More Union Men Will be Employed by Carnegie—Other News.

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 8.—Homestead is strangely silent this morning. It is quiet and sober after the fight. Its leaders are wondering what will be the next step. Men are bathing their wounds and preparing to bury the dead. The leaders propose to have the fence around the Carnegie property rebuilt and repair all other damage by the fight, with the view of preventing suits by the company. Guards to look after the interests of the company are renewed. There was much surprise here over the release by the sheriff and sending away of the Pinkerton guards. When the workmen agreed not to kill them it was understood that the guards would be placed in jail until information for murder could be sworn out against them. The report of their release excited much angry discussion at first, but it quieted down when the men remembered that if they appeared against the Pinkertons as witnesses they themselves would be liable to prosecution for riot. The feeling then became one of relief that no legal complications would arise out of yesterday's bloodshed. The call of the sheriff for a posse is received with good-natured derision, as they are confident the posse could not be collected. Men this morning removed the barricades and restored things to their normal condition as far as possible. The men are confident of their power, and, while determined to preserve the peace locally, will brook no outside interference. Secretary Lovejoy, of the Carnegie steel company, says a number of strikers will be arrested, charged with murder. He declares the last outbreak has settled one thing, and that is that hereafter no union men will be employed by the Carnegie company, and that other mill owners will probably follow its example.

Rock Drilling Contest.

HELENA, Mont., July 8.—Eighteen miners from Butte have entered for the rock drilling contests at the meeting of the mining congress in this city next Tuesday, July 12. The executive committee today decided to take off the limit as to the number of contestants from each county, and any miner from any place on earth who thinks he can drive a drill pretty fast can get a showing for the prizes, which foot up $2,400, with several specials. The time of entering has also been extended up to 10 o'clock Tuesday. Among the entries are Reagan and Page, who won the first prize at Denver, and the people here hope the Leadville men will show up. Indications point to a large attendance of mining men and others from all sections of the country.

Gladstone is Gaining.

Astorian. Gladstone is gaining. England which is at heart liberal, seems resolved to shake off Tory government which by a combination with renegade liberals has managed to retain power since 1886. Gladstone has shown masterly sagacity in dealing with the home rule question. He has not allowed the public mind to be diverted from the principle of justice to Ireland by going into minor details. His plan in a general way is to give Ireland home government with representation in the imperial parliament. This ought to remove all British fears that Gladstone intends to dismember the empire.

Greeting.

Wasco Sun. Mr. D. C. Ireland presents his inaugural address in Friday's CHRONICLE, and is now in full charge as editor. Mr. Ireland is a veteran in the newspaper service, a good writer and an agreeable courteous gentleman. We extend the right hand of fellowship. May the hard work of stopping the nimble item on the fly, discriminating justly between the "foul tip" and the fair play never cause his shadow to grow less.

THE NEED OF GOOD ROADS.

Of Greater Benefit to the Country Than Cheap Money.

The papers of Oregon and Washington are keeping up the fight for better roads, and it ought to have some good effect finally. Good roads are of more importance to farmers, and even to business men of the cities, than government storehouses and two per cent. loans, admitting that these are meritorious. Every farmer should join in the demand for better wagon roads, and be willing to help build them. A week, even a month; out of each year for two or three years spent in building roads would be one of the best investments of time and labor they could make. The saving of horseflesh, of wear and tear of wagons and farm implements, of time in going to town, or from one place to another in consequence of the expenditure of time and labor caused by bad roads, would be incalculably great; but beyond that the vastly increased value of county and farm property, and the added comfort and ease, would richly repay all the efforts put forth. The legislature has done something toward helping to build roads in mountainous and sparsely settled regions, but the supreme court has checked its efforts in this direction, which is not to be regretted, because road legislation was becoming a dangerous foundation for all sorts of objectionable legislative log-rolling. The best way is for the counties, as they are now authorized to do, to levy a 5-mill tax for roads, and see that the funds thus collected are well expended; and then for every neighborhood, every settlement, every farmer, every citizen, to take hold of the work with local pride and zeal and public spirit, and work out their own salvation.

The State of Trade.

Telegram. The condition of local trade today was practically unchanged as compared with the preceding day. In some lines notably in produce, there was a tone of quietness, but the general average movement was good and considered fairly active. Summer fruits are in active demand, and the situation, was quite satisfactory to dealers. Strawberries and cherries are becoming scarce and higher in price. Receipts have been largely reduced during the past few days. The prices for apricots and peaches are steady, and although the receipts are increasing daily, prices are maintained at a very high standard. Figs are in good supply and the demand is improving. The inquiry for red currents is lively and consignments are barely sufficient to meet the requirement of trade. The price is steady and firm. New potatoes are quite active and firm in price. Choice ranch eggs are still firmly held at advanced rates, and the supply which is not excessive, meets with ready sale. Poultry, which was very dull last week, is reviving. The wool business continues active and prices firm. Staple groceries are in active demand, and prices are unchanged. Cereals are dull.

The McKinley Bill.

Spokane Review. The democracy is right for once. The McKinley bill is responsible for the lockout at Carnegie's works. It actually reduced the duties upon the chief articles manufactured at Homestead to the extent of from twenty-five to thirty per cent. The McKinley law cuts Carnegie in another manner. It permits the free entry of raw products used by American manufacturers for the export trade, and to that extent has placed many of his products upon the free list. The stupidity with which the democratic papers are pointing out the Homestead lockout as a tariff lesson is very funny. It is a lesson indeed; but one that warns the country against free trade.

Judge Taylor Retired.

Examiner. Judge Frank J. Taylor in retiring today from the bench after a six year's term, made a very touching speech to the members of the Clatsop county bar. The judge is a man of feeling, and it is plain from his manner and speech that he meant all that he said, and the bar fully appreciated his sentiments.

THE ARTS OF PEACE.

Contributions by Foreign Countries to the Worlds Fair.

WHAT THE UNITED STATES DOES.

The Center of the Power of the Whole World is With Uncle Sam.

FAST THE PREPARATORY STAGE.

With Bright Prospects of Success—Congress Expected to Act Consistently.

CHICAGO, July 8.—Director-General Davis summarizes the statement of the contributions to be made to the exposition by foreign countries. He finds that the civilized people of this earth have already appropriated over $5,000,000 to carry out in an appropriate manner their part in this great exposition. Which is good news all around, both for the exhibitors and for the worlds fair. "Cannot this government," includes Col. Davis; "this government, of which a distinguished English statesman recently said that the 'center of the power of the world was in the United States'; can it not appropriate the value of a single cruiser in the celebration of the arts of peace? I believe it can and will." We believe so too. Never has a world's exposition got past the preparatory stage with brighter prospects of success. We are hardly beginning to realize the full importance of that vast commotion at Jackson park. Now that the people through the two leading political parties have spoken strongly in behalf of the world's fair, what possible course, consistent with the popular desire, is there for congress to pursue except to make that appropriation?

To Boycott Carnegie's Iron.

CHICAGO, July 7.—A committee of the amalgamated iron and steel association from Pittsburg are here to confer with workmen in the building trades, with a view of boycotting all iron and steel from the Carnegie works at Homestead if non-union men are put to work. They were well received, and the course asked for will probably be complied with. Similar committees were sent to other large cities, and a general building tie-up is not improbable.

An Old Whaler.

Buffalo Express. One of the points of interest today will be the ocean vessel Progress, which lies at anchor in the outer harbor. She is bound for the World's Fair and will lie abreast the Fish Commission Building, a true representative of the old-style New Bedford whaler. Being 48 years old she was built before the day when kerosene oil took the wind out of the whaling business and has known the day when the return loaded with oil and blubber after a long voyage toward the North Pole meant a small fortune to those chiefly interested in the enterprise. The Progress cleared directly from New-Bedford for Chicago, and arriving here on Saturday from Port Colborne in tow of the tug Augusta. She will remain here till tomorrow and will be an object of interest to all who are inclined to be curious, as she is a full bark-rigged three master and has a complete whaling outfit on board. As the weather was rainy as well as rough yesterday, but few people went on board of her.

Work of a Waterspout.

Eugene Guard. The waterspout that struck Sam Summer's place on Little Klamath lake shore, about a month ago was a stunner. It cut a ditch over 300 yards long and four feet deep, by about ten feet wide, removing rocks that weighed half a ton, piling up debris three or four feet in the piles at the edge of the lake, and cutting great crevices in the adjacent hills.
