SATURDAY - JULY 16, 1892

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Chief Engineer Jud. S. Fish is becoming quite a Shakespearean reader.

A good druggist, with a little capital, would find at Grants a fine location for business.

Six car loads of machinery, etc for the new distillery at Grants, passed through The Dalles yesterday.

Two deeds were filed for record today. One transferring real estate at Mosier, $3,000; and one a lot at Tygh, $25.

Why do the Astoria papers say Clatsop beach? There is but one Clatsop beach; and it has no parallel in splendid features.

Smallpox has at last made its appearance in Portland, but, as yet, only one case has developed, and the patient is in the pesthouse.

Failure of the labor union policy comes about owing to the effort made to place all operatives on the same basis, regardless of ability.

Dr. Davenport informs us that it is pretty much the same with farmers about Moro as elsewhere. Short heads well filled—in the wheat fields.

Mr. Owen Williams denies the soft impeachment. He disclaims all relationship to the Wilhelm family, and "we acknowledge the corn," as they say in Illinois.

The professional beggar, with six small children and unlimited cheek, was doing The Dalles yesterday, raising shakels to add to her bank account in some other city. Such are the least deserving—where charity should begin at home.

The Dufur Dispatch says: "These cloudy forenoons, clear afternoons, cool nights, seem arranged for the farmers' benefit. We would like a day of rain, even if it drowned out every picnic party in the state." All right, Bro. Brooks; here it is. It is sent to you, gratis.

The people at Grants have push. The raising of a subsidy for the distillery there shows this. The distillery will bring them a flouring mill, a pork packing establishment, and other local enterprises worthy of a live community.

There is nothing so cooling and refreshing as a glass of delicious ice cream soda water. Blakeley & Houghton are better prepared to supply the public than ever with this delicious beverage. Their syrups are warranted pure juice, which make them so popular.

Once for all, let it be understood. The CHRONICLE, is not a sewer through which sensations and scandals are to be debauched upon an unsuspecting public. Law abiding people will commend a course which defers to the courts. It is enough that the findings of these be published, in the regular repertorial way.

The man who lost his legs on the trestle above Cascade Locks yesterday morning, lies in a comatose state at St. Vincent's hospital, Portland. When the accident occurred he gave his name as Chris Woodworth, a resident of Albina, but reporters fail to learn anything about him even from the oldest inhabitant. He cannot survive, and will probably be buried as one unknown.

Nello Johnston, of Oregon city, is in The Dalles on a visit to his brother Balfe. He expects to remain about two weeks.

Mr. McGowan, one of the firm of most successful salmon packers on the Columbia, is in the city. They fish from the bar up to the dalles.

Anybody, old and young, male or female, will confer a favor on THE CHRONICLE by sending to this office a copy of the daily June 28th, or of the weekly July 1st. "A nickle apiece for a hundred of them," is the standing offer.

Yesterday, boasting of the fine weather at The Dalles, THE CHRONICLE stated that all that seemed to be lacking was the clams to make it a veritable coast resort. These Steward Wiley provided. On reaching the Umatilla house for dinner a fine chowder was relished. I was a fine finish to a fine day.

If the rain-making wizard Melbourne could only have been here yesterday to touch off his fine what a host of advocates he would have today. Of course everybody would then have to give in that it was his patent that produced the 23-hundredths of an inch that fell here this morning from 2 to 4:30 o'clock. But he wasn't in it. The good Lord is yet with us.

Upon the order of Mr. O. D. Taylor, enough silica was shipped from The Dalles today, for Buffalo, N. Y., to make a thoroughly practical test of its utility for manufacturing purposes. While here, a thoroughly practical expert chemical test was made by Prof. Vandenberg, which satisfied him of its qualities; this lot, which goes east, will no doubt satisfactorily settle the question as to its working qualities.

Mr. S. L. Brooks returned from Portland last evening. He says thoughtful people are not enthusiastic over the result of the committee in Washington. It is generally conceded that bridges enough span the river now for the good of the city during high water; that the peers of the three now existing not only shoal the harbor, but cause higher water annually in the city, and by and by when people awaken to a realizing sense of what they have done, they will wish they had left well enough alone. The Morrison street and steel bridges should be made free.

The shower this morning did not extend very far east of the Dalles. When No. 1 west bound passenger rolled in at three o'clock, THE CHRONICLE man inquired: "where did you strike the rain?" to which Conductor Miller replied promptly: "At The Dalles." It was then coming down fine. A messenger from Mr. Freely's, 16 miles south east of the city, rode into town about 4:30 after Dr. Sutherland, to attend Mrs. F. who was dangerously ill, and he said it was raining when he left his home. It will undoubtedly prove to be an immense benefit to fields of standing grain, but is no welcome to the swarth of new-mown hay. Mr. W. G. Obrist, nine miles south west, says the shower was just fine.

Special Orders No. 10.
THE DALLES, July 16, 1892. 1. The members of the staff and non-commissioned staff, "A" and "C" Co.'s will, assemble at their armory fully uniformed, armed and equipped as near as possible on Tuesday evening July 19th, 1892, at 8:30 o'clock for inspection by Brigadier-General Compson. No excuses will be granted. By order
Geo. T. THOMPSON, Lieut.-Col. Com. Official: J. F. HAWORTH, 1st Lt. and Adjt.

The Dalles Health Resort.
Valley Transcript. Hon. J. D. Lee was in the city a day or two this week. His family has recently joined him in East Portland, the daughter Laurine, having been much improved of her asthmatic trouble during their sojourn at The Dalles.

Personal.
Dallas Transcript. R. E. Williams, e-flat player in the Dallas City band, tenor singer in the Presbyterian choir, book keeper in the Dallas City bank, treasurer of the city of Dallas, heart-smasher among the girls, la-di-da young man on general principles spent two or three days of the week at Salem.

Greeting.
Dufur dispatch. D. C. Ireland has now complete control of the Dalles CHRONICLE, and a much better man for the place could not well be found in the northwest.

Wind River Camp.

Reports from Collins landing and Wind river are to the effect that the different camping parties are enjoying themselves hugely. At camp No. 62, wild pigeons and trout are being consumed at an astonishing rate, saying nothing about wild blackberries, raspberries, and hazel nuts. The literary part of the camp have a weighty subject for their consideration, viz: "Why is a hen?" It is rumored the next subject to be brought before them will be: "Why is a trout?" It would be difficult to describe the numerous escapes Ainsworth gets into, but the rest are using their persuasive power to keep him straight and he'll likely come out all right. Bare are quite numerous on bald mountain, but the nimrods of the camp have not looked for them yet. The Hot Springs will be ready next week, then the Pilgrimage will begin.

Cable Car Resources.

Dispatch. There is to be another band concert on Portland Hights tomorrow evening. In order to attend, one must climb the hill or take the cable cars and run the chances of being on another one of these runaway cable cars. Our people have not yet forgotten the scenes of last Sunday evening.

Columbia Bar Fishermen.

The fish wheels are denounced because they stay at home and let the fish come to them. Some people claim this to be an infringement on the rights of the bar fisherman who takes his life in his hands and goes out into darkness in his boat and meets with such hair breadth escapes as one recorded in a letter from the light ship, off the mouth of the Columbia, by Keeper A. E. Cann, July 10th, as follows: "Fred Leben and Fred Schmidt, fishermen for the North Shore cannery, had a hard nights experience last night. At 1:30 a. m., while opposite the jetty and picking up their net, they found the body of a man in it. Hoisting sail and with a strong breeze they started towards home, but instead of making any headway they gradually drifted towards the breakers on Clatsop spit. Here they shipped two heavy seas, but Providentially drifted clear of the spit. They immediately made for the light ship, arriving alongside at 5 a. m. We took them on board and gave them a good hot breakfast. At 10 a. m. we started them homeward rejoicing."

THE OREGON STATE FLOWER.

Official Proclamation of "What Shall Be the State Flower."

Referring to the adoption of the Oregon grape, the Telegram report of the Hood River meeting says: The committee appointed to select a state flower did not report, but after a thorough discussion the society adopted the berberis aquifolium, or Oregon grape, as the state flower, by a unanimous vote. The plant was adopted as a whole, comprised of the berry and the wax-like leaves, which combination will undoubtedly have a very pretty effect. It is a plant peculiar to this state, grows throughout the length and breadth of it, and is also well known for its medicinal qualities. Other flowers prominently considered were the Washington lily, calochortus, jolinite, gallardia aristata, rhododendron, occidenti, dogwood, mock orange and madrona; but none were as available as the Oregon grape.

The Oregon grape, of which there are two indigenous species, berberis aquifolium and B. nervosa; might be thought a suitable emblem for the state, more by reason of its name, perhaps, than anything else, yet its very name goes to show that it is particularly a flower within the borders of the state of Oregon. The flower is very small and grows in dense clusters. The berry, the distinguishing feature of the plant, is a waxy globe about the size and shape of a gooseberry, and generally of a dull blue color. The foliage, however, is very graceful, assumes very brilliant colors, varying in intensity at different periods of the year, and can be used for decorative purposes with the finest effect. The stem itself is very low, not more than five or six inches in height and about the thickness of an ordinary lead pencil. The long narrow leaves, composed of several pairs of bright green leaflets, with an odd terminal leaflet, lanceolate in outline, of a texture thick, tough and leathery, and beset along their edge by numerous sharp spinous processes, are disposed most gracefully in a fan-like manner, by the beauty of their form and their pleasing arrangement never failing to elicit the warmest admiration.

According to the Stoics.

East Oregonian. It has been pointed out that only two men in American history were nominated three times for the presidency by the democracy—Andrew Jackson and Grover Cleveland. Andrew Jackson was elected twice, and we believe that will be the fate of Grover Cleveland.

Paradise for Stockmen.

Heppner Record. T. C. Aubrey returned Saturday evening from the mountains, where he has been with a friend the past two weeks looking over the country in the vicinity of Texas bar. He says that that country is a paradise for stockmen, the grass being very plentiful.

Three fresh cases of smallpox are reported at Victoria. None at other points in the province.

Joe Fifer is seemingly content not to carry Illinois until election day. The other crowd is likely not to have any fireworks or any use for them in November. It is a wise man who does not waste his ammunition upon scenery.

A large tarantula accompanied by her family of more than 100 little tarantulas was discovered in a bunch of bananas in a Portland fruit store the other day. All were captured, and now view the world through the walls of a large glass jar.

Harmony cannot obtain among the democrats until Henry Watterson has retracted that cruel telegram to the Louisville Courier-Journal, wherein he referred to the distinguished editor of the St. Louis Republic as "Mr. Jones, an obscure man from Missouri."

Would be Highly Beneficial.

Conlee City News. The destruction of the ground squirrel would be more beneficial to the Big Bend farmer than the passage of the free coinage bill, or any other legislation.

Starvation Wages.

Oregonian. The statement of amount of wages paid at the Carnegie works at Homestead during May was $202,029.50 instead of $20,202.95, as published in our telegraphic reports.

Orders may be left at THE CHRONICLE office for the paper, which will be mailed free of postage daily, and which, in camp, cottage or tent, will be found a welcome visitor from home. You will want THE CHRONICLE. Don't forget to leave your orders.
