

National Republican Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT, OF THE UNITED STATES.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT, WHITE LAKE REID, of New York.

FOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS, J. F. CAPLES, of Portland. H. B. MILLER, of Grant's Pass. G. M. IRWIN, of Union. D. M. DUNNE, of Portland.

SINGULAR CONDITION OF THINGS

It was not considered as anything remarkable at the time, for the great Daniel Webster to take the view of this division of Uncle Sam's domain which he credited to him in Ben Perley Poor's Reminiscences, from which he quote: "Mr. Webster had a very vague idea of the great west. On one occasion when he was in the senate a proposition was before it to establish a mail route from Independence, Mo., to the mouth of the Columbia river, 3,000 miles across plains and mountains, about the extent of which the public then knew no more than they did of the interior of Tibet. Mr. Webster, after denouncing the measure, closed with a few remarks concerning the country at large. "What do we want," he exclaimed, "with this vast, worthless area? This region of savages and wild beasts, of deserts of shifting sands and whirlwinds of dust, of cacti and prairie dogs? To what use could we ever hope to put these great deserts, or these endless mountain ranges, impenetrable and covered to their very base with eternal snow? What can we ever hope to do with the western coast, a coast of 3,000 miles, rock-bound, cheerless, uninhabited, and not a harbor on it? What use have we for this country?"

When the above words were uttered, but little was known of this great country, and Mr. Webster was in a measure excusable for his sayings. But with the light of the present, what a violation it is to have an intelligent man assert that this country is "good for nothing." There is not a hill in sight of The Dalles but is of more real value, for fruit alone, than the best farms in Massachusetts. Talk about the discovery of America; why people are only just now beginning to discover the real merits of this region. We can excuse Webster; but have no apology for the moss-backed webfoot, who says the hills are of no value. Without elevators, with which to get up to his plowing, they are no doubt "no good" to the somnolent Oregonian whose bank account accumulates without exertion of any kind on his part.

COLORADO'S PREDICAMENT.

People who are not absorbed in watching the campaign as a whole will find opportunity for reflection in the interesting predicament of Colorado. Here is a state without a presidential candidate whom it honestly admires. It must be understood that for Colorado there is now but one candidate, one principle and one issue, and all three are called Free Silver. Grover Cleveland is against free silver. So is Mr. Harrison. Therefore there is no enthusiasm in Colorado for either. Whom can the Coloradan vote for? There is Gen. Weaver. But it is hard to get up enthusiasm for a man whose chances of election are, to say the least, slim. So Colorado grows apathetic and listless and waits for '96. We tender her people the assurance of our sympathetic commiseration.

The desire to be remembered is a common, and not an ignominious feeling. When we are dead and gone it will really make no difference to us whether we are remembered or not. When the time comes for friendship and acquaintance and reputation to be translated into memory we will be engaged in a journey of discovery whose interest will take our whole attention. Even the most enterprising newspapers have no subscribers in heaven. Even the meanest newspapers, though well fitted for circulation on earth, have no constituency in hades. So that the account of our funeral in either class of papers will make no difference to us when once we have crossed the line. We will never read it. Nevertheless we have a desire to be kindly remembered.

The reduction in the tariff on steel billets caused the proposed reduction in wages at the Homestead mills which occasioned the present trouble there, and yet the remedy the democrats offer for such labor troubles is to remove the tariff entirely and make unlimited reductions in wages necessary. Can any wage worker figure out any possible benefit to himself from the adoption of the democratic anti-tariff policy?

An excellent remedy—the one that's made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Unusual, but made in good faith. It's a reward of $500 for an incurable case of Catarrh. If you have one, the money's for you. But you can't know whether you have one, till you've tried Dr. Sage's Remedy. What's incurable by any other means, yields to that. By its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, it cures the worst cases, no matter of how long standing. That's the reason the money can be offered. There's a risk about it, to be sure. But it's so small that the proprietors are willing to take it. The symptoms of catarrh are, headache, obstruction of nose, discharges falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody, putrid and offensive; eyes weak, ringing in ears, deafness; offensive breath; smell and taste impaired, and general debility. Only a few of these symptoms likely to be present at once.
