SAVED BY A PRAYER.

Very Narrow Escape of a Witness From Being Lynched.

HE IS SAVED BY MINISTERS.

A Gang of Oystermen Recognize Him at a Camp Meeting.

ABOUT TO PUT A ROPE ON HIS NECK.

When a Minister Called Out "Let us Pray." And During The Prayer The Victim is Released.

CRISFIELD, Md., Aug. 6.—There was a determined attempt at lynching on Smith's island that was prevented in a novel manner. A resident of Tangier, one of the neighboring Virginia islands, was on Smith's Islands attending a camp-meeting. He was recognized by one of the Smith islanders as having been instrumental in sending three of their number to the Virginia state prison, and having their boats confiscated, for dredging in Virginia waters. At the time of their arrest last winter most of the Tangier men were for letting the prisoners off, but this man pushed the prosecution. Immediately after he was recognized on the camp grounds he sprang for his boat, and flourishing a revolver, kept his pursuers at bay for a short time. They closed in on him and, tying his limbs, were about to put a rope around his neck, when three preachers, who were on the camp grounds at the time, made their way to the boat. They were just in time to prevent the lynching, and succeeded in effecting his escape. Finding that their cries and entreaties were of no avail, owing to the fact that the mob in their fury would stop at nothing, one of the ministers, knowing the great reverence in which the Dalles is held by the islanders, called out "Let us pray." He immediately began praying in an earnest manner "that the blood of this man be not laid upon our souls," while the other two ministers forced their way to the side of the prisoner, cut his bonds and shoved off the boat, telling him to go.

SOUTH CAROLINA POLITICS.

Some Exciting Scenes at a Meeting at Union.

UNION, S. C., Aug. 6.—A question of veracity came up at a political discussion here yesterday, between Gov. Tillman who asked Orr for his authority for saying that a preacher had said that he (Tillman) had flouted his profanity in public. Col. Orr replied that he did not divulge private conversations, and added that Tillman knew the statement was true, as he could ascertain by appealing to the preachers in general. The governor said that sometimes an oath slipped out, but that it had done so only on one occasion during the campaign. He appealed to the ladies to signify if, in their opinion, they considered him a blackguard, but there was no response. The governor then said that if Col. Orr or any other man said he flouted his profanity in public, they lied. Col. Orr advanced to the governor and, catching him by the arm, wheeled him around, and asked him if he was trying to raise a personal difficulty. Tillman replied that he was not. Orr shook his finger in his face and told him he could not intimate that he (Orr) lied without having it thrown in his (Tillman's) teeth. He told him further that Tillman had boasted of being a "God Almighty" gentleman.

The governor replied so he had, and Orr replied, "He did not do himself credit when he made you." He again caught hold of the governor and asked him if he meant to intimate that he was a liar. The governor said that if Orr had not originated the statement his remark did not apply to him. By this time the crowd had become a mob. People climbed upon the stand, men pulled their coats off, swore like troopers, and gathered around the two men, it looked as if there was going to be bloodshed. Orr stood to the rack and told Tillman he had repeatedly used profane words on the stand. The governor said he had done it but once, and he would leave it to ex-Gov. Shephard, who had nothing to say. Col. Orr again caught hold of Tillman, who had turned his head toward the crowd in front, and told him if he wanted a fight he could get it. The governor said he did not, and Col. Orr went back to his seat, remarking that Tillman must let him alone. The governor turned to the crowd and said that no living man could bulldoze him.

THE DALLES SENSATION.

Opinion of a Portland Physician—Pathology vs. Chemistry.

From the Daily Oregonian.

The alleged poisoning case at The Dalles, an account of which appeared in yesterday's Oregonian, has attracted considerable attention of thinking physicians, especially of Dr. Otto S. Binswanger, who expresses his opinion as follows:

In the Oregonian I read a sensational report, coming from The Dalles, which not only excited my curiosity but also aroused my sympathy and scientific interest. According to the report Mrs. Matilda C. Rogers died suddenly July 7. Other information which I received gives the date of her death June 25. One week later, July 14, the body was exhumed and the stomach, heart, kidneys, lungs and liver were sent for chemical analysis to Portland. The chemist reported the presence of sulphate of zinc or chloride of zinc and also the stomach and intestines in a highly inflamed condition. On the strength of that analysis, the justice decided to bind over William Bergfield, the son-in-law and suspected murderer of Mrs. Rogers, without bonds, to appear before the grand jury in November, and he is now in the hands of the sheriff. Permit me to quote some of the statements of that report, also some of the results of the analysis, and let us examine them in a scientific light.

1. The analysis "proves the presence of sulphate of zinc or chloride of zinc." The statement, "either sulphate or chloride of zinc," after the analysis is made is worthless. The examination must show with absolute certainty which one of the two was contained in the stomach.

2. "The body of Mrs. Matilda C. Rogers, who died suddenly a week before, etc."

While it is true that sulphate of zinc or chloride of zinc can, under certain circumstances, cause death, they never will kill suddenly. In small doses they produce gastric inflammation; in larger doses sulphate of zinc produces vomiting, and chloride of zinc cauterization of the stomach, which does not prove fatal suddenly. Besides, the chloride of zinc in large doses would leave erosion in the mucous membrane of the stomach. The report only speaks of inflammation of the stomach and not of the erosions.

3. The chemist reported the lungs, heart, kidneys and liver in normal condition, but the stomach and intestines highly inflamed.

It is very doubtful that after a body has been buried for one or two weeks, even if it was embalmed in the ordinary way, it would show yet distinct inflammation of the stomach and intestines. In order to carry some weight, such a statement must come from a physician and not from a chemist, whose knowledge of pathology is at the very best rudimentary.

Granting, therefore, that sulphate of zinc or chloride of zinc was found in the stomach of Mrs. Rogers, it is more than doubtful that their presence caused her sudden death. Bergfield is under arrest and kept for trial, and on the strength of this chemical analysis may even lose his life. Although personally acquainted with Assayer Fisk and on friendly terms with him, I deem it my duty to call the attention of the proper authorities to the insufficient evidence resulting from his report.

TREASURE SHIPMENT.

Sixty Million in Gold Leaves San Francisco for the East.

A STRONG GUARD OF PICKED MEN.

History of the Accumulations of Gold in the Sub-Treasury.

TOO MUCH MONEY FOR ONE PLACE.

The Bulk on Hand at the Time of the Chilean Affair was one Hundred Million.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—Quite a sensation was created last evening when it was ascertained that $60,000,000 in gold coin had left the city for Washington, guarded by a troop of picked men of the railway mail service. The report is that the accumulated store of gold coin at San Francisco has been steadily increasing during the past twenty years. When J. P. Jackson assumed the office of sub-treasurer, he found more than $70,000,000 in coin in the vaults of that institution. Since then the amount has increased to $76,000,000, and the accumulation was seriously crowding the vaults. In the mint, too, there had been a steady accumulation. At the time of the Chilean trouble, the government had stored here more than $100,000,000. It was then that attention was directed to the danger of carrying such an accumulation of treasure, not only in San Francisco, but in any seaport city. The proposition to remove the bulk of the coin in the sub-treasury vaults to Washington was mooted then, and it has come up regularly from time to time since, finally resulting in its shipment to Washington, under a strong guard.

The Atna Eruption.

The "opposition" of Mars is taking up no more scientific observation perhaps, than the present eruption of Mt. Atna, by far the most destructive which has occurred for years. Beginning in the early part of last month the volcano has, without ceasing, sent forth rivers of lava which are destroying the vineyards and orchards on its slopes and at its base. This eruption is peculiar in one respect, and this is the fact that the principal flow of lava is from numerous small craters far below the summit of the mountain. Indeed, from the principal crater hot ashes, dust and steam are mainly ejected, the lava, because of its great weight, bursting out of the mountain's side at various points far beneath the main opening. At the present time five of these newly-formed craters are active. The fertile lands which are being covered with the fiery flood slowly creeping down the mountain's side are completely ruined, and many peasants will be reduced to actual want unless something is done for their relief at an early date. It is said the Italian government will take steps in the matter, and sufferers from this calamity will be relieved from this source. It would be interesting to know if there is any connection between this eruption and the volcanic disturbance which overwhelmed the island of Sangir, one of the Philippine group, recently.
