CHOLERA IN NEW YORK

Investigations Concerning the Hamburg Steamer Moravia.

DEATHS FROM THE TRUE DISEASE.

The Whole Cargo of Immigrants Transferred to Hoffman Island.

FIRST REPORT GAVE A CLEAN BILL.

The Same Mistake Made in This Case That Was Made in the Gemma Case at London.

New York, Sept. 1.—The fact is now well established that it was true Asiatic Cholera which caused the death of twenty-two passengers on board the steamship Moravia, of the Hamburg-American line, from Hamburg. During the passage of the ship to this point, which the ship doctor insisted were from cholera. All were buried at sea. The first death took place August 10th, and the last death August 29th. The Moravia was ordered to lower bay, and the health officers who made the inspection of the Moravia's passengers pronounce the cause of death in the stricken cases as true Asiatic cholera. All the immigrants in the steamship were transferred to Hoffman Island.

After leaving, Dr. Jenkins was summoned from shore, when his deputy, who first went aboard, learned of the condition of affairs, and he personally interviewed the ship physician and officers regarding the disease aboard the ship. The surgeon of the Moravia declared the twenty-two passengers of the ship had undoubtedly died of cholera, and Dr. Jenkins immediately ordered the steamer off shore, giving her commander instructions to anchor off Hoffman Island and remain until he received further orders. After the doctor left the steamer she weighed anchor and immediately returned to the lower bay, the yellow flag, indicating she had contagion aboard, flying from her foremast-head.

It was at first given out that the Moravia had a clean bill of health, and that the doctor had been surprised at the clean, healthy condition of the vessel. The return of the steamer to the lower bay created no surprise or suspicion, as it was believed that the immigrant passengers on board were to be treated to a bath at Hoffman Island, and then landed for fumigating the ship and their clothes. When the facts began to gain circulation there was a panic among the people who had flocked down to the shore to witness the operations of the doctors on the vessels. The story was at first discredited, but Talmadge soon confirmed it. Those whose business did not detain them at the spot immediately hurried away from the station.

Dr. Jenkins informed the people of the Red Star line last night that cabin passengers could be taken off the Friesland when a steamer went down to take them off. The custom house inspector refused to let any of the passengers take away their handbags, and only seventy-five of the passengers would leave without them. The Friesland was released and came up to the dock at Hoboken, where all her passengers were landed. The Italia was also released after inspection, as her passengers did not come from a cholera infected port. The White Star steamer Teutonic got into quarantine, and will undergo a close inspection before being allowed to go to her dock. At the office of the Cunarders, cable dispatches were received stating that all communication with Hamburg had been stopped by the Liverpool authorities.

A London dispatch says the people of England generally are beginning to be nervously apprehensive that, despite the quarantine regulations, the country is doomed to another siege of the cholera plague. Prof. J. O. Alick, medical examiner of the university of Edinburgh, has declared, in an article on cholera, that in general a high temperature favors development of the disease, but that some of the most severe epidemics known have raged with the greatest fury in winter. There is deep indignation at the authorities for permitting passengers to land from the steamer Peregrine, from Hamburg. These passengers, after examination, were allowed to land, with the result that they have introduced cholera into one of the most densely populated quarters of London.

Four Russian emigrants at Liverpool, were attacked while waiting to go on board a steamer for the United States. Physicians have declared the disease to be true Asiatic cholera. The announcement has created great excitement and the authorities are doing everything possible to prevent a spread of the disease. It is feared, however, that will be impossible.

THE WHEAT SITUATION.

Sales Slow and the Market Quiet—Big Deal in Grand Ronde Grain. From the East Oregonian.]

The wheat situation is a trifle quiet. Local dealers report but a few transactions so far in Umatilla county grain. Purchases as yet made have been usually in small lots. The largest deal of the season has been in Grande Ronde valley wheat, 100,000 bushels of which were recently contracted for by Hamilton & Rourke, who have made arrangements to handle considerable Grand Ronde grain in future. They have warehouses at all points along the Elgin branch, and are building an elevator, with cleaning machine, and chop mill, at La Grande. Not much Umatilla county grain is moving. More has been received at Mission, on the river, than at any other station. From this point, 30,000 bushels have been shipped, and there is perhaps as much more in the elevator and Hamilton & Rourke's warehouse.

Along the O. and W. T. R., farmers seem to have difficulty in getting enough machines, and threshing is backward. Reports from North of Snake river say that the berry is very fine, and the crop generally will be of No. 1 quality. In all the region south of the river, including Columbia, Garfield, Walla Walla and Umatilla counties, the grain is more or less shriveled. The Grand Ronde valley crop is on the whole very good. The market here is in a dull and quiet condition, the principal cause being active sales of Willamette valley grain. Portland quotations indicate that our No. 1 grain is worth no more than 53 or 54 cents per bushel, sacked, although better prices than this have been paid.

Walla Walla Grain Sacks.

Statesman. In a conversation with Warden McClees, a reporter learns that the jute mill at the penitentiary shut down last Friday on account of the supply of raw material running out. A large shipment, direct from Calcutta, is on the way and is expected to arrive in a few days, when operations will be again resumed. In addition to the shipment that is now coming the officials have ordered five hundred bales, which will arrive in about six weeks or two months. Up to date, there have been about 170,000 sacks manufactured at the mill, the quality of which is conceded by all to be far superior to anything ever put on the market here before. The sacks are sold at 8 1/2 cents at present, and the indications are that next year they will be sold for six. When the reader stops to consider that heretofore the farmers have been compelled to pay all the way from 8 1/2 to 9 1/2 cents per sack, it can be readily seen what a boom this jute mill is to the grain-raisers of Washington. The day of high-priced grain and wool bage in the northwest is a thing of the past.

Deliverance at Hand.

Review. The report that President Hill of the Great Northern would withdraw from the transcontinental association and give to Spokane the justice so long denied by other roads has been confirmed. This example must be followed by the Northern Pacific to retain its trade and meet the competition of its young and vigorous rival. Terminal rates are now all but assured. The Union Pacific must also fall into line with the other roads and the day of deliverance is at hand. Spokane will now be able to compete on equal terms with her seaboard rivals, and drive their jobbing trade, out of her territory and far into their own. She has only asked justice. Now that reasonable assurance has been given that she is to receive that justice, tardy though it be, no limit can be placed upon the rapid advance that she will make. She will grow more amazingly than ever in population, in wealth and in power. Never provincial, she will become in truth metropolitan. The rainbow of promise, glittering in matchless beauty, is arched above the magic city by the falls.

The Idaho Gubernatorial Candidates Meet in Spokane.

THE CAMPAIGN WILL BE NO JOKE.

The State is Republican by a Large Majority, McConnell Says.

TARIFF THE PRINCIPAL TOPIC.

The Third Party is not to be Ignored in the Political Contest.—How It is Made Up.

Spokane, Sept. 1.—Both the Idaho gubernatorial candidates happened to be in this city yesterday, and both were talked to about the coming campaign. "Idaho is republican by a large majority, and the democrats are not in it. You can just quote me as saying so," said McConnell, the republican nominee for governor, to a Review reporter.

From information gathered here and there among well-posted Idaho politicians, and from the candidates on the different tickets, it looks as if the campaign in that state would be several degrees hotter than fire from a gatling gun in full action. The third party is itself a very vigorous body politic, according to Mr. McConnell's ideas on the subject.

"We shall start it with all guns loaded about September 15th," said Mr. McConnell, "and we'll just make a clean sweep of the state. This campaign will be no joke, I can tell you. We shall make a thorough canvass of every city, town, village and mining camp in Idaho, from the extreme north to the farthest south and from Washington to Montana. The fight will hinge principally on the question of tariff. The people are not yet educated on that. A generation has come and gone since free trade held sway and the people know little or nothing of the evils of it. But we propose to teach them the needed lesson. The republicans of our state are for protection and free coinage of silver. The state delegation to congress is a unit on those points. The republican ticket now in the field stands pledged to the same platform and principles. As to the democrats, no one knows just how or where they stand.

"The third party is not to be ignored in this campaign either," continued Mr. McConnell. "It is a pretty strong political organization in Idaho. You see, there are many democrats in it; democrats who are ashamed to affiliate with the democratic party any longer, and of course, having a goodly strength of numbers, they will make things interesting both ways for the other two parties. But, as I said before, Idaho is republican, there is no doubt about that.

"We shall put about twenty able speakers in the field by the middle of September, and in addition to these we will have a large number of local organizers who will help to keep the campaign warm."

Wasco Academy.

Wasco Sun. The next session of Wasco Academy will begin on Monday, September 5th. A full faculty of instructors has been engaged, with Prof. Brown, of Chicago, as principal. The academy should be filled with students, not only from this vicinity, but from abroad. The academy building occupies one of the most commanding sites in the city; has a beautiful and shady campus, and this is an exceptionally healthy location. With a little effort this institution would receive the patronage it deserves.

Tax the Luxuries.

Salem Journal. A number of prominent democrats have declared that if their party gets into power they will restore the duty on sugar, which the republicans put on the free list. These democrats are free traders only when it would injure an American industry; they would tax the people on sugar, tea, coffee and the necessaries. We say tax the luxuries.
