blame of every abnormal season. There is every evidence that the Gulf Stream is governed absolutely by law in all its changes. The course through the ocean is without doubt fixed. Its fluctuations are by days, by months, oy seasons or by years, and they do not vary materially one from the other. Its temperature changes, depending upon the relative heat of the tropical and polar seasons, and upon the strength of the producing trade winds. The warm water may be driven toward the shore by the waves caused by a favorable wind, but the current remains in its proper place. The warm water gives off a certain amount of heat to the air above it, and if this air is moved to the land we feel the heat.

The presence of the warm water or the coast of Europe would in no way modify the climate if the prevailing winds were easterly instead of westerly. If the prevailing winds in New England in winter were southeast instead of northwest, the climate would be equal to that of the Azore islands, mild balmy. For the cause of abnormal sea sons we may look to meteorology. The current is in its place ready to give off the heat and moisture to the air when-ever the demand is made upon it, but by the erratic movements of the air this heat and moisture may be delivered at nnexpected times and seasons, and thus give rise to the erroneous belief that the Gulf Stream itself has gone astray.--John E. Pillsbury in Century.
