FOR PRESIDENT, BENJAMIN HARRISON, of Indiana.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT, WHITELEW REID, of New York.

Prof. Charles S. Sargent, the director of the Arnold Arboretum, makes an announcement which will be of particular interest to fruit growers. It seems that in 1879 a distinguished German botanist, Dr. Bretschneider, then in China, sent to the Arboretum some stones from peaches which he had gathered from trees growing wild in the mountains in the neighborhood of Pekin. The trees raised from these seeds have grown in fine shape, and have proved so hardy that for several years in succession they have not failed to produce abundantly. This is a highly important result, says the Boston Herald, as may be perceived from the fact that our New England climate is so capricious that a new crop of peaches is not obtained here, on the average, oftener than once in five years. These Chinese peaches are said to be of good quality, and there is little doubt that skilled horticulturists will, by hybridizing, be able to secure strains of hardy peaches first-class in every respect. It is, therefore, probable that just as the introduction of the Satsuma orange from Japan promises to push the orange belt so far north as to include North Carolina and, possibly, Tennessee and southern Virginia, so this Chinese peach will carry the peach belt far to the northward of its present limits, so as to include the better part of New England. Fruit growing interests cannot fail to be greatly benefited thereby, for extensive peach orchards will be possible throughout that part of the country, with the best of markets close at hand. Fine native peaches will be particularly appreciated in Boston. This is one of not a few valuable services which the Arnold Arboretum has already rendered in a practical way to the horticultural gardening and arboricultural interests of the country, and others may continually be expected with the growth and development of that important educational and scientific institution.

Samples of a very beautiful onyx were shown in Tacoma Monday from a deposit recently discovered near the base of Mt. St. Helens. The ledge was discovered accidentally by a horse knocking off a piece where it protruded through a trail that has been traveled from the time of the earliest settlement of the valley. It has been prospected far enough to show that there is enough there to supply all possible demands for some generations, one ledge being nearly 30 inches thick and very prettily veined. Samples have been sent to New York and Philadelphia and the replies returned are to the effect that it is worth from $4 to $20 per cubic foot, provided it can be got out in blocks 8x12 inches square. It can be got out in blocks of almost any size wanted, not only by square feet and inches, but by square yards. The finders put off one blast in the ledge that loosened seventy-five tons of it, which is now ready for shipment.

The Herald says that when work is resumed on the A. and P. R. R. it will be commenced at Astoria and the road built to the tunnel, cars put on and communication had by rail with a large section of Clatsop county. This will be of great benefit to Astoria. If the Clatsop road had been built from Astoria instead of the middle of Young's bay, the profits from business it never has had would have paid for the construction.

Speaking of the columns liberally sprinkled with odes to Tennyson, mostly inferior and devoid of inspiration, the Review says: "Poetry differs from clothing. It is seldom worth much when made to order. It has the hum of the machine about it, and resembles true poetry about as the dull piece of shale resembles the glowing fire of the opal."

Wherever a school is established, even in the most remote sections, Columbus day will be observed. Throughout the entire Northwest great interest is being taken by the children in the coming celebration, and the 21st of October will be long remembered by them.

"It makes me tired!" People ask me—is marriage a failure? Of course 'taint; s'pose I don't know my biz—what am I here for? If the women only keep healthy they keep in good spirits and cupid is in demand. Let every enfeebled woman know this—there's a remedy that'll cure her, the proof's positive.

Here's the proof—if it doesn't do you good within reasonable time, report the fact to its makers and get your money back without a word—but you won't do it! The remedy is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—and it has proved itself the right remedy in nearly every case of female weakness. It is not a miracle. It won't cure everything—but it has done more to build up enfeebled and broken-down women than any other medicine known.
