THE AMERICAN NAVAL OFFICER.

Any landsman who has cherished the proud conviction that the organization of our naval service is a close approach to perfection can have his eyes opened by reading the vigorous criticisms of Park Benjamin published recently in Harper's Weekly. It seems that while the naval equipment has been improving in its mechanical features the system by which it must be utilized in time of battle is decidedly primitive. As at present organized, the advancement of officers of the line depends entirely upon the retirement, resignation or death of the superiors. Individual merit and conspicuous ability don't count. If an officer lives long enough or the men above him are sifted out rapidly enough by circumstances he may reach a high place. If not he will linger along as an underling until his 62d birthday, though he be a man of genius and all the superiors be dunderheads.

Mr. Benjamin presents a supposition case in which members of three generations of the same family are in service on the same man-of-war. They are a son, a father and a grandfather, and all are lieutenants. The grandfather was a lieutenant thirty years before, and his grandson will likely be a lieutenant thirty years hence. The inevitable result of this system, as Mr. Benjamin points out, is to discourage ambition and cast a lethargy over the entire service. Worse than that, it puts the commanding officers into the hands of old and enfeebled men. In the present state of the warship a naval battle is a contest of brains. Its result rests with the man in the conning-tower, who must be cool, nerve-controlling, active and resolute. But instead of vigorous men in their prime, who have won place by their talents, our conning-towers are filled with patriarchal officials, placed there not for ability but because they have outlived everybody who was above them.

The talk of ten days ago has been revived about an Indian uprising at Pine Ridge agency predicted by Dr. Magillcuddy as one of the early possibilities of 1893. It is not unlikely. Peace to an idle Sioux Indian, with his pony satisfied with grass, is almost as unendurable as soap. The red man who prefers loafing to farming must arise with the regularity of a ninepin and dance the ghost dance. Then when the government has issued him a little more beef he proceeds to jump over the pale of civilization and thin out the 7th cavalry. While bad management by the government is a crying evil at the reservations, there is still too much sentiment in the Indian question. Too much beef, also. When an old-time farmer's unruly team ran away and sifted itself through a worm fence, eleven rails high, the owner sat down by the roadside and philosophized. There must be a reason for the accident. He pondered it and he reached a conclusion. It was too much oats. Civilization is not responsible in itself for that great law of the survival of the fittest. An idle, well-fed Sioux Indian is always a menace. Give him less beef and more responsibility. Teach him honestly and sensibly to work for a living. A clean skin, too, is conducive to a good temper.

It is said there is much talk in England of the propriety of abolishing the office of poet laureate. That there is none great enough to fill the chair held by Tennyson is signally and painfully apparent, and no doubt a large portion of the English-speaking public would be more than content to see the office remain vacant. Nothing has been advanced, however, to show that Mr. Gladstone may not keep the post unoccupied without permanently abolishing it. Why not leave it in harmless desuetude till a man fit for the task appears? Then, if it is a really worthy poet that springs into view, there will be no shallow-pated incumbent standing in the way and drawing ridicule down upon his laureled head. Certainly, the plan would be infinitely better than to accept any one of the candidates now nuttily coaxing for the place. The two men who are most threatening possibilities are Lewis Morris and Alfred Austin. Morris is a pleasant gentleman of good breeding, who would look well in a red jacket and duck breeches riding after hounds. Austin is a literary dude.

A building up of the entire system follows the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, soothing cordial and bracing nerveine—and a certain remedy for all the functional derangements, painful disorders or chronic weaknesses peculiar to women. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores flesh and strength. For periodical pains, internal inflammation and ulceration, leucorrhoea and kindred ailments, it is a positive specific—a guaranteed one. If it fails to give satisfaction, in any case, the money paid for it is refunded. No other medicine for women is sold on these terms. With an ordinary medicine, it can't be done.

That's the way it makes prove their faith in it. Contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to derange digestion; a legitimate medicine, not a beverage. Purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Too Much of a Risk. It is not unusual for colds contracted in the fall to hang on all winter. In such cases catarrh or chronic bronchitis are almost sure to result. A fifty cent bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will cure any cold. Can you afford to risk so much for so small an amount? This remedy is intended especially for bad colds and croup and can always be depended upon. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.
