ANOTHER NEW MINE.

There is an excellent probability that the wild excitement of 1862 will be partially repeated next spring in the vicinity of Mitchell, Crook county. Mr Wm. Bethune has recently made discoveries on his farm, the McGraw patent, purchased by him of I. N. Sargent, which show the country to be rich in ledges that resemble the famous Comstock lode in Virginia city. We will not attempt to describe the rich specimens which Mr. Bethune has with him, lest the public might become credulous. Mr. Bethune has owned this place for several years, and becoming tired of hauling water to his house every dry season, last summer commenced digging in a moist place on the side hill in the hope of striking a vein of from and after this date.

Dated October 13th, 1892. water, but instead of this he struck a rich vein of rotten granite quartz loaded with gold. At the distance of thirty feet a well defined ledge, about six inches thick was opened.

It is hardly possible to predict the outcome of this discovery. Mr. Bethune has taken the precaution to secure himself against trespassers, but has not yet fully decided what course of action will be taken respecting the development of the mine. It may lead to a revival of the sunny days of gold in The Dalles in 1862. Mr. Bethune has three ranches in the vicinity, where he followed the occupation of a stock man, raising horses and cattle principally. He is well known all over the Inland Empire, and while modest in his estimate of the value of his discovery, thinks the place, as it is today, ought to produce a million or so of gold bullion next year to help along the world's commerce.

With the silver district of Mount Adams north of us, and the gold regions of Apercopolis, as Mr. Bethune calls his mine, south; with the second finest water power in America, The Dalles ought in time to be able to assert herself, and invest the scenes of 1862. All the conditions are now very much more favorable than they were then for unex ampled prosperity. In the mines now the delvers could feast on the fat of the land; in '62 everything we eat, or wore, or used, cost lots of money. In some of the camps flour was worth a dollar a pound and such a thing as coffee cost us many an ounce of dust during the month. Sugar was never dreamed of, and a suit of store clothes would be treasured sacredly as an evidence that the owner, once in his life, saw the light of civilization in some town many hundreds of miles distant. Yes, indeed, everything has changed since then. Says a pioneer miner of The Dalles: "Then everybody had money. Many is the time I have taken out ninety ounces of gold from my claim in a few hours, the prettiest and brightest stuff on the face of the earth. There were then about 4,000 men in our camp, and a poor unlucky dog was he who could not show $10,000 to $20,000 hid away in tins under his cabin floor or safely buried in some convenient locality until the owner got ready to leave the country."

Those were good old happy days, and THE CHRONICLE believes that they have not departed forever.

Mrs. Harrison, it is believed, is slowly but surely drawing to the close of life, and the scenes about the White House are very sad. The president has become so depressed that it is only through the greatest effort that he can give any attention whatever to public business, and he now denies himself to all callers, except his most intimate friends and the cahinet officers. He is much broken by the constant vigil he has kept at the bedside of his dying wife, and his melancholy and hopeless countenance tell too plainly that he is only awaiting what he now realizes to be the inevitable sequel to his lengthy solicitude.

"One thing is sure," said Joggles, "Our party was weak to begin on; now some of 'em are insisting on changing the name from peoples to populist. I've heard it said, that to change the name of a teething child means death! I do believe it."

A dispatch from Coffeyville, Kan., says that Emmet Dalton will recover from his wounds. If there's justice in Kansas, nature, in that event, will go to a good deal of trouble for nothing.

It isn't the usual way -it's just the reverse-to pay a patient when you can't cure him. Nevertheless, that's what's done by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. They promise to pay you $500 if they can't cure your catarrh, no matter how bad the case. It isn't mere talk-it's business. You can satisfy yourself of it, if you're interested. And you ought to be, if you have catarrh. It's faith in their medicine that's behind the offer. It has cured thousands of the worst cases, where everything else failed. You can be cured, too. If you can't, you get the money. They're willing to take the risk-you ought to be glad to take the medicine.

It's the cheapest medicine you can buy, because it's guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is

You only pay for the good you et. Can you ask more?
That's the peculiar plan all De. Pierce's medicines are sold on.
