How to Roll an Umbrella.
 "Certainly, but you don't need any," said a salesman in a Chapel street store recently to a customer who had just bought an umbrella, and who had asked for a rubber ring.
 "But I want to keep the ends of the ribs from spreading when the umbrella is rolled up," and the customer held up for inspection the umbrella he had just rolled.
 "Let me show you," said the salesman, as he unfastened the band and shook out the folds. Grasping the stick so that his right hand held the ends of the ribs close to the wood, he began rolling the silk in the curve of his left hand. Whenever he gave the umbrella a turn he kept the ribs in their original position, and when the rolling was complete he held up the umbrella and showed that the metal tips pressed as closely to the stick as if riveted in place.—New Haven Palladium.

Slips That Always Raise a Laugh.
 To few of us it is given never to make a slip of the tongue. On the contrary, most people have some unpleasant memory or other of some dreadful mistake they have fallen into, and even although years may have passed since the fatal moment when their lips betrayed them, they are still unable to recall the circumstances without again experiencing the agony and their cheeks displaying the blush which followed upon the first discovery of the slip. Take a few examples to illustrate what we have advanced. It was but a very small and even insignificant change of a letter which rather spoiled the impressive eloquence of a preacher, who, warning his audience against idolatry, in place of "Bow not thy knee to an idol," made a false step and said, "Bow not thine eye to a needle."
 In the same way the young clergyman with the correct Oxford pronunciation in giving the hymn, "Conquering Kings," merely stumbled over the first vowel, but being unable to save himself was hurried over the precipice and startled his congregation with the announcement, "The hymn tonight will be 'Kinquering Congs, Kingquering Congs.'" Much the same was the pitfall into which a reverend gentleman walked when in place of saying "Behold the fig tree, how it withereth away," by a simple transposition of two letters he asked his audience to "Behold the wig tree, how it fithereth away."—London Tablet.

The Sad Part of It.
 A good soul in Ohio absolutely worships Dickens, even going so far as burning a candle before his portrait. She reads nothing but Dickens, and when he came here to read she wrote to inquire whether he'd visit the west. Receiving a reply in Dickens's own handwriting, her joy knew no bounds. Her hero could not leave the east, therefore she determined to go to New York.
 Jones, the husband, demurred, but upon being wakened one night with the threat that if he did not give her money to travel like a Christian, she would walk, Jones succumbed. Mrs. Jones went to New York, had a private interview with Dickens, attended his readings, and returned home more rapt than ever.
 When the news came of Dickens' death Mrs. Jones was inconsolable. Not long after Mrs. Jones' sister died, but owing to the illness of this sister's husband, whom she was obliged to nurse, Mrs. Jones could not attend the funeral. When the rest of her family returned they found Mrs. Jones reading "Pickwick" to the sick and bereaved man. As a relative approached the bed, Mrs. Jones burst into tears, exclaiming: "The saddest part of it all is to think that dear Sarah died before I had finished reading 'Martin Chuzzlewit' to her; and now she'll never, never know how it ends! Oh, it's too bad!"—Kate Field's Washington.

Air Plovs.
 A V shaped contrivance, to be placed on the front of engines of fast express trains, is the latest scheme to get more speed, by overcoming much of the nat- ural resistance of the air to the front of the locomotive. The plov extends from a few inches above the track to the top of the smokestack, the sharp edge of course in front. "Shoveling fog" is a common expression among railroad men, but plov-ing wind is a new thing in railroad agriculture.—English Mechanic.

Packed in the Ice for the Winter.
 On last Saturday Master Calvin B. Crocker captured a twelve pound turtle. The reptile was discovered under the ice that had formed over a pool near his home on Rockland street, and was taken "alive and kicking" after a breaking and entering of his icy home.—Dedham (Mass.) Transcript.

The Algerians know what a real plague of grasshoppers is. In one district of that country alone over 50,000 gallons of the eggs of the pest were gathered and burned last year.
 There will be 444 electoral votes in 1893. Congress passed last year a reap- portionment bill based on the census of 1890, allowing one member to 173,901 people.
 The survey for the railroad from Mon- bass, on the east African coast, to the lakes in the territories of the British East Africa company is to be begun at once.
 The Liverpool elevated railway will be worked by electricity, using motor cars instead of separate locomotives.
