The pleasant invitation to Ye Scribe to eat turkey with Hon. S. F. Blythe at his Hood River farm, has been postponed on account of the climate. We prefer to come when the strawberries are ripe.

It is an excellent idea for people generally throughout the city to remember the feathered songsters. The birds are now deprived of many resources for food. Scatter crumbs to them, and it will be repaid in many ways.

Something must be the matter with The Dalles weather vanes. They refuse to respond to the variations of the wind, but the flags float directly west, indicating this forenoon a due east wind, at the rate of about four to five miles per hour.

Mankind is so happily constituted that the change of season is usually gladly welcomed in this latitude. Winter is always long enough even when short; spring lingers as leisurely as anybody wishes; summer has exhausted her welcome and the autumn can ordinarily give way to the sterner and more rigorous season without regret.

The train due here at 11:45 p. m. yesterday from Portland arrived at 10:45 a. m. today headed by four locomotives. The train had been backing at the snow blockade without a snow plow all night, and looked like the ragged edges of an arctic sea on coming into The Dalles. The locomotives were covered to the headlights with ice and snow.

There are contractors in the city from Missouri, Montana, Washington, Idaho and Portland. We were pleased to meet with Mr. Glenn, one of those from Spokane, and talk over some of the old familiar experiences of years ago, when Sidney Dillon, Jay Gould, Russell Sage and others, were laying the foundations for their colossal fortunes. All the old crowd have gone, except Sage, and he is getting out of railroads and into real estate as fast as he can.

Mr. W. E. Garretson returned from Portland this morning. He was a passenger on the delayed train. In Portland street cars could not run yesterday, and he was compelled to foot it from the hotel to the depot. It is his opinion that we are in for a genuine, old-time snow blockade. The country can stand it.

Judge and Mrs. A. S. Bennett entertained the Union whist club at Keller's hall last evening. The evening was very pleasantly passed at drive whist, twenty hands being played. Mrs. H. S. All the power at the command of the U. P. R., on the two divisions ending in The Dalles has been reserved for passenger traffic. None for moving freight. After these locomotives have "bucked the life out of themselves" in snow-drifts, the company will see what a fool of a mess it has created by moving the repair shops to Albina.

Answer to a conundrum: "Where is the snow plow?" Coming from Pocatello. So is Christmas coming. But isn't it a commentary upon "management," the way this U. P. R. "system" deals with the public? No snow plows in sight, and scarcely fuel enough on hand to last during a week of moderation. Is it any wonder the people are loud in their complaints about the arbitrary and half idiotic style of doing business by this monopoly, run solely for all the public will stand.

Sheriff T. A. Ward returned from the Sheriff's association meeting in Portland yesterday. The recommendation of the Oregon bar association to make the sheriff a salaried officer instead of a fee officer came up for discussion. Judge Thayer, who is one of the committee appointed by the association to draft a bill providing for the change, which will be presented to the legislature, asked for views on the subject. Sheriffs of the smaller counties who are not making fortunes out of their office, and several sheriffs who enjoy a brisk business, appeared to be in favor of the change. Judge Thayer invited the executive committee to discuss the subject with him and offer any suggestions they may think proper, as soon as possible.

The elegant windows display these to an advantage, and are quite attractive to old and young.
