The asylum scandal investigation at the capital has revealed a rottenness unparalleled in any state institution heard of. Gross negligence is charged on the part of the management by the board of corrections. Lewdness and immoral conduct by some of the attendants, and the visitation of outside persons of uncertain reputation has been going on in the institution unobserved for months since Dr. Rowland has had the superintendency. The doctor, in his good nature, has never suspected anything wrong, and could not believe that those under him would abuse the confidence he reposed on them. The policy of the superintendent residing away from the institution is all wrong. He should make it his duty to remain on the ground and devote his entire time to the work. Then, again, a better selection of assistants should be made. Favoritism should not be known. No family connections should be allowed a position on the force of attendants. A reform in that branch of the state service is necessary for the public good.

Since the republican party is soon to pass out of power, it is a business proposition to take an invoice of the assets of the nation in order that we may look back in the year to come and give the democratic party credit for whatever it may bring in the way of prosperity or disaster. A few days ago the Review quoted statistics on business failures compiled by the standard authority. R. G. Dun & Co. These showed the greatest measure of prosperity recorded in this country within the past fifteen years. Now Bradstreet, another high authority, publishes a review of New England mills and manufactories for the past year. It finds that 1892 "was remarkable for the large number of new mills built, the heavy increase in the amount of goods manufactured, and the low prices which ruled in nearly all branches of trade." Of course if many new mills were built, a great deal of additional employment was given to labor; and, of course, if low prices ruled the consumers got the benefit. The observations of these standard authorities are widely at variance with the calamity talk of the democratic party, but they will form the material that will be used by the careful political and economical student of the future.

Hon. John R. McBride, who was elected to congress from Oregon thirty years ago, has been in Salem for a few days past, visiting relatives. He is the elder brother of Secretary McBride, and once represented Yamhill county in the state senate, and was also a member of the constitutional convention. He has since filled the office of United States district judge in Idaho. His residence for more than twenty years has been in Salt Lake City. Judge McBride was one of the founders of the republican party in Oregon, and was elected to congress during the war by a very large majority for the young state, over 3,500. He was a staunch defender of the union in congress, sustaining President Lincoln in his noble efforts to carry on the war and overthrow slavery.

According to dispatches from Olympia, while matters are far from being harmonious in the republican ranks, white-winged peace is not hovering over the democratic camp to any great extent. The fact that it required three ballots in caucus before it was deemed safe to center on Griggs as the nominee, created much comment at the time, and since then the low mutterings of discontent have swelled into a roar of openly expressed disapproval, amidst which the brethren can be heard applying to each other such pet terms as cheap liars, traitors, political scavengers, etc., all of which would be very amusing to the republicans if they were not engaged in about the same kind of a skirmish.

Tammany requires nearly $60,000,000 every year to run the city of New York, or $120,000,000 for the period covered by the "billion dollar congress." In other words, Tammany spends one-eighth as much upon a single city as is required for the support of the government of the United States—army, navy, pensions and all. Yet Tammany's voice was loud in the recent campaign in denunciation of "republican extravagance."

The people of Lewiston are enthusiastic over their prospects for securing a railroad. A committee has been appointed to solicit subscriptions for the subsidy required and every indication of success is given.

The location of the five million dollar steel plant for the Pacific coast now lays between three North Pacific coast cities. Wonder if The Dalles is in it?

"Beauty without grace is a hook without a bait." That's what the French think. Whether it be true or not, there are many American women who do not even possess the hook—beauty and attractiveness are denied them. Why? Because they're languid, cross and irritable. They know not what it is to be without pain or discomfort half the time. That's it, suffer in silence—misunderstood—when there's a remedy—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—at hand that isn't an experiment, but which is sold by druggists, under the guarantee that if you are disappointed in any way with it, you get your money back by applying to its makers. A signal service to weak womenkind is the finding of lost health—the building up of a "run-down" system. Nothing does it so surely as the "Favorite Prescription." None like it! For overworked, debilitated women, teachers, milliners, seamstresses, "shop-girls," nursing mothers—one and all are cured by it.

WINANS
THE NEW TOWN has been platted on the old camp ground, at the Forks and Falls of Hood river, with large eighty lots, broad streets and alleys, good soil, pure cold water and shade in profusion, perfect drainage, delightful mountain climate, the central attraction as a mountain summer resort and for all Oregon, being the nearest town to Mt. Hood. It is also unparalleled as a manufacturing center, being the natural center for 150 square miles of the best cedar and fir timber, possessing millions of horse power in its dashing streams and waterfalls, easily harnessed. Where cheap motive power exists, there the manufacturing will center, surrounded by soil and climate that cannot be excelled anywhere for fruit and agriculture, and with transportation already assured you will find this the place to make a perfect home or a paying investment.
