Mr. Blaines wealth is estimated at a million dollars. Most of this was made by wise investments in Virginia coal lands and Washington real estate, and some of it came from a lucky investment in a silver mine.

It is said that an Oregon hunter went into the mountains last week and wantonly killed seven elk, so that he could say that he had slain 100 of the majestic animals. That was simply heartless butchery and should be condemned by the associates and acquaintances of the butcher.

A history of Baker county, Oregon, from its earliest settlement by the whites, is being prepared. The memorable gold excitements in the early sixties, as well as other incidents of note in the history of that section, will prove interesting to many, particularly to those who took an active part in reclaiming the country from its state of virgin wildness.

An old prospector claims that the greatest natural bridge in the world is located near Arrow Lake, in the Slocan mining district. It spans a dry gulch 260 feet wide and is 86 feet high in the center, while the arch is twenty feet wide on top and not more than ten or twelve feet thick. The bridge is of solid granite and as perfect as if formed by hand.

A Boston paper is authority for the statement that "the president of the Great Northern railroad announces that next year the termini will be New York and China, and the next year the road will encircle the globe," and wants to know if his name is Sellers. For the benefit of Boston culture it may be explained that his name is Hill, suggestive of an elevation and not a hole in the ground.

Since the jetty was built at the mouth of the Columbia a vast amount of sand has been shifted, and the channel has been straightened and deepened. South of the jetty there has been an average fill of five feet over 3,000 acres, and 1,200 acres have been covered away over low water mark. The discovery has been made that the channel now is almost the same that it was when Captain Vancouver examined it 100 years ago. The mouth of the grand old Columbia is now yawning for an open, free and unrestricted channel from Astoria to the Grand Coulee.

We are pleased to acknowledge the receipt of a weather bureau chart this morning from the central office at Portland. Showing the barometric and temperature readings, including the direction of wind, at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. This covers a wide scope extending all over the country, west of the 90th meridian and between the 30th and 60th parallel. In connection is the general forecast for the next 36 hours, which is being verified. Mr. Pague, the official of the weather bureau, at the central office is deserving of much credit for his efficiency and the benefit he is to the interests of agriculture.

The Oregon assembly is exempt from one annoyance at all events. It is said that the only "Oregon influences" yet visible at Olympia are Bill Sweeney and the Oregon Improvement company. If Mr. Allen is defeated in his present senatorial aspirations at Olympia, he can trace it to the day he went before the senate committee and worked for an appropriation of $500,000 for the Kirland ditch and only $141,500 for all the rest of the rivers and harbors of the state. We have shown that but $10,000 of this $141,500 was for the upper Columbia and Snake rivers. Upon this showing Mr. Allen has been charged with neglect of the true interests of the people and corresponding zeal for the selfish schemes of a select clique of real estate boomers. That record has never been denied. That speech has never been challenged. In reply the supporters of Mr. Allen have called up a brief speech made by their man in support of Senator Dolph's vigorous work for the boat railway at the dalles. They are forced to admit that their man did not lead the fight for an open river. He merely played second fiddle, and did that in a cold and perfunctory manner, and then only because he was being smoked out by the press. And it may be taken as an intimation of the fate of any other "statesman," high or low, who presumes at this stage of the game to thwart the will of the people of the Inland Empire for an open, free and unrestricted Columbia river from its sources to the sea. In the light of revelation it is incomprehensible how any friend of an open river expects to justify his vote for Mr. Allen, at Olympia.
