ONE MONARCHY LESS.

The Queen of The Sandwich Islands
Abdicates the Throne.

TWAS A BLOODLESS REVOLUTION.

Split on the Proposition to Grant a Lottery Franchise.

THE MINISTERS WOULDN'T STAND.

The United States Appealed to.. by a Commission en Route. to Annex the Islands.

HONOLULU, Jan. 18.—[Cor. A. P.]—The downfall of the Hawaiian monarchial government has finally occurred. Yesterday a provisional government was organized, composed entirely of white residents, who assumed control of all the functions of government and awaits the decision of the United States government whether it will accept the Islands as a portion of its domain. The events which led up to this situation commenced immediately before the departure of the steamship Mariposa for San Francisco January 11th, by the passage of a bill which gave a concession for the establishment of a lottery in the kingdom that franchise being given to six people on the promise of an annual payment of $500,000. This measure the ministers would not support and the proposition had the support of only one white man, the other twenty-five votes necessary to carry it being contributed entirely by natives and half casts.

This act was followed on the afternoon of January 12th, after the departure of the Mariposa, by springing a vote of want of confidence in the ministry, and which after but little argument was passed by a vote of twenty-five, the exact number necessary. The defeated ministry had the confidence of the public and of capitalists and the business community, and as a prorogation of parliament had been set for January 21st, by the queen herself, their tenure of office was expected to run until 1894. Considerable excitement then followed among the white residents of the islands, which was heightened on January 13th by the appointment of a ministry in which there was no confidence, and by the fact that the queen on the morning of Jan. 14th signed the lottery bill. The climax was reached on Jan. 15th by the queen attempting to promulgate a new constitution, guaranteeing to her absolute authority, but which her new ministry declined to indorse. The queen made her appeal almost entirely to the natives and half casts to sustain her. There was a public meeting in front of the palace later on, at which the queen announced the failure of her plans, and early in the evening the citizens met, and formed a committee of public safety.

On the 16th a mass meeting was held in the armory. About 5 p. m., the United States steamer Boston landed 300 men, all fully armed. They marched to the office of the consul-general of the United States. The marines were sent to the American legation, while the sailors marched out along Merchant street with two Gatling guns, and camped for a time on private grounds. All day Tuesday, the 18th, the community was in a state of expectancy, looking to the committee of public safety to do something to end the state of tension and to secure the rights of all citizens against encroachment once and for all. The ministry fled and the committee read the proclamation to the masses, declaring the Hawaiian monarchial system of government is hereby abrogated, and proceeded to form a provisional government.

THE COMMISSIONERS WORK. Immediate Action Being Taken in the Navy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Mott Smith, the representative in Washington of Queen Liliuokalani, after an interview with Secretary Foster thought the new government could be maintained without a display force by the United States. He believed, he said, that the people themselves would regulate matters, and that there would be no trouble. Smith had believed the revolution inevitable, but thought it would not come so soon. The Ranger and the Mohican have been ordered to sea immediately, the Mohican direct to Honolulu, and the Ranger to proceed to San Francisco and await further orders. The revolution was accomplished without bloodshed. H. B. Dole, an American, was made president of the provisional government. The commission will reach here Tuesday. Up to the time of the departure of the commission from Honolulu, all the powers represented in the Hawaiian Islands, excepting Great Britain and Japan, have recognized the new government. The foreign powers represented at the islands include the United States, Russia, Germany, France, Austria-Hungary, Portugal, Spain and Italy, besides most of the smaller European states, Mexico and several of the south American republics. The committee to negotiate a treaty of annexation to the United States consists of Lorin A. Thurston, William C. Wilder, William R. Castle, Charles R. Carter and Joseph Marsden, S. B. Dole, president of the provisional government of Hawaii, is a son of the late American missionary to Hawaii, a graduate of Williams college, and has been associate of the supreme court of Hawaii. He is a scholarly man, of acknowledged legal and judicial ability.

Must Cease Interfering.
CINCINNATI, Jan. 29.—The United States court has taken positive action in the case of the miners' strike, the result of which will be interesting. Some time ago L. C. Black was appointed by the federal court receiver of the Great Western Coal and Mining Company, operating mines on the Big Sandy river. When he discharged the check-weighter the miners struck and refused to let any one take their places. Judge Taft has found them in contempt, and issued an order that they must cease interference with the new men and vacate the company's house by the 1st of February.

The Greatest Building in the World.
An astonishing feature of the Columbian exposition will be one of the palaces grouped in the heart of the fair grounds. It is the Manufactures building. It will bear the same relation to this exposition as the Eiffel tower did to that of Paris in 1889, and indeed its possible use as a vantage point from which to see the fair grounds has terminated in the negative discussion for and against the construction in Chicago of a rival to the great tower of Paris. This greatest of all the exposition buildings, and of the buildings of the world, will present to Lake Michigan a facade of such a length as to suggest the wall of a city, yet it is so admirably designed, so light and graceful in its effect upon the vision, that its true extent can only be comprehended when its dimensions are expressed in figures and by comparisons. It is one-third of a mile long, and to compass it round about is to walk a mile. The roof of it is 1,083 by 788 feet, and the span of the dome, the largest ever attempted, is 888 feet. The roof is 230 feet from the ground, and the building has forty acres of ground floor. Two of the vast machinery halls of the Paris exposition could be wheeled through it, and the Auditorium, the building of which Chicago is most proud, could be pushed under this great roof, tower and all.—Julian Ralph in Harper's.

Little Manta.
There are other fishes which will attack man besides sharks, the worst of which are not more ferocious than a small South American fish found in the waters of the Orinoco river. It is a little creature, only six or eight inches in length, but in schools it will attack human beings and eat them up alive if it gets a chance. When you go fishing in that river those fierce pignoles will take bites out of the fish you catch as you are landing them in and you will do well not to fall out of the boat if you wish to escape being mutilated.—Washington

CRUISE IN THE WARSHIP NEWARK

Received by Order of the Sultan on the Imperial Yacht Talia at Smyrna—His Abode.

PORTLAND, Jan. 30.—Hon. D. P. Thompson, U. S. Minister to Turkey, arrived in Constantinople Dec. 26th. Word was brought here yesterday by Mr. Horace Brown, of England, on his way home from a trip around the world. Mr. Thompson completed his trip under rather unusual circumstances. He had been instructed to proceed to his post by way of Brindisi, Italy, where he was to meet the American cruiser Newark flag-ship of the Mediterranean squadron, commanded by Captain Casey, and having Rear-Admiral Benham and staff on board, and proceed in her to Constantinople. This was rather unusual, as it is not the custom to send a United States minister to a foreign capital in a man-of-war. Mr. Thompson joined the Newark, December 19, and was received with the honors of a minister, a salute of 21 guns, and prepared to sail the same day for Constantinople, but Admiral Benham was not sure of the right of a ship of the armament of the Newark to pass the Dardanelles, and it was decided to send a dispatch to Constantinople asking permission for the Newark to come to that city, the answer to be sent to Smyrna in Asia Minor where the Newark was held.

On arriving at Smyrna an answer was received stating that it would be a bad precedent to set to allow a cruiser of the armament of the Newark to pass the Dardanelles, but that the sultan had ordered the imperial yacht Talia, with two of his staff on board, to proceed to Smyrna and bring the minister to the capital. The Talia passed the Dardanelles on the afternoon of Christmas day, with the stars and stripes flying, and was saluted by the forts and shore batteries on the way, and arrived at the entrance of the Golden Horn on the morning of the 26th, when the minister was sent on shore in the Talia's boat, with the American flag flying, and was saluted by the Talia's crew on leaving. Abraham Bey, Dr. Isaac Pasha and Mr. Gargulo went in the Talia to meet Mr. Thompson when he arrived and took up his abode at the Hotel de Londres. Mr. Brown was staying at the Hotel de Londres at the time, and says the arrival was made the occasion of quite a demonstration.

He says there was quite a little undercurrent of talk as to why such unusual honors should be paid the new minister from the United States by the sultan, as such a reception has not been accorded the minister of any other nation in his service, and why it was given in this case no one appeared to know. Mr. Brown says he had just a moment's conversation with Mr. Thompson, who appeared to be in good health and spirits, but had many important matters to attend to. On the 27th Mr. Thompson went to the porte with Mr. A. Gargulo, first dragoman of the legation, and called upon the minister of foreign affairs, his excellency, Said Pasha, with whom he left a copy of his credentials. On the evening of the 28th a grand dinner was given by the British ambassador to welcome the new United States minister, at which most of the diplomats were present. During the following week he was to be presented to the sultan.
