Not So Safe After All.

"Do you see that tall, spare man leaning against the rail over there?" said James Vance, steward of the Athenian club. "Well, I'll tell you a little yarn in which he played an amusing part. Some years ago Haquette & Haggeman got in a big safe, all gorgeous with paint and glorious with impossible landscapes. Ernest Haquette was very proud of it, and in his bustling, eager way would show it to all old patrons of the place, expatiating upon its merits.

"One evening he was engaged in showing a party of gentlemen the wonders of the safe, and ran on: 'No burglar could ever get into that. I tell you. He couldn't open it in a week. It's the safest safe in this town, for money.'

"Oh, I don't know about that," said that tall man, who was then leaning on the bar just as he is now leaning on the rail. 'I don't think it's so safe.'

"This started Haquette a little. No one had ever questioned that safe before in that off hand way. He flushed a little while the stranger regarded him nonchalantly. Haquette felt nettled and at last blurted out:

"I'll put $500 in that safe and if you can get it out in six hours you can have it. Axes, jimmies and all tools are allowed, but dynamite barred."

"I'll go you," said our tall friend. "We'll just make it half an hour and no tools however."

"Haquette promptly dumped $500 into a bag, put the bag into the safe and turned the combination. There you are," he said defiantly.

"The tall man got down on his knees, put an ear against the safe where the tumblers work and began turning the knob of the combination. He didn't say a word, but steadily clicked away. Haquette began to sweat and step around.

"In twenty-three minutes the safe was open. Our friend over there took the bag of money, handed it to the dumfounded Haquette and said cynically: 'I don't want your money. They sanded me for a little job like that once. My name is Ensign.'"—San Francisco Examiner.

Found Him at Last.

She had been away all summer. The mountains had felt her stately tread; the sea had taken her to its ever changing bosom and folded her in its billowy arms.

She had flirted from Old Point to Bar Harbor, from Mount Mitchell to the Adirondacks.

She had tasted the sweets of hope; she had drained the bitter cup of disappointment.

Now she is at home again. Home, the Mecca of the weary pilgrim; the Canaan beyond the wilderness; the altar around which we all kneel in thankfulness; the dear walls which take us to their loving embrace and hide us from the comfortless world without.

Home again, and a peace had come to her she had never known since she had gone out in June as the birdlet from its nest.

At the front door her dear old father, who had been at his desk ten hours daily all the weary while she was away, met her.

"My daughter!" he said, holding out his arms to her. Like a tired wanderer, footsore and heartsick, she came to him.

Trusting, confidently, restfully, she laid her soft white face, in its frame of golden hair, upon his bosom.

"At last," she murmured, "at last I have found some one to be a popper to me."

And the dear old father, in the tumultuous joy of having his darling child again, didn't catch on.—Detroit Free Press.

The Chilian soldier is a peculiarly organized fighting machine. He is pre-eminently and literally bloodthirsty, and he loves to see blood flow from wounds inflicted by his own hand. He uses the rifle and even the bayonet, as it were, under protest, and can hardly be restrained, when at close quarters, from throwing down his firearms and hurling himself upon the foe knife in hand. An Englishman attached to the ambulance told me that after the battle of Pozo Almonte scores of men lay locked in the death grip, their knives plunged into one another's bodies.—M. H. Harvey's "Dark Days in Chili."

Great Profit in Pipe Manufacture. The Mannesmann process of spinning tubes from solid ingots of iron and steel, which has attracted so much attention during the past two years, has proved a bonanza to some of the companies that adopted it. The report of the Mannesmann German-Austrian tube works for the last year shows a profit of $342,000 on business aggregating only $780,000.—New York Journal.

A Noted Dog Dead. The railway dog of England, known as Help, has died. He wore a silver collar inscribed, "I am Help, the railway dog of England and traveling agent for the orphans of railway men killed on duty. My office is 55 Colebrook row, where subscriptions will be thankfully received and duly acknowledged." He brought more than $1,000 into the fund.—New York Sun.

In the coming Crystal Palace electrical exhibition, upon the payment of a small fee, persons will be able to listen through the telephones to the music per-

Married on His Deathbed.

Wednesday Stroud Van Meter and Miss Spencer were married at Marengo, Crawford county, Ind., the bridegroom at the time being on his deathbed. About ten days ago Van Meter and two brothers were injured by the premature explosion of a blast of dynamite while working in a quarry near Marengo, his injuries consisting of a broken leg and arm, the loss of an eye and internal injuries that will almost certainly cause his death. The wounded man and Miss Spencer, had been for some months betrothed, and were only waiting for an improvement in their financial circumstances to have the ceremony performed. When the accident occurred the young woman insisted that the ceremony be performed at once in order that she might be at liberty to care for her betrothed.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Millions of Red Herring.

The waters of the inlet at this time of the year are fairly alive with red herring. The general belief is that shipping will drive these fish from any waters, but any one standing on the deck of a boat lying in the stream can see millions of them now. Saturday afternoon several boys were observed fishing in the old Indian fashion, and they secured a lot of fish. The Indian method is as follows: Take a slender pole about twenty feet long and drive in on one side a dozen or two of tempey nails; then, sitting in the bow of the boat, propel it by paddling with the pole. The pole, in passing through the water, catches the fish on the nails. In this way a large quantity may be caught in a short time.

CORNER OF SECOND AND WASHINGTON. THE DALLES, OREGON.

THE DALLES, Wasco County, Oregon,

The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.

ITS TERRITORY. It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market. The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS. The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.

The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH. It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.

Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these
