DEFINITIONS OF A LAUGH.

First Impressions Concerning an Act of Which Most People Are Guilty. A London weekly paper, Tit-Bits, offered a prize of ten dollars for the best definition of a laugh.

An eruption of joy, relieved by an explosion at the mouth of "the crater."

That by which mirth pays a compliment to wit.

The merry thunder peal which follows the lightning flash of wit.

An outward indication of inward satisfaction.

The physical expression of a pleasurable mental emotion.

An antidote against the poison of melancholy.

As bravery is the soul of wit, so a laugh is the soul of expression.

"Laugh and grow fat," as we have been told.

In a proverb undoubtedly both true and old. We cannot be wrong if a laugh we define as the very best condition when we all dine.

The music of the merry, the croak of the scornful and the wail of the maniac.

The outward visible sign of an inward invisible tickle.

The natural ebullition of a joyous heart.

A burst of music from the harp of mirth, produced by the touch of humor.

The "Volapuk" of mirth and good nature.

The keynote of man's character, the tone of which proves its quality.

An appreciation of humor conveyed without speech.

A cheerful report from the interior. Nature's mental medicine. Used sparingly it acts as a pleasant tonic, but when resorted to immoderately it paralyzes and degrades the senses.

A temporary relaxation from gravity. The only family doctor who gives relief in all cases, often effects instantaneous cure and sends no bills.

Merriment's wand, but derision's dart. One of God's greatest blessings for temporarily relieving the monotony of our existence.

Heaven's best antidote to care. The luxury of health and the greatest help to digestion.

What a woman is fond of doing when she has got a new set of false teeth. Nature's tonic for mental ailments. The best doctor and the cheapest medicine in the world.

A spark from the fire of life. The spray from the fountain of mirth, or a bubble from the well of scorn.

The sunshine of the heart reflected in the face.

The safety valve of mirth, the pond of derision and the mockery of despair.

An ostentatious display of one's own sense of humor.

The oil which make the lamp of life burn bright and clear.

The explosion produced by a flash of wit.

A Tamed Lion.

At the Zoo a young lion from Sokoto was much intent on breaking in the iron shutter which separates the house it now occupies from its former quarters next door.

During a windstorm in the early days of last June a tree on the farm of Mortimer Hamilton, in Jackson county, Ind., was blown down, and in falling a limb struck squarely across the back of a large snapping turtle and forced it down into the earth.

The lion was striking constant heavy blows on the door, and was so intent on its occupation as to disregard the call of its keeper. The keeper quietly attracted its attention by pulling its tail—and the lion at once desisted, rubbed its face against the keeper's hand and lay down to be stroked, patted and have its mane caressed.

A Turtle's Unavoidable Delay. During a windstorm in the early days of last June a tree on the farm of Mortimer Hamilton, in Jackson county, Ind., was blown down, and in falling a limb struck squarely across the back of a large snapping turtle and forced it down into the earth.

The damp weather at Lancaster, Kan., caused a package of 5,000 postage stamps to become glued together in a solid block, making it necessary to return them to Washington.

Deserving Praise. We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction.

To Protect Lives of Railroad Men.

An ingenious and simple instrument has been devised for the protection of surface men at work on the railways.

The inventor, Sir William Arrol, was led to apply his mind to this matter in consequence of the numerous fatalities which have lately occurred among that class of railway servants in England.

The instrument consists of a steel spring connected with a portable electric battery and bell by a coil of wire two or three hundred yards long.

When a train comes along the spring is depressed by the flanges of the wheel as they pass over and two metallic buttons, one on the under side of the spring and the other on the upper side of the sole plate, are brought into contact and complete an electric circuit supplied from the battery, ringing the bell at the battery and thus warning the workmen of the approaching train.

The instruments are to be kept at the signal boxes along the line so as to be readily available by the workmen. Sir William Arrol does not intend to patent the invention.

His sole desire is to render the surface man's life a less dangerous one and he gives all railway companies permission to manufacture as many as they please.

English and American Appetites. A New York woman who has been passing some months with English relatives, comprising several different families, says that from her observation the English appetite is constructed upon different plans from that of the American.

Four meals a day sounds very satisfying, but she admits she often went to bed hungry. Breakfast is bread and jam and butter, with a bit of cold meat or bacon and eggs. Dinner at 2 is a soup, a joint, a sweet and a pastry. At 5 o'clock is tea with biscuits—our crackers.

At 8 is supper, which is frugal. The portions are small, and though the meals occupy considerable time one may rise from any hungry and longing to be filled. "This nibbling seemed quite satisfactory to the others," concluded the speaker, "but I sighed many times for a well stocked American board. We consume considerably more at our three meals than I was offered anywhere at the four."
