FEBRUARY FANCIES.

Crispy Sayings and Doings of Local and General Import.

It's really time the editors had killed that "Crying Need." And the "Lung-Felt Want" should seek oblivion's bowser. But there's one phrase sticks to 'em, and they're everyone agreed to hold on to "The Duty of the Hour."

Demorest prize contest tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Miss Alma Schmidt will entertain the Ladies Glee Club this evening. The great battleship Indiana was launched at Philadelphia today.

Winter lingers in the lap of Spring. The latter ought to give him the shake. Keep your ulster where it will be handy. There is no telling what the weather may do now.

The ferry boat steamed up today and made the first trip across the river for several months.

The ice gorges in the upper river have broken up and are floating down past here today piecemeal.

The White Swan mine of Baker county has yielded a $4,000 gold brick as a result of only a fifteen days run with their ten stamp mill.

Free poison will take the place of the squirrel bounty in Lincoln county Wash., this year. It is intended to furnish each farmer with two ounces of the drug.

A suggestive cartoon apropos to Lent appeared recently in an eastern daily. It represented the devil in a dress suit shaking hands with a society young lady and saying with a parting bow: "Good-bye for forty days!"

Chicago receives a severe blow this year through the hoop skirt. Street car companies will now be compelled to double the number of their cars and space everywhere will be at a premium in the world's fair grounds.

We have received a copy of the 1893 report of the canal and locks at Oregon city. When the works were incorporated in 1868, the authorized capital was $300,000. The bill authorizing the state of Oregon to buy them at $200,000 failed of passing.

Mr. Mohr, who returned yesterday from a trip to Grants and Goldendale, has been doing some surveying. He finds that the river at Grants is 70 feet higher than at The Dalles and the highest point on the road between Grants and Goldendale 1,600 feet.

Does advertising pay? asks the Newspaper Man. Newspaper men say so when soliciting patronage. Do they believe it? The San Francisco Examiner has contracted to pay $7,800 for a page for 1893 in Printer's Ink, a publication that circulates among advertisers and journalists.

The interest manifested by the ladies of The Dalles in the Demorest medal contest should meet with a hearty response. The price of admission is so low as to be of little importance to each individual; but 25 cents will buy a good magazine, which will amuse, instruct and entertain some youth who might otherwise go into the wards of vice. For tonight see programme in another column. Doors will open at 7:30. Admission fee for children 15 cents.

A tramp called at a house in North Milton the other day, says the Milton Eagle, and asked for something to eat. The Christian lady handed out some bread with the remark: "It is for God's sake I give you this piece of bread—only for God's sake." "Thanks," said the tramp, "thanks; now for Christ's sake put some butter on it."

A Salem banker suggests that the money appropriated by the state of Oregon be devoted to inserting advertisements in the Chicago papers, certain days during the fair, when Oregon fruit, wheat, etc. samples would be given away. He thinks in that manner Oregon would be thoroughly advertised and a large increase of population be the result.

Funeral of Robert Bybee.

Robert E. Bybee, who died recently in California, was buried in Portland today. Mr. Bybee is the son of James E. Bybee, one of the old pioneer horse-men of Oregon. The latter became famous through the wonderful performances of the horse Guigo, who, under his direction and training, won 31 out of 37 races in 1890. Robert Bybee was the owner of Misty Morn, Sea Breeze and other noted racers now at the Blood Horse track in California. Mr. Bybee left Portland about six weeks ago with his horses, to attend the meeting at the Bay city.

Few men are better known in horse circles than Mr. Bybee. Portland has been his constant home for the past 25 years. He studied law and was admitted to practice in 1866. He followed his profession in Portland for many years; but more recently has devoted his time and attention almost exclusively to horses.

Floating Ice.

About midnight last night the river at this point was again blocked solid with ice, continuing for about an hour. On one of the cakes floating by this morning was a bridge bent. A man in a boat started out to capture it, and the last heard of it he had it lashed about a mile down the river, with a fair prospect of landing his prize.

The Chautauquans.

The Winquatt Chautauqua circle held a very interesting session last evening. The time was given to the study of Greek architecture. The quotations for the evening were from Burns, and some of the prettiest of the compositions of the Scotch poet were read. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. C. J. Crandall, quotations from Lowell.

Deeds Filed.

United States to Albert J. Graham, Hood River, NW 1/4 Sec. 29, T 1 N, R 10 E. W. M.

BORN.

This morning, Feb. 28th, to the wife of George Keller, a son.

Mr. C. F. Davis, editor of the Bloomfield, Iowa, Farmer, says: "I can recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to all sufferers with colds and croup. I have used it in my family for the past two years and have found it the best I ever used for the purposes for which it was intended. 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggists."

WORKED THE LAWYERS.

A Successful Scheme of a Man From the University of Virginia.

A stranger claiming to be a lawyer, a member of a well-known Portland law firm, and of polished appearance and conversation, secured $35 from one of The Dalles lawyers a few days ago. Suspecting something was wrong the fellow was arrested and is now in jail. As he is well connected and seems to have but lately entered himself as a swindler, his father has been furnished with the facts and a letter from him is awaited, pending a definite charge. This is the same man spoken of in the East Oregonian in the following article and readers of that paper may be interested to know that he is in jail here:

"There was a confidence scheme worked on a couple of Pendleton gentlemen, the other day, which had an amusing outcome. A man called at the office of the well known attorney, C. H. Carter, and stated that he was from the University of Virginia. He called by name all the members of the faculty and was also evidently acquainted with many of the citizens of the town in which the school is located. His name was Black, and he wanted a small sum of money with which to procure that with which to satisfy the cravings of the inner man. The above named attorney is inclined to be philanthropic and loaned him $10, 'until the bank opened in the morning.' That evening, the same stranger called on another attorney in Pendleton, T. G. Haley, and claimed to be a brother of Mr. Pointdexter, of Walla Walla. Of this attorney he also borrowed some money and departed for Portland. Upon telephoning to Walla Walla, it was ascertained that the impudencious stranger had worked the same scheme in that place. A telegram was then sent to Wirt Minor, of whom the stranger spoke familiarly, in Portland saying: 'Look out for a man from the University of Virginia, with striped pants.'"

That same day a brother of Mr. Carter, who sent the dispatch, called on Mr. Minor, who sent back the following: "Man from the University of Virginia here. Thanks." It appears that the brother was a graduate of that institution, and happened to have on striped pants."

The Crinoline Craze.

The Telegram is first to report the arrival of crinoline in Portland. It started in Europe, crossed the stormy Atlantic, reached in safety the New England shores, and, like a vast engulfing tidal wave, has been moving toward the wild and woolly west. It has set all the world agog. Women have raved over it, the press has teemed with accounts of its progress, and the pulpit has not been silent over the threatened invasion of the famous hoop-skirt. The tall hat, which has been so long and so loudly execrated by all male theater and opera-goers, is no longer in the contests, and must be content to take a back seat for the present. As yet, only one well-authenticated "case" has been reported in Portland, though it is no hazard to predict that the new fashionable fad will soon assume an epidemic form among the ladies of the city.

Last evening the Marquam theater-goers caught the first fugitive glimpse of a crinoline which has been seen in Portland for probably a quarter of a century. To old-timers the sight was not so novel, but to hundreds of pairs of young eyes it was a sort of wonder, a revelation in the great world of fashion. The lady to whom the credit belongs of introducing the coming style of dress in this city entered the crowded auditorium last evening and advanced down the aisle to a seat in the parquet. A great many persons who had not obtained seats were standing in the vestibule when the lady quietly entered and started down the aisle. A sudden hush fell over the crowds, the subdued hum of conversation was suspended and the lady with the crinoline instantly became the cynosure of all eyes as she passed through the ranks and down to her seat. As if moved by a common impulse, every one stood aside to make room for the lady. It is unnecessary to say everybody looked, and, for a few moments, the incident caused no small flutter of excitement, especially among the ladies present. Now that the social ice is broken, it is very probable that hoop-skirts will not long be a novelty on the streets of Portland.

Several months ago the East Oregonian published an article in regard to some Eastern Oregon boys who intended to drive from La Grande to Chicago, the outfit proposed being an old overland stage coach, drawn by a four-horse team. It is now learned that the expedition is a "go." The party will consist of six young men from La Grande and Pendleton, who will pose as cowboy vocalists and musicians, and will sell patent medicine in the towns through which they pass to defray the expenses of the trip.—Review.

Proposals for Bids.

Sealed bids will be received at the office of Crandall V Burget until noon March 20th, 1893, for the superstructure of a proposed dwelling to be built for W. L. Bradshaw on the northeast corner of Washington and Fourth streets, The Dalles, Or., according to the plans and specifications prepared by C. J. Crandall.

Bids will also be received at the same time and place for the mason work of the above mentioned building. Plans and specifications can be seen at the office of Crandall and Burget. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

Shiloh's Vitalizer is what you need for dyspepsia, torpid liver, yellow skin or kidney trouble. It is guaranteed to give you satisfaction. Price 74c. Sold by Snipes & Kinersly, druggists.

Remarkable, Indeed.

We published recently the remarkable literary announcement of an edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica, for $20.00, the genuine, illustrated, large type, cloth bound work. A sample volume can now be seen at this office; it is certainly the most astonishing bargain ever offered in the book world. We propose to order a set, and if any of our friends want to join us they can do so, and save a little in trouble and expense. See the advertisement elsewhere and come in and see the book. There is an installment plan for securing the work on payment of only five cents a day, or $1.00 every twenty days.

Mr. Albert Favorite, of Arkansas City, Kan., wishes to give our readers the benefit of his experience with colds. He says: "I contracted a cold early last spring that settled on my lungs, and had hardly recovered from it when I caught another that hung on all summer and left me with a hacking cough which I thought I never would get rid of. I had used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy some fourteen years ago with much success, and concluded to try it again. When I got through with one bottle my cough had left me, and I have not suffered with a cough or cold since. I have recommended it to others, and all speak well of it." 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggists.

PERSONAL MENTION.

W. S. Cram, of Portland, is in town. Sister Superior May Peter is ill at the academy.

Mrs. C. H. Brown is now stopping with Mrs. Bert Campbell, on Third street.

Edgar Daley, agent for the St. Charles Evaporated Cream Co., Portland, is in the city today.

Mrs. J. Obarr is still confined to her room with a very severe attack of nervous prostration.

Frank B. Stanton, of Hood River, is in The Dalles today. His fruit ranch is said to be a model by those who profess to know.

Ben Southwell, of Enderby, is in town today. He reports that the revival meetings, held by J. H. Baker, are very successful, there being many conversions there.

There's a good deal of guarantee business in the store keeping of today. It's too excessive. Or too reluctant. Half the time it means nothing. Words—only words.

This offer to refund the money, or to pay a reward, is made under the hope that you won't want your money back, and that you won't claim the reward. Of course.

So, whoever is honest in making it, and works—not on his own reputation alone, but through the local dealer, whom you know, must have something he has faith in back of the guarantee. The business wouldn't stand a year without it.

What is lacking is confidence. Back of that, what is lacking is that clear honesty which is above the "average practice."

Dr. Pierce's medicines are guaranteed to accomplish what they are intended to do, and their makers give the money back if the result isn't apparent.

Doesn't it strike you that a medicine which the makers have so much confidence in, is the medicine for you.
