Blount May Use the Rush.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—Secretary Carlisle declined to confirm or deny the statement that the revenue cutter Rush at San Francisco had been ordered to hold herself in readiness to carry Mr. Blount to Hawaii. It is unofficially stated, however, that the revenue cutter will be placed at Blount's disposal on his arrival, and unless arrangements can be made for the Pacific Mail steamer, which sails for China on the 23d inst., to touch at Honolulu, Blount will sail on the Rush. It will take that vessel about a week to make the trip. The supposition that the Rush has been ordered for this city receives confirmation from the fact that revenue and marine officers, who three days ago denied positively that any orders to this effect had been given, are this morning dumb as oysters on the subject.

A Federal Victory.

VALPARAISO, March 16.—A dispatch from Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, announces that 400 government troops that arrived there to reinforce the Castilistas at Villariosario have been captured by the federals, who also seized a large amount of arms and ammunition. A line of government troops has been stationed along the frontier between Rio Grande do Sul and Uruguay to prevent the federals from crossing the line. A correspondent at Rivera announces that the federals have raised the siege of

WILL TAKE THEIR TIME

The Senate Again Adjourns Without Doing Anything.

NOMINATIONS STILL HANG FIRE

Republicans May Try to Prevent Democrats From Organizing.

Other News.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The senate, after a 10-minute session, adjourned till Monday.

From the action today, it is evident the senate intends taking its time in the matter of confirming appointments. It was supposed as soon as the committees were reorganized the nominations so far would receive prompt action, and that an executive session would be had today.

At the previous session it was ordered that soon as the committees were appointed nominations would be referred. These might have been considered this morning in committee and confirmed today, but the adjournment of the senate until Monday makes it impossible for any of the officials named by the president to assume their duties until the middle of next week. A prominent senator on the democratic side said this morning the senate was not in any great hurry to go into the business of confirming nominations, and intimated that possibly it would wait until the elective officers were selected. The senate would be reorganized if it was determined to do this at once. As soon as this was done, he said, the senate would confirm every nomination sent in up to that time.

Immediately after the senate adjourned today the democratic caucus committee resumed its sitting, and took up the matter of the reorganization of the elective officers of the senate. The committee will be ready to report to the full caucus early next week, possibly Tuesday morning. Whether the democrats intend to reorganize or not is an interesting question. If the democrats attempt to reorganize at this session, it is almost certain the republicans will show fight to prevent the consummation of the plan if within their power.

Smith and his wife have every luxury that money can buy, but there is one thing lacking to their happiness. Both are fond of children, but no little voices prattle, no little feet patter in their beautiful home. "I would give ten years of my life if I could have one healthy, living child of my own," Smith often says to himself. No woman can be the mother of healthy offspring unless she is herself in good health. If she suffers from female weakness, general debility, bearing-down pains, and functional derangements, her physical condition is such that she cannot hope to have healthy children. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a sovereign and guaranteed remedy for all these ailments. See guarantee printed on bottle-wrapper.

A Burglar's Tragic End.

Telegram.

Portlanders will remember Joe Murill, a jeweler, who came here from San Francisco in 1889, and for two years was in the employ of L. C. Honrichsen as a workman and salesman, but few can connect him with Joseph Francis Touhill, the burglar, who was shot and killed in Oakland, Cal., by police officer Cashin, who was himself shot and fatally wounded in an attempt to arrest Touhill and his pals at 3 o'clock Saturday morning.

In the death of Touhill a strange story of a misspent life is brought to light. He was born of a good family, reared in a pleasant home and educated under favorable circumstances. He was a bright, intellectual, affable fellow, who made friends wherever he went. His early training and the influences surrounding him were of the best, and yet he became a desperate criminal and died a violent death at the hand of an officer, who was endeavoring to arrest him.

Touhill, who was known as Murill here, to all but a few of his most intimate friends, was a skilled jeweler. He was a hale fellow, and his associates were not always of the best, but his friends would have been loth to believe him a criminal. He was stylish in dress, approaching extravagance, but not vulgar, was luxurious in his tastes, always lived well and always had money.

His salary was insufficient to support him as he lived, and it was always a mystery to his friends in Portland as to where his money came from; but he explained it by saying that he received remittances from home. His employer placed confidence in him and his acquaintances would have resented any insinuation against his honesty.

When the detectives searched the premises of the young man's family, in San Francisco, nothing was found in his chamber. Then the detectives entered an adjoining room, a dark bathroom. In the ceiling they found a small scuttle leading up to a dark attic in the gables. An officer was put through the hole. In the garret was unearthed the plunder of five burglaries committed since December last. The plunder was packed in two big leather satchels and a pine box.

In one of the satchels the officers found nine sealskins stolen from a furrier establishment in San Francisco on the night of February 28. In the other satchel was found over $400 worth of goods stolen from a dwelling on February 8. In the pine box a quantity of silk furnishing goods and other stolen articles were found.

"The people of this vicinity insist on having Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and do not want any other," says John V. Bishop, of Portland Mills, Indiana. That is right. They know it to be superior to any other for colds, and as a preventive and cure for croup, and why should they not insist upon having it. 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.
