MEANS A NEW PARTY
What Cleveland's Principles When Laid Down Will Lead to.

FORMER OFFICE-HOLDERS ANGRY
Because the President Refuses to Recognize Them Notwithstanding Their Work for Him.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—If Cleveland remains true to the principles he has laid down in the matter of appointing men to office, he will make quite a stride towards civil service reform. If all his ideas are carried out, he will be able to organize a party that a great many people can join, even if he does drive a large number of democrats away from him. In turning down the ex-office holders he made a master stroke in one or two directions. He unloaded from his shoulders a horde of the most persistent office-seekers a president could encounter. These old-timers had been through the mill and they knew just what to do. They had all, at one time or another, seen Cleveland, and could approach him with a degree of familiarity that made him tired. But he made them mad, and what is more, only a very few had the nerve to come out publicly and say so. The trouble was that during the four years Cleveland was in office they performed the lick-spittle functions with a great deal of earnestness. Nothing that Cleveland ever did was even for a moment to be subject to censure. He could do no wrong. They gathered in hordes at the St. Louis convention in 1888, and shouted themselves hoarse over his renomination. After his defeat, charged, of course, to the New York democracy, which did not "love Cleveland for the enemies he had made," they at once began a campaign for Cleveland's renomination. Many a democrat who held office under Cleveland, had said very suggestively during the past few days:

"Where would Cleveland have been now if it had not been for the ex-office-holders?"
And this is worthy of comment, for every person who was at the Chicago convention in 1892 knows that it was the ex-office-holders that secured his nomination. Those who were not there had their henchmen there. The delegates were not all ex-office-holders, and the convention was dominated by them.
"Had it been announced that this was to be Cleveland's policy a year ago, what would have been the result?" plaintively inquired one of the faithful who had been informed that the brand he carried over from the last Cleveland administration barred him from any of the pap to be laddled out now. And what is also galling to the ex-office-holders is the fact that Cleveland does not consider himself in the category of an ex-office-holder. It makes them mad to think that after four years of persistent work they were able to nominate Cleveland again, and then to have him claim it was the spontaneous uprising of the people.

The Mine Burning.
HONEYBROOK, Pa., March 19.—The Honeybrook mine took fire several months ago, burning away the supports and closing the openings. It was supposed to have burned itself out, but it is now burning fiercer than ever. The surface near the strippings is so heated that water flowing over it is immediately dried up. Grave apprehension is felt for the surrounding mines, as the fires are liable to eat into their workings. Millions of dollars of coal property is imperiled. The village of Honeybrook, immediately over the mine, is menaced by the collapse of the earth. Fissures have already run through the town, from which quantities of smoke and gases are escaping. The people are in a state of terror.

Death of Jacob Conser.
EUGENE, Or., March 18.—Jacob Conser, who is well known throughout the Willamette valley, died at the family residence in this city this forenoon at 9:40, of pneumonia.

Correspondence Tampered With.
WASHINGTON, March 19.—Several representatives of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions visited Washington last week. They came from the Boston headquarters of the body with which they are connected, and had several interviews with Josiah Quincy, acting first assistant secretary of state. They told him that the Turkish officials had interfered with the correspondence of the American missionaries in that country; that the missionaries were subject to much ill-treatment by the natives who were not restrained by the authorities; and that messages from United States Minister Thompson to the state department in Washington never reached their destination, from which he (Thompson) inferred his mail was tampered with. The investigation will be completed in a few days.

The Bayeux Tapestry.
Tapestry was brought into general use in western Europe, with many other elegancies of life, by the Moors of Spain. The oldest known specimen is the Bayeux tapestry, an epic in embroidery, carefully treasured for centuries in the cathedral of Bayeux, and now preserved in the hotel de ville of that place. Miss Strickland says of this piece of work:

"It is beyond all competition the most wonderful achievement in the gentle craft of needlework that ever was executed by fair and royal hands."
It was done by Matilda of Flanders wife of William the Conqueror, and the ladies of her court. It is a coarse linen cloth, 214 feet long and 20 inches wide, on which is worked in woolen thread of various colors a representation of the invasion and conquest of England by the Normans.
It contains the figures of about 625 men, 200 horses, fifty-five dogs, forty ships and boats, besides a quantity of quadrupeds, birds, trees, houses, castles and churches, all executed in the proper colors, with names and inscriptions over them to elucidate the story. It is a valuable historic document, as it gives a correct and minute portraiture of the Norman costumes and their manners and customs.—Woman's Work.

Ailments of the Eyes.
No organ of the body is liable to a greater variety of ailments than the eye. More than forty such diseases are enumerated in medical works.

Some of these tend toward blindness, partial or complete. Some are highly contagious. Some are peculiar to the earliest stages of infancy; some to old age. Some are due to other diseases; some originate with the eye itself; some are the result of external wounds. Some are brought on by the improper use of the eye; some by the abuse of other organs. Some are partially or wholly curable; others are not.

As we have two eyes, the loss of one does not materially affect the other. The double provision is a wise and benevolent one in the case of an organ exposed to so many accidents from without and so many diseases from within.—Youth's Companion.

Giving Wood a Good Color.
Many hard woods of superior color and grain may be greatly improved by treatment. The graining or marking of the wood is always a beautiful feature, and it can be greatly improved and accentuated, if faint, by giving the entire piece one coat of raw oil, and then with a camel's hair brush going over the various lines and veinings several times. Each coat increases the color. A slight coat of varnish will help to keep the color.—New York Tribune.

ANOTHER BIG FIRE

The Tremont Temple in Boston Completely Gutted Yesterday.

WATER DAMAGES PARKER HOUSE
The Temple Was the Headquarters of the Baptists and Was Twice Before Destroyed by Fire.

Boston, March 19.—Fire broke out about 7 o'clock this morning in Tremont temple, on Tremont street, opposite the Tremont House, and before noon the entire structure was gutted. No mishaps are reported to the guests. The temple was a fiery furnace 20 minutes after the first alarm. The blaze poured from all the upper windows of the Burnham building and W. S. Butler's building, adjoining on Tremont street, placing the Parker house and the Park hotel in danger in the rear and alarming the firemen lest it should get down among the rookeries on Province street. At 9:30 o'clock the fire was well under control, the 1,000 occupants at the Parker house and Park hotel returning to their rooms. The loss on the temple is variously estimated at from $325,000 to $375,000, while the Parker house is believed to have been damaged by water to the extent of $50,000.

Woman's Dainty Underwear.

Just what sort of underwear to assume is one question that troubles the average woman very much. She doesn't want to wear so much that it will be bulky, and she doesn't want to wear too little for fear she will catch cold. She tries first one and then another shaped garment, and the wise woman is she who, having at last hit upon that which is most comfortable, makes it most dainty and assumes it for good. Very little linen is used nowadays for one's lingerie, the preference being given to cambric, Victoria lawn, nainsook or percale. The last is noted with tiny dots or wee flowers in pink, blue or lavender upon the white ground. Then when the garment is finished the edges have a triple scallop or a sharp point embroidered in cotton of the same color as the figure. This material, with its simple finish, is liked for sack shaped chemises, for night-dresses and for drawers. It is seldom, if ever, used for skirts.

The fancy for silk nightdresses still exists, but as there always have been women who would wear nothing but the clear white lawn or nainsook, and as these women are many, the makers of underwear are specially catering to them. Very much more fine work, that is, handwork, can be put upon a nainsook gown than upon a silk one, and the needlewoman can make more fine tucks, fancy stitches, gatherings, hemstitching and drawing of threads than ever would seem possible.—Mrs. Mallon in Ladies' Home Journal.

"Lighthouses are very expensive," remarked Mrs. Dimling, looking up from a government report.
"Yes, any theatrical manager will tell you that," replied her husband.—Detroit Free Press.

More than two-thirds of the agricultural implements, aggregating $120,000, imported into Natal, South Africa, last year, were from the United States.
