Still Missing.

Thomas Orby White has searched far and wide for his newly-made better half, but her whereabouts still remain unknown, although it is believed that she is on her way to Victoria, B. C. However, Mr. White holds his marriage certificate as a proof of his good intentions and innocence, and perhaps would be excusable if he congratulated himself on the turn things have taken.—Tribune.

You will never be satisfied with your eye glasses unless you consult the eye specialist, Professor Aloes, at the Umattilla house parlors. Don't miss this opportunity.

Joseph V. Dory, of Warsaw, Ill., was troubled with rheumatism and tried a number of different remedies, but says none of them seemed to do him any good; but finally he got hold of one that speedily cured him. He was much pleased with it, and felt sure that others similarly afflicted would like to know what the remedy was that cured him. He states for the benefit of the public that it is called Chamberlain's Pain Balm. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, Druggists.

The strongest recommendation that any article can have is the endorsement of the mothers of the town. When the mothers recommend it you may know that that article has more than ordinary merit. Here is what the Centerville, South Dakota, Citizen says editorially of an article sold in their town: "From personal experience we can say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has broken up bad colds for our children. We are acquainted with many mothers in Centerville who would not be without it in the house for a good many times its cost, and are recommending it every day." 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

AT THE LONDON ZOO.

HOW THE CHILDREN ENJOY THEMSELVES ON A SATURDAY.

Seeing the Animals in London's Great Garden Take Their Daily Meal is a Weekly Attraction in the Big City. Watching the Creatures Eat.

No day is more animated at the London Zoological gardens than Saturday, when the children appear in full force, marshaled by papas and mammas, who are doubtless glad enough to visit the scene of their own early "larks," but who try to look as if they came only as guides and guardians. The little people begin to appear early in the forenoon, some of them bringing a lunch basket, wherein may be found not only their own bread and butter but biscuit and buns for feeding the animals.

Those who are to take their noonday meal in the refreshment room, however, need not be destitute of provender for their four footed acquaintances; a bun may always be bought for a penny, and biscuit are abundant on many a convenient counter.

First comes the preliminary ramble, and then a skurry back to the fish house, where at 12 o'clock the diving birds are fed. A large glass tank of clear water occupies one end of the room, and into this precisely at noon an attendant throws a handful of tiny fish, a few of them still living. Then the side of an adjoining cage is removed, and down plunge the penguins to seize their prey.

It must be confessed that their table manners are not fine. They literally gobble fish after fish, and then hurl themselves about in the water, evidently delighted with their bath.

Another bird—a slender, graceful creature, familiarly called a "darter"—is admitted alone to the tank, and his motions in eating his fish dinner are wonderful to see. He swoops through the water like an arrow, and impaling each fish upon his bill lifts his head, and in some mysterious and lightning-like manner catches the victim and swallows it.

THE RIDE ON THE ELEPHANTS.

Later in the afternoon the pelicans are fed in the little yard where they strut solemnly all day long. A small pond occupies its center, and into this bits of fish are thrown, in search of which the birds rush pell mell, covering the water with a confusion of gigantic waving wings. As the attendant approaches to carry out this pleasing ceremony, the birds awaken from their drowsy calm, and it is a sight not soon to be forgotten if one can watch a stately old pelican lift his wings and begin an awkward curvetting in token of his joy.

In the bear pit, a deep and well lighted inclosure, dwell two bears, who are unweary with the fatness produced by many buns. They have been so persistently fed by visitors that when one looks over the railing his bearship calmly rises, holds out two entreating forepaws and sits in pleased anticipation of a feast.

He catches bits of bun in his mouth with the unerring skill given by long practice, and will even climb the pole in the center of the pit, if one will but hold a bun over it suspended from a stick.

"But how will he know I want him to climb?" said a little girl, who had just been provided with this plummy bribe.

"Just hold it near the pole where he can get it," said an attendant, "and he'll do the rest. He knows as much as we do."

So, heavily and with much panting, the awkward creature mounts his pole, seizes the bun, and descends to munch it in content.

The crowning joy of all perhaps for little visitors is that of riding the elephants, which, provided with great saddles, large enough for a dozen people, take their load of shrieking, laughing children and go lumbering off down the walks, waving their trunks this side and that in the hope of receiving a stray tit-bit from the neighboring crowd.

FEEDING THE LIONS.

Later in the day comes one great event, to which even the most serious grown person must be interested. At half past 4 the lions are fed! Long before the time visitors begin to pour into the building where, in large cages against the wall, lions, tigers and leopards are pacing restlessly up and down. The creatures themselves need no watches to tell them dinner time is near.

At the appointed moment a man enters, pushing a barrow of bleeding meat, and wheels it past the cages to the very end of the room. At the small and sight pandemonium breaks loose. One terrible roar, made by many voices in awful concord, fills the place. At the last cage the barrow stops, a bar is thrown back, and two large pieces of meat are thrown in. The lion seizes them in his paws and lies contentedly down, to gnaw and lick them with the deliberation of a well fed animal.

So the programme goes on, until one voice after another is silenced and the barrow is empty. One very interesting fact is always to be observed. The animals do not, on receiving their first piece of meat, retire to devour it; they wait for the second and then turn away with both held securely in their paws. They have evidently learned how much to expect and can count up to that number.

Indeed the delights of the Zoo are almost inexhaustible to animal loving children. There is the monkey house, where those grave, wrinkled, half human creatures sit picking fleas from each other with an air of funny absorption. There is the chimpanzee "Sally," who will count five for her keeper by passing him the requisite number of straws, and who, at request, will eat with her fingers, as she "used to do," and then with a fork, as she does now that she is civilized. "Queer old Sally," as one little boy said, and happy children who can see her—YOUTH'S COMPANION.

Fish swallow their food whole because they are obliged to keep continually opening and closing the mouth for the purpose of respiration.

Big Guns in China.

The Pekin Gazette contains a curious memorial from the viceroy of Canton respecting 108 74-centimeter guns manufactured by Krupp on the order of Chang Chihlung, the late viceroy of the province. The viceroy says the guns are excellent in every respect, but they do not suit the fortifications for which they were intended. The damp climate of the province and the white ants, "which eat anything and everything," would destroy them; the district is so hilly that they could not be moved, the coast is composed of wet sand, in which the wheels would get fixed immediately; the guns are too long for the embankment on which they were to be placed and could not be turned around; there are no horses in the province to drag them, and if there were there is no forage for them; finally, the horses in the adjacent provinces are so small that if they were imported they could not drag such heavy guns. The obstacles being so numerous and insurmountable, the memorialist asks that he may be allowed to transfer the guns to his brother, Li Hung Chang, for use in the north, payment to be made for them when he can. Should he receive any money from his brother on this account, the memorialist promises to report the fact. The emperor authorizes this course to be followed.

Clinging for her life to a rough beam while a flying express train thundered and swayed above her head! Swinging in midair, with death above and below her, until almost exhausted by fatigue from the terrible strain!

This was the dire predicament in which Miss Norah Oldham, of Nashville, was placed, and it was only due to her cool judgment and calm presence of mind that she was saved from death.

In attempting to cross the railroad trestle which extends from Cedar street to beyond Line, she was run down by an express train, the engineer of which, Dickson, was trying to enter the Union depot on time and had been running unusually fast for some minutes. She was compelled to let herself down on the outside of the track and hang on until she was rescued.—Memphis Appeal

Pretty Low.

By the subjection of ordinary air to a pressure of seventy-five atmospheres, or 1,125 pounds, with a condenser kept at minus 130 degs. centigrade, air has been reduced to a liquid form, and the liquid, when allowed to evaporate, produces, it is said, a temperature of minus 200 degs. centigrade. This is within 78 degs. of absolute zero.—New York Times.

Mrs. Million's Ride.

When Mrs. Million goes to ride she travels forth in state. Her horses, full of fire and pride, go prancing from the gate. But all the beauties of the day she views with languid eye. Her flesh in weakness wastes away, her voice is but a sigh.

For Mrs. Million is in an advanced stage of catarrh, and all the luxuries that wealth can buy fail to give her comfort. She envies her rosy waiting-maid, and would give all her riches for that young woman's pure breath and blooming health. Now, if some true and disinterested friend would advise Mrs. Million of the wonderful merits of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, she would learn that her case is not past help.

$500 reward is offered by the manufacturers for a case of catarrh in the head which they cannot cure.

Not a Monopolist.

A Card to the Public.

I would respectfully inform the public that I have been able to procure a pretty fair outfit for raising or moving houses, and am willing to do that kind of work at reasonable figures. But I do wish it distinctly understood that, after looking at a job, I am to be the sole judge of the price to be set upon the work that I am to undertake, or may do. If there is any person who may think that there is big money to be made at house moving in The Dalles, by doing work for less than I can do it, I would advise him to prepare himself, by buying tools, and reap some of the rich harvest. In conclusion I will say that if I am called upon to do any work in my line, I shall endeavor, in the future, as in the past, to give entire satisfaction in all respects to my employer.

Most Respectfully,

ANDREW VELARDE.

Three days is a very short time in which to cure a bad case of rheumatism; but it can be done, if the proper treatment is adopted, as will be seen by the following from James Lambert, of New Brunswick, Ills.: "I was badly afflicted with rheumatism in the hips and legs, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It cured me in three days. I am all right today; and would insist on every one who is afflicted with that terrible disease to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm and get well at once." 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.
